Gandhi Rides Home In Rags a Hero

THRONGS HAIL 'HOLY MAN' AS A CONQUEROR

Kiss Earth Where He Walks.

AHMADABAD, India, March 9.—Down through the heart of India Mahatma Gandhi rode in a great triumphal procession last night and today, reaching his home this evening in the city whence he set out a year ago—March 12—to launch his revolution. He received a riotous welcome, such as no monarch, modern or ancient, Indian or English, has ever received in this sweating land in many a day.

A half crazed brown horde took possession of the station here tonight, and would not give up until this twentieth century god of theirs appeased them with a simple blessing. The mahatma was moved to tears when the thousands knelt and kissed the earth on which he passed.

Finally, after hours of milling in which hundreds had their clothes half torn off and sandals ripped from their feet, the frail little man, hailed anew as India's apostle of peace and liberty, was rescued from the howling mob and spirited away to safer parts on the shoulders of volunteers.

Rides in Baggage Car.

How the word of his coming penetrated into the remotest villages is a mystery, but it did. Thousands upon thousands rushed to the railway stations along the route, and all but wrecked the dirty little third class compartment—the only passenger compartment in a decrepit baggage car—which Gandhi chose to occupy, shunning first class accommodations on the train. He traveled carrying his own mattress, a bundle of food and tin utensils. In the folds of his ragged garment was secreted the terms of a truce which freed 24,000 adherents and ended the civil disobedience campaign.

Caste System Forgotten.

As the thousands battered against his car at wayside stations during the night, the barriers of a 3,000 year old caste system were obliterated as if by magic. Filthy and perspiring coolies rubbed sweating shoulders against excited Brahman divines. Untouchables for once did not pollute the atmosphere of their betters by their presence. Corpulent merchant princes, proud nawabs, and rajahs jostled the lowliest servants and the wild scene was enacted over and over in fifty towns.

Rail officials, soldiers, and police exhorted the crowds in vain. Women with babies in each arm rushed into the weaving mob shouting wildly. Men hung on to the car steps in an effort to ride to the next town with the "holy man." The train was several hours late because it stopped every few miles while the train crew brushed off fanatical peasants like locusts.

It was Gandhi's day of silence, but the peasant crowds did not want to hear him talk. They merely wanted to see their idol. So Gandhi just sat unchanged like a silent Buddha.

Spit on Newspaper Men.

It was a crowd breathing not only hate but defiance, too, for it booed and spat upon a group of American newspaper men in an adjoining compartment, mistaking them for British officials.

The "holy man" got no sleep at all, for armies of villagers waited for him all night long until dawn. Fierce looking Rajputts with long beards descended upon the train at one station armed with lanterns, for there were no electric lights. They almost set fire to the train in the confusion.

Everywhere the poorest peasants brought thank offerings—coins, fruits, cotton, spinning wheels, and what not until an extra compartment had to be engaged to provide room for the gifts. It is upon such offerings that Gandhi lives, because he long ago turned over his great wealth to the poor.

When the great princes joined in the huge welcome, the nawab of Palanpur, and a Moslem at that, through whose state Gandhi passed before reaching Ahmadabad, climbed humbly into a third class compartment for the first time in his life and rode an hour with the ascetic Nationalist leader.

IT'S LUCKY FOR HIM THE DOG'S ALONG

EX-FIANCES FIGHT AT GIRL'S HOME; ONE IS ARRESTED

Miss Lucille Thompson, 23 years old, 4864 Magnolia avenue, was once engaged to Malcolm Harrison, who is about her age and the nephew of Monroe Harrison, orange hut magnate. More recently Miss Thompson had been engaged to Clifford H. Wilkinson, 32 years old, 7442 Malvern avenue, a superintendent of soda fountain sales for a chain drug concern.

The breaking off of the Thompson-Wilkinson nuptial arrangements was not accompanied by the return to Mr. Wilkinson of the $500 ring he had given to Miss Thompson. Last night, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Arthur Sherwin and an attorney, he went to her home to demand it. His backers remained on the curb while he went to the door.

But it was not Miss Thompson who met him there. It was Mr. Harrison, and he was angry. Ex-fiancé met ex-fiancé with their fists. The battle ended with Mr. Wilkinson on the floor and Mr. Harrison put under arrest by Deputy Sherwin. At the Town Hall station Mr. Harrison was charged with assault and released on bonds of $100 furnished by his uncle.

ESTATE VALUED AT $300,000 IS LEFT TO CHURCH

The will of Mrs. Frances M. Barrett, leaving the bulk of her estate of $300,000 to the Trinity Episcopal church, Michigan avenue and 26th street, was filed for probate yesterday with Mitchell C. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. Mrs. Barrett died on Jan. 26 in the Windermere West hotel. She was 96 years old.

The estate is set up in a trust fund, according to the will, and an annual income of $8,000 is to go to the church. Among other annuities made in the will is one of $1,800 to Martha Youngsborg, Mrs. Barrett's maid. Miss Youngsborg is also granted the privilege, according to the will, of being buried in the Barrett family lot at Oakwoods cemetery.

Mrs. Barrett was the widow of Oliver W. Barrett, who for many years was superintendent of the American Express company here.

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—The top of Washington monument gleamed red tonight, to warn low flying aviators. The historic spire was fitted on two sides with warning lights and excellent visibility from eight miles was reported in ground tests.

Library Board Discovers It Needs Lawyer

For the last seven or eight years Attorney Colin C. H. Fyffe, who was appointed a member of the Chicago Public Library board by Mayor Dever, and whose term expired last November, took care of the library board's legal work for a salary of nothing a year.

Yesterday at a meeting of the board it was disclosed that the body now has an attorney at a salary of $6,000 a year. He is Charles E. Peace, city hall committeeman in the 42d ward, who was counsel for the Lincoln park board during the administration of Gov. Small.

Compromise on Salary.

Mr. Peace attended the meeting yesterday. On Jan. 12 the library board voted that it needed an attorney and appointed him. No announcement of his official position was made at the time. There was a proposal then that he be retained for four years at $7,500 a year, but a compromise on the salary was made and it was pointed out that the board could not enter into contracts for more than a year.

U. J. [Sport] Herrmann, president of the library board, was interviewed about the board's discovery that it needed a paid legal counselor.

"We have to have him at the meetings," Mr. Herrmann said, "to advise us about contracts and bonds."

Silent During Meeting.

Mr. Peace, who listened attentively to the proceedings, which occupied about an hour, took no part in the discussion of book purchases and other routine matters. He remarked that his work would be mostly in connection with committee meetings.

Mr. Fyffe said that, while it might be unusual for an attorney to work for a public board without compensation, he had not spent more than four days a year in caring for the legal needs of the library body.

This time, divided into the salary that is to be paid Mr. Peace, would represent $1,500 a day. On Chairman Herrmann's basis of the need for legal services Mr. Peace would attend twenty-four meetings a year—the board meets semi-monthly for about one hour—and would be paid at the rate of $250 an hour. If Mr. Peace is to attend all the committee meetings his compensation might fall below $100 an hour.

The library board, due to lessened appropriations in the last few years, has cut down on the number of employés engaged in serving the public and signs to that effect, asking patrons to be patient, were posted in the libraries.

REGISTER TODAY

All qualified persons not now legally on the polling lists must register today in order to vote in the city election on April 7.

If you voted in the presidential election of 1928 or in any primary or election since then and have not changed your residence you do not need to register today.

Besides those who have moved the list of those who must register includes all unregistered qualified persons who have come of age or have acquired citizenship. Residence of one year in the state, 90 days in the county, and 30 days in the precinct is necessary to qualify as a voter.

Polling places will be open from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. today.

BOY KEPT ALIVE BY "ARTIFICIAL LUNG" IS BETTER

The condition of Charles Caughey, 7 years old, 3622 South Union avenue, who has been treated with an artificial respiration machine at St. Francis hospital in Evanston since Friday, was reported improved yesterday.

The respiratory chamber, as the device is known, is credited with keeping the boy alive while his throat was paralyzed by diphtheria. He has so far improved that the attending physicians have been able to give him nourishment, and his chances of ultimate recovery are regarded as better than even.

At a meeting of the county board yesterday an offer to donate one of the machines to the county hospital was accepted. The offer came through Dr. Ludwig Hektoen, director of the McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, who said that the donor wished to remain anonymous.

Bandits Get His Vacation Fund; Florida Trip Is Off

The plans of Charles Simonson, 5231 North Ashland avenue, to depart for Florida today were spoiled last night. He was walking in University avenue, near 59th street, just after leaving a fraternity affair in which his son was being rushed, when two men forced him into their car. They drove him to 59th street and Woodlawn avenue where they robbed him of $1,100—his vacation money—and kicked him out.

CERMAK GIVEN LEAD IN FOUR SO. SIDE WARDS

PRE-CAMPAIGN POLL.

Candidate.	Previously reported.	Yesterday's tots.	Totals to date.	Pct. to date.
Thomp'n [R.]	1,462	470	1,872	47.79
Stout [A...]	31	9	40	1.02
Totals	2,895	1,022	3,917	100.00

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Anton J. Cermak, the Democratic contender against Mayor Thompson in the mayoralty campaign, won yesterday's straw vote in the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth wards. As a group these wards compose a distinct Republican area. But Thompson has not been popular in these four wards during recent years, and if the election were held today it is probable that he would lose these wards.

It was not entirely unexpected that Cermak ran ahead of Thompson in the straw votes of these four wards; but it was a real surprise that he gained a larger percentage of the straws than did Mayor Dever four years ago. Dever appeared to be a more popular favorite with the University of Chicago group than Cermak seems to be, although Prof. Charles E. Merriam has already voiced a decided preference for Cermak over Thompson.

1,022 Straw Votes Taken.

In yesterday's poll 1,022 straw votes were collected. They were distributed among three mayoralty candidates as follows:

Candidate—	Party.	Votes.	Per cent.
Cermak	Democ.	543	53.13
Thompson	Repub.	470	45.99
Ernest Stout	Am. Natl.	9	.88
Totals		1,022	100.00

In these same four wards, Mayor Dever, as a candidate for reelection, obtained only 50.66 per cent of the straw votes collected. That is comparable with Cermak's 53.13. Thompson, in the poll of four years ago, received 45.32 per cent of the straw votes, as compared with 45.99 per cent this time. In the 1927 race, Dr. John Dill Robertson polled 4.01 per cent of the straw votes, while Ernest Stout this time gained only .88 per cent.

A Deduction from Poll.

If the present poll is indicative of what has happened to the Robertson following, about one-fifth of it has gone to Thompson and the other four-fifths to Cermak.

The totals of the three days supply another feature. The first two days, on the unverified assumption that those straw votes indicated the sentiment throughout the city, gave Cermak a percentage which would project him a plurality of about 20,000 on an estimated million voters.

On these same assumptions, the poll at the end of the third day indicates that Cermak would get a plurality of about 32,000, if the election were held today. However, this poll is being taken before the campaign, and it is not assumed that it tells accurately what the attitude of the electorate will be on election day, April 7. Other districts canvassed may increase, decrease or eliminate Cermak's lead.

West Side Not Touched.

The west side has not been touched. In this major division of the city Thompson heretofore has been unusually strong for a Republican. As a whole, it is Democratic territory, and at the start of the primary contest Thompson was credited with claiming 100,000 Democratic votes. The primary returns indicate he obtained a large number, and a substantial portion of them were from the west side.

The snowstorm forced a suspension of straw voting for two days and has slowed down the progress since. Otherwise, some samples of the west side would have been obtained by this time.

Poll on South Side.

Ward.	Location.	Cermak.	Thomp. son.	Stout.	Tot.
5—Lake Pk., 55th..		135	52	0	188
6—Stony Island, 63d		92	64	2	158
6 Cottage Gr., 63d.		92	75	3	168

Totals		543	470	9	1,022

In the 1927 mayoralty contest, when the straw votes as a whole showed that Thompson would win, a canvass was taken in the wards represented

Thread of Fate Leads Surgeon to 1st Patient

Twenty years ago a young doctor, fresh from an interneship at the Alexian Brothers' hospital, hung out his shingle in Waterloo, Ia. The sign read: "Joseph A. Jerger, M. D., Physician and Surgeon." The young doctor waited in his sparely furnished office for his first patient. One day a curly headed Greek boy limped into the office. His right leg had mended improperly after a serious fracture of the femur so that the bone was at an angle and the leg two inches short. Dr. Jerger was versed in the use of Lane's plates, but knew they would not fill the gap of two inches.

The doctor dismissed the boy with the assurance that he would do something for him. For three days he wrestled with his problem. His text books failed him. Older surgeons could offer nothing. At length he had his inspiration. He bounded out of bed at dawn to a butcher shop, where he dissected a sheep with his untarnished scalpel. He removed two inches of bone of the size of the boy's femur.

Bone Is Transplanted.

The boy could not pay, but promised to do so as soon as he earned money. Dr. Jerger entered the case on his account book as a charity case, more interested in his success than a fee. The young doctor developed a practice which encouraged him to move to Chicago in 1914. He forgot the Greek boy.

Recently the doctor was routed from his bed to attend an emergency case in St. Luke's hospital. Peter Grimes, a cigar dealer, had suffered a shattered leg when he was struck by a truck. The right femur was crushed. Amputation was necessary. In the operation Dr. Jerger found two inches of bone intact and this was protected by plates on which his initials were scratched.

Grimes His First Patient.

Grimes had been his first patient. Dr. Jerger advanced money for blood transfusions to save Grimes' life. Grimes won his battle with life. When he left the hospital the Harris Pie company paid him $20,000 for the loss of his leg. Dr. Jerger presented a bill. It was ignored. He called Grimes to be told that his first patient had no intention of paying.

Tomorrow Attorney George L. Schein, representing Dr. Jerger, will tell the story in the Municipal court where the doctor is seeking to collect $500. After the hearing the doctor will go to his office at 30 North Michigan avenue and draw a tattered account book from his desk. Regardless of the decision he will mark the account "closed."

HOPS ON COAST TO COAST FLIGHT ON PLANE TEST

Long Beach Municipal Airport, March 10.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—Capt. Ira Eaker, noted army pilot, hopped off here at 4:13 a. m. [Chicago time] today for the Atlantic coast on a non-stop flight to test his army transport airplane. He said he would not attempt to better the trans-continental flight record.

Two earlier attempts this morning to get off the ground failed when the ship yerred to the right under the heavy load of gasoline, threatening to carry Eaker into nearby hangars. He solved his difficulty by forcing more weight on the rigid tail wheel and shot straight away into the night. He carried 486 gallons of gasoline.

YOUTH IS CALM AS PROSECUTOR DENOUNCES HIM

Defense Calls Case Police Frameup.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JOHN CRUMPACKER.

The tall, spare prosecutor, dressed in sober black, read Supreme court decisions describing murder by rape as the most atrocious crime in the Indiana criminal code, a crime calling for only one penalty—death in the electric chair.

Seizing on Kirkland's own testimony, Underwood employed it as his theme and pictured the defendant as a lustful youth inflamed by liquor, fully capable of committing murder to gratify his desires. The defendant's attitude on the stand, Underwood argued, showed him to be incapable of pity or remorse.

Turning to Kirkland, Underwood shook a menacing forefinger in his face and thundered:

"This young hoodlum was with her constantly that night. He is guilty of an abominable murder. To turn him loose upon Lake county now would be a travesty on justice."

Kirkland Keeps His Poise.

A sudden tightening of the eyelids, a slight wavering of the eyes, was the only sign Kirkland gave that he had heard the denunciation. He sat bolt upright through it all.

Discussing the medical evidence, Underwood read Supreme court decisions holding all expert testimony to be unreliable.

He referred to Drs. John Springer and Charles E. Fischer of Chicago, the defense medical witnesses, as "a couple of reprobates."

Attorney John Crumpacker, a son of the presiding judge, Grant Crumpacker, opened for the defense. His plea was that Kirkland, at no time from the hour of his arrest until his dismissal from the witness stand, had ever varied his story that Arlene fell accidentally on a porch and that their relations made rape unnecessary.

Incidentally, he came to the defense of Dr. Springer, turning on Underwood with this thrust:

"Let the jury decide which is the reprobate, Dr. Springer or you."

Police Tactics Criticized.

He was followed by Attorney Oscar B. Thiel of Gary. The Gary lawyer argued that there was a "suspicion" that the Gary police and Lake county prosecutor had conspired to "railroad Kirkland for the accidental death of the girl."

Mr. Underwood, generally testy and sometimes fiery in argument, began his jury address in a quiet voice. Hitching up his shiny trousers, he leaned on the brass rail before the jury box like a country storekeeper talking to his neighbors.

"This is a duty I wish I did not find it necessary to perform," he began, "but I have sworn my oath as special prosecutor. I want you jurymen to remember that under the Indiana law it is unnecessary for the prosecution to prove malice or premeditation against a defendant on trial for murder by rape."

"Jurymen," he went on "suppose we assume the defense contention that Arlene Draves did suffer an accidental fall. Even so, under Indiana law, if the defendant contributed to or hastened her death by any act of his after that fall he is as guilty as if—"

"——Yes, as guilty as if he had stabbed her to the heart with a knife," the prosecutor finished. "It's the law and it's good common sense besides."

"Let's analyze this evidence," Mr. Underwood continued. "We have a young girl in good health starting out with this defendant to a party at the home of another defendant. The second defendant is not now on trial.

"Kirkland told you he didn't know it was going to be a liquor party." The prosecutor's voice was tinged with sarcasm and he shot a withering glance at the defendant. "Why, he knew it for two weeks. You heard him admit on cross-examination that he had drawn a picture of a whisky bottle on a café wall and labeled it Nov. 29, the date of the fatal party.

"He would have you believe that he had the purest intentions towards this girl, that he wanted to make her his wife——"

Kirkland was fumbling with the vest buttons of his spruce blue suit. He glanced uneasily to Mr. O'Hara at his right.

"It is my deliberate judgment," Underwood cried, "that he had a fixed intention to take the girl to the party, and have carnal relations with her, with her consent if possible, by force if necessary.

"We can see him taking Arlene to that party with his mind imbued with the idea he had expressed a week before to his friends, Fred Phillips and John Churchill, who asked him whether he was 'getting anything from Arlene.' Remember his answer?

"'Not yet,'" says Kirkland, "'but if I don't pretty soon I'll beat hell out of her.' That's your defendant, with his pure intentions of marriage."

Scene on the Porch.

"Let's consider the scene on the porch," the prosecutor suggested. "Bear in mind that Arlene's friend, Mrs. Bernice Elser, told you she had seen the girl a few minutes before, dancing gayly with others than Kirkland and perfectly sober.

"Well, Kirkland takes her out on the porch. There's an arm chair there in the dark; Arlene sits in it with Kirkland perched on the arm.

"The undisputed testimony is that Kirkland is whispering words of love. What was Arlene's answer? The eye witness, Richard Sturtride, has told you of her pitiful reply: 'I want to go home.'

"If she had loved him those words of Kirkland's would have been the sweetest she could hear. Instead she wanted to go home. Even then, jurymen, you can see that that poor girl saw her danger.

She Suddenly Falls.

"What happened?" he demanded. "There's a crash on the porch. Sturtridge rushes across the porch and picks up the limp form.

"And where was Kirkland? Another man picks up the bleeding form of his sweetheart and he stands like a stone. And why does he stand thus?"

The prosecutor uttered the next sentence slowly.

"My guess, jurymen, and I think it's justified, is that this defendant slugged her on the jaw. He had pleaded his passion. She spurned him with a plea to be taken home. He slugged her, as a pugilist would slug his opponent, and she fell. You heard the medical experts describe the marks on her jaw—marks like those of a clenched fist.

"You heard this marvelous pathologist from Chicago," said Underwood, his lip curling. "Well, old Doc Springer told you that if Arlene had been struck on the jaw she would have fallen backwards, not on her forehead. Jurymen, that's not true. When a pugilist deals the knockout blow his victim slumps from the shoulders and falls face forward. And that is how Arlene lay until a better hearted man than this defendant rushed over and picked her up.

"And what is Kirkland's explanation under cross-examination on the witness stand?" he roared, still shaking a finger at Kirkland. "He says he was stunned. Great God! Stunned!"

Pokes Fun at His Tears.

Underwood turned to the jurymen.

"You saw him on cross-examination?" he asked. "Did he display the character of one likely to be stunned?

"On direct examination, of course, he wanted to cry. Whether those tears were forced or involuntary I don't know, but, judging from the pantomime he went through with his lawyer, I have a strong suspicion.

"But consider the cross-examination. Why, he fought back with as much ingenuity as Mr. O'Hara himself displayed. There was not a trace of emotion. He was as sullen a witness as ever I saw."

Kirkland was beginning to writhe under the prosecutor's attack. Nervously he clenched and unclenched his hands. Perspiration broke out upon his forehead and he wiped it away.

"We have Arlene on the porch, senseless, and he's stunned," the prosecutor continued. "Then he takes her, drags her rather, to Paul Barton's car.

Where Rape Occurred.

"There, jurymen, is where the rape occurred. There was where he got blood on his clothes and there is where the blood was shed that you saw on the seat cover of the car."

The prosecutor described the trip to the restaurant with Arlene and Kirkland in the car together with three of the other four defendants, Barton, Henry Shirk and Paul Thompson, the party host.

"You heard the testimony of the waitress, Victoria Leonard?" he asked the jury. "She saw the blood on his hands and heard him say: 'Boy, I gave her a good knock that time.' Then he nudges Thompson to go out to the car.

"They return to Thompson's house and there the other girls at the party see Arlene, stretched in the back seat, her clothes pulled up over her waist, unconscious, perhaps dying."

The crowd tittered. Judge Crumpacker rapped for order. Mr. Underwood closed his argument with a plea that "this young hoodlum" be given the death penalty.

Defense Opens Argument.

Attorney Crumpacker, in opening for the defense, got into a controversy with his father and was overruled, but later won his point.

"I don't believe the prosecution has made an honest effort to place all the facts before you," he declared. "What was the cause of the girl's death? It can be explained in Kirkland's own statement.

"The defendant tells you a story that has been corroborated and reiterated from the time of his arrest until he came into the witness stand. What reason does the boy himself assign for her death? Just what he told the coroner's jury—and it's a part of this record—let me read it to you."

MR. UNDERWOOD—We object. The coroner's record is not in evidence.

MR. CRUMPACKER—I say it is in evidence. The clerk of the Lake county court read it from the witness stand and——

JUDGE CRUMPACKER—You are overruled. The coroner's record is not in evidence.

MR. CRUMPACKER—Now, Mr. Underwood, I didn't interrupt you in your argument. I'm going to read this and I won't misquote the record either.

A Talk on Experts.

"Mr. Underwood doesn't like experts," Crumpacker frowned in the prosecutor's direction. "Their own expert, Dr. Stoner, who started all the experting, testified that nine out of ten cases of brain hemorrhage are fatal."

The only rational conclusion from all the testimony, Mr. Crumpacker argued, was that Arlene fell accidentally as Kirkland said, suffered a serious brain concussion and died. He turned to consideration of the girl, herself and her conduct at the party.

"She knew what she was doing when she went to this party," he declared. "No one forced her to drink. She fell while dazed and that fall was responsible for her death."

The lawyer stepped over to the defense table, picked up a sheet of paper and started to read, precipitating a clash. The paper apparently bore the court's instructions to the jury, to be read when the arguments are finished.

"What's that you're reading?" yelled Underwood and Freund in chorus.

"None of your business," bellowed Crumpacker, and resumed reading. Before he had spoken a dozen words the judge overruled him.

Summing up, Mr. Crumpacker averred the prosecution was placing a boy in jeopardy of death under extremely thin evidence and gave it as his conviction that Kirkland was innocent.

Three Last Speakers.

Mr. Thiel wound up the day's argument. The evidence, he declared, was entirely circumstantial and easily overthrown. Exhibiting Arlene's unrent stockings to the jurors, he asked how the girl would have been bruised and scratched without the silk being torn. He pointed to the stain on the middle of the seat cover and asked how the stain could have gotten there, since the undisputed evidence was that Kirkland occupied the middle seat on the trip to the restaurant.

On the face of the evidence, Mr. Thiel deduced, the Gary police had framed the case against Kirkland, intending to use him as a sacrifice to appease the clamor of reformers.

From the number of restaurant jobs she held in brief intervals, Mr. Thiel concluded that the state's star witness, Miss Leonard, must have been a "stool pigeon," moving from place to place and spying for bootleggers. Mr. Thiel closed by warning the jury against the uncertainty of circumstantial evidence and beseeched the jurors, for the peace of their own consciences, to refrain from convicting an innocent boy.

Blizzard Lashes All Europe; Angry Seas Batter Vessels

LONDON, March 9.— (AP) —Riding down from Iceland on a bitter cold wind, a winter storm held most of Europe in its grasp tonight with frigid temperatures general except in the northernmost countries and with deep snow in many sections.

It snowed all day in London and the heaviest fall in 20 years lay several inches deep, seriously impeding traffic. Along the British coast from the channel to the Orkneys high waves battered shipping and several small vessels ran aground, and the crews were saved. There was deep snow in the north, causing heavy losses to sheep farmers.

Rising Seine Menaces Paris.

Germany, Austria, and France had snow, in many places it was the coldest day in years, and in France rising rivers caused considerable concern. The Seine was menacing Paris and continuing snow gave rise to fears of serious floods.

Snowdrifts blocked the highways and delayed trains and the cold belt ran from Scandinavia to Spain. In Vienna snow fell for 46 hours.

The Seine leaked into the Invalides railroad station in Paris as it often does at flood and steam trains were diverted to the Montparnasse station. Below freezing temperature was expected to hold the Seine down, but it rose steadily today to 16 feet 5 inches at the Austerlitz bridge.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, March 9.—The panic stricken population of southern Jugo-Slavia is camping in tents on the tops of hills in the bitter cold, still fearing to return to their homes because of new earthquakes. Two more shocks were felt today, making a total of 34 temblors in Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, and Greece since last Friday.

Meanwhile troops and police are clearing the roads in order to supply the population with food and clothing, which are arriving in the affected areas on relief trains.

The newspaper Pravda reports the death toll at 800. One hundred and fifty deaths, 400 seriously injured, and 10,000 homeless are the official figures. King Alexander arrived at Nish today from where he personally conducted rescue work. Queen Mary is en route to join him.

400 Homes Fall in Greece.

From Athens it is reported that 100 houses were destroyed today by a quake at Nevchell. The cause of the quake, according to the seismographic institute, is the settling of the Rhodope mountains. It was also predicted that other shocks will follow. The Belgrade council of ministers today voted that the government would bear the costs of rebuilding the destroyed districts. Similar resolutions were passed at Athens and Sofia.

400 Japanese Homes Destroyed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 10.—[Tuesday.]—More than 480 houses were partially destroyed in the Aomori prefecture, the hardest hit district in yesterday's earthquake. Most of the buildings were destroyed in the city of Hachinohe.

The whole northeastern part of Japan felt the shocks. Seismologists stated today that the quake originated under the sea and was felt over an area of 400 miles. There were no casualties. The quake was heaviest on Hokkaido island, but was also felt in Tokio.

Eleven Killed in Hurricane.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, March 9.—Messages from Port Louis, Mauritius, state that eleven persons were killed, many injured, and 10,000 left homeless in the hurricane which swept the island for two days. Waves washed ships into streets. Property damage was heavy, and it is estimated that 35 per cent of the sugar crop has been destroyed.

Judge Acts to Speed Collection of 1929 Taxes

Judge Thomas Taylor of the Circuit court yesterday continued indefinitely a hearing of 30 mandamus proceedings filed by loop taxpayers seeking to compel the board of review to reopen its hearings on the 1929 realty assessments. This step tended to speed the way for collection of 1929 taxes, it was said. The continuance resulted from a compromise, the petitioners agreeing to stop prosecution of their suits on the promise of a fair hearing later in the County court.

Youth Stricken by Snow Blindness After Storm

Edward Kerley, 17 years old, of 2445 West 24th street, was taken to the County hospital yesterday after he had lost his sight. His affliction was diagnosed by Dr. Robert Lennon as temporary snow blindness. He will recover full sight. The youth told physicians he had been on the lake front during the snowstorm on Saturday.

SUN HELPS TO CUT DRIFTS; EXPECT NEW THAW TODAY

Storm Lashes States on Eastern Seaboard.

The snowstorm which struck Chicago and the middle west over the week-end was sweeping across the east with increased intensity last night, paralyzing traffic in cities in its path, and with the aid of high winds, creating havoc along the Atlantic seaboard.

In Chicago the storm was over so far as normal business activities were concerned. A bright sun and moderate temperatures yesterday thawed the snow blanket several inches, easing the work of thousands of men and hundreds of plows in freeing city streets and boulevards.

Another thaw is probable today, W. P. Day, the government forecaster, said last night. Today will be fair, turning to cloudy tonight, with the mercury rising to about 36 degrees in the afternoon, he asserted. Some snow or rain is possible tomorrow.

Roads Cleared Quickly.

The snow was cleaned up speedily in Chicago and throughout the rest of the storm area—a stretch 400 miles in width across the grain belt. According to a bulletin of the Chicago Motor club last night, virtually all state and federal roads within a 200 mile radius of Chicago will be passable by noon today.

Downstate reports told of local road clearing and of efforts of the state highway department which employed 1,500 men and 225 plows all over the state, opening blocked roads.

Helps Farmers and Jobless.

The storm, while tying up traffic, proved a boon to farmers and the unemployed. The surface lines alone expended $400,000 for extra workers, C. H. Evenson, superintendent of transportation, said. The storm will cost the city between $200,000 and $300,000, according to Patrick J. Donovan, deputy superintendent of streets.

The general resultant precipitation from the melted snow and from rains was about 2 inches, relieving the 12 inch deficiency since last May.

The eastern storm, dispatches said last night, struck heaviest in western and northwestern New York state, and New England. A gale lashing the coast as far south as the Carolinas, imperiling shipping. Buffalo and Rochester were snowbound, and New Jersey rivers choked to overflowing.

Rescue Snowbound Auto Party of 20 Students

Bartlett, N. H., March 9.—(AP)—A party of twenty Groveton High school students was rescued by railroad workers tonight after spending 18 hours in their automobiles, marooned without food by a snow slide near Crawford Notch. Their plight was discovered by a crew of railroad snow shovelers who dug through the deep drifts that covered the tracks and the adjacent highway for a distance of nearly half a mile.

SERGT. F. J. REYNOLDS IS AWARDED POLICE MEDAL FOR HEROISM

Sergt. Frank J. Reynolds of the detective bureau, three times winner of THE TRIBUNE'S hero award, was yesterday awarded the Lambert Tree medal for the greatest act of heroism in the department for 1929. The selection was made by the civil service commission after considering the claims of 27 applicants.

The citation which accompanied the award relates how Reynolds entered a dark apartment at 4147 South State street and shot to death a member of a so-called "Moorish" cult of Negroes who shortly before had slain a policeman. Reynolds found the cult member, John Stephenson, in a corner of a dark closet with an automatic in his hand. Reynolds ordered him to drop the gun. The answer was two clicks as Stephenson pulled the trigger. The gun failed to fire, and Reynolds shot and killed him.

Notification will be made to the trustees of the Lambert Tree fund that Reynolds has been selected and a date will be set later for making the formal presentation of the medal. In some years it has been given at the police field games and in some years the presentation has been made in the council chambers.

ACT TODAY ON FINANCING RELIEF TO COUNTY'S POOR

The executive committee of the governor's unemployment commission will meet today to take final action on an appeal of the county board for temporary help in caring for the county poor. Members of the commission and the board reached a tentative agreement yesterday on a plan by which the commission will assume relief obligations to the extent of $250,000.

The financial assistance is required to continue the county board's work among the poor during the month of March.

Should the obligation be assumed by the governor's commission it will carry a guarantee of repayment by the county board, it is understood. Repayment will not be dependent upon the $2,000,000 bond issue bill now pending in the state legislature.

At the meeting yesterday the question of guaranteeing repayment by the expected passage of the legislative bill was discussed, and it was agreed the board would be required to find some other means of redeeming whatever assistance the governor's board might render.

An appeal for assistance to the governor's commission was prompted by the discovery last week that the county bureau of public welfare had expended the 1931 appropriation for poor relief in three months. The appropriation amounted to $720,000.

SEIZED FOR MIAMI POLICE.

Charles G. Grant, 24 years old, was arrested in a rooming house at 635 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, at the request of the Miami, Fla., police, who stated he was wanted there on a charge of embezzlement.

The comments of persons who cast straw votes show more interest in the present campaign than in either the 1923 or the 1927 mayoralty contests.

Comments of Voters.

One voter of the 46th ward on the north side commented while casting his straw vote: "I'm for Cermak on his public record and his business ability."

A 48th ward voter said "We need a change in the mayor's office."

Another voter in the same ward opined: "I'm a Republican. We've had enough of depression and graft."

In the 47th ward a straw voter remarked: "Thompson is bad, but who said Cermak was good?"

FIVE ARE KILLED, 5 INJURED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

McCook, Neb., March 9.—(AP)—Five persons were killed, two were injured seriously, and three others were badly cut when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an eastbound Burlington train at a grade crossing near Colfer, Neb., late today.

The dead are Herman Pursley, 15; Golda Pursley, 15; Fern Pursley, 8; an unidentified Pursley girl, 7, and the children's grandmother, Nancy Osborn, 70. The injured were Elmer Pursley and Ella Pursley, both about 45, parents of the children; Glen Pursley, 13; Elmer Eugene Pursley, 4, and Hazel Pursley, 10.

Elmer Pursley, a farmer northeast of Colfer, was driving the auto in which ten persons were riding. Trainmen said they could see the crossing for a mile before reaching it and that they did not see the car.

SHOREHAM, POPULAR CAPITAL HOTEL, BARS 'SETUPS' FROM MENUS

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—The Shoreham hotel, one of Washington's newest and largest hostelries, today barred bottled ginger ale, mineral water, and cracked ice from the menus in its dining rooms.

"In discontinuing the sale of bottled beverages in the Shoreham dining rooms," said L. Gardner Moore, managing director, "we are actuated by the double desire to please our patrons and also fully comply with the spirit as well as the letter of the prohibition law. Our clientele will be able to obtain soft drinks as in the past, but they will be served on draught in the same fashion as obtains in a soda room. There will be no bowls of cracked ice and no bottles."

The Shoreham supper dances attract a week-end attendance averaging 1,100 patrons. Diplomatic and congressional circles are always well represented.

CANAL LAWYERS BEGIN DEFENSE; HOYNE ON STAND

The 55 lawyers formerly employed by the sanitary district who are under investigation by the Chicago Bar association yesterday began their defense on the charges that they accepted money from the district without rendering service. The first respondent to take the witness stand was Maclay Hoyne, chief attorney from 1927 to 1928, who is charged with permitting excessive pay rolls. The hearing is before Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor, sitting as a commissioner for the Illinois Supreme court.

Hoyne testified that the list of attorneys during the régime of Timothy J. Crowe was prepared by A. L. Brodie, then chief clerk of the legal department. He said there was no real head of the department and that both he and Brodie were forced to follow the instructions of the board of trustees of the district.

Had he refused to allow their instructions, Hoyne declared, he could have been mandamused and compelled to by court order. To which statement Judge Taylor remarked "no court would ever countenance a writ of mandamus to comp' the performance of something by an attorney which was unprofessional."

SEE 90,000 NEW CERMAK VOTES IN REGISTRATION

Democrats Confident of Big Turnout Today.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Democratic leaders predicted yesterday that today's registration will increase the strength of A. J. Cermak, their mayoralty candidate, by 90,000 votes.

Despite the snowdrifts still standing in the streets, they refused to alter their earlier forecasts that there will be more than 100,000 names placed on the poll lists before 9 o'clock this evening and they repeated their estimate that fully 90 per cent of this increase in the electorate will be in favor of the Democratic nominee.

They pointed out that the city hall machine brought out every ounce of its strength for the February primary and that considerable of the anti-machine vote not only did not vote but was not registered.

Democratic View of Vote.

"Even if we had known it in advance, the primary figures established the fact that in many sections of the city the vote against the city hall was far behind the public sentiment there," said Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the Democratic managing committee, yesterday.

"With no contest in our own primary, the Democrats did not go to the polls in their normal strength; and it is admitted that many thousands of Republicans felt there was no chance to defeat the city hall in their primary, and did not take the trouble to vote. And those who were not registered did not trouble to get their names on the books.

"On the other hand, the machine put on every bit of pressure it could exert and cast every vote possible in its favor. It can't bring out any appreciable number of registrants now, and nine out of ten that put their names on the books tomorrow will be doing it as they can vote for Cermak."

Register Once in Four Years.

Election board officials said that Chicago has not yet become accustomed to the fact that it is now on a quadrennial instead of the former biennial registration basis. Under the present law the voter who does not change his residence in the meantime is required to register only once in four years.

In other words, there is a general registration of all voters only in presidential years. In the years between presidential elections there are intermediate registrations for the benefit of those persons who failed to register at the last general registration, who have become qualified to vote since that time, or have moved since their last previous registration at either the general or an intermediate registration.

Not Required to Register.

Therefore those required to register today do not include persons who were properly registered for the presidential election of 1928 or any intervening primary or election and have not changed their residences since registration during this period.

The Democratic argument that this will be a "Cermak registration" was supplemented by a contention that the battle is to be narrowed down to a Republican vs. Democratic contest, with minor tickets cutting little and possibly no figure. This was based on the fact that during the day Attorneys John F. Tyrrell and Cornelius J. Harrington appeared for individual qualified electors and began a legal attack to clear the ballot of everything except the two major tickets.

Attack "Self-Starters."

Basing their assault on a general contention that only political parties of recognized standing are authorized to use the caucus method of nomination resorted to by nearly all the "self-starters" in this campaign, they challenged the ballot rights of thirty-four candidates for the mayoralty and other offices in petitions containing allegations of approximately a score of legal shortcomings in every instance.

In their pleadings before the election board they recited, for example, that addresses of caucus chairmen and secretaries and the locations of caucuses were omitted from certificates of nomination.

Their attack includes not only the certificates of the "American National party," the "Anti-Chain Store party," and similarly unrecognized organizations, but also the nominations of the Socialist and Communist party. The contests will be heard by the election board, sitting as an "electoral board," on Friday morning.

"Will Stick to Issues."

Speaking at an organization luncheon at the College Inn yesterday, Mr. Cermak repeated his declaration that his campaign will be confined to the issues.

"I have been in public life for many years," he said, "and I am content to be judged upon the record I have made, especially in the last eight years as president of the county board. My opponent also has been in public life and he, too, should be judged on the record he has made. The voters will support the man they believe has the better record."

INDEPENDENT WOMEN OPEN HEADQUARTERS TO SUPPORT CERMAK

The women's independent organization supporting Anton J. Cermak, Democratic nominee for mayor, opened headquarters yesterday on the third floor of the Hotel La Salle. One of the first visitors was Mr. Cermak, who went into conference with the workers.

Mrs. James W. Morrisson, a Republican, was there. So was Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, who as head of the Ruth Hanna McCormick volunteers, helped to send the latter to Washington as congresswoman at large from Illinois. Miss Genevieve Corkell, who previously had urged the independent candidacy of Coroner Bundesen, was on hand to take charge of the office.

Mrs. George Bass, a nationally known figure in Democratic ranks, had a hand in the shaping of plans, as did Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, who for years has been a Republican worker. Also there was Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, who heads the corps of women workers.

"It's great," commented Mr. Cermak, as he watched the activity on the opening day of the headquarters, "and it's going to be surprising if these women don't make thing hum."

"We're starting at once on the organization of our ward groups," advised Mrs. Fairbank. "At first we expect to have small ward meetings, later uniting them with larger groups and ending the campaign with great massmeetings for women."

JOIN IN DEMAND FOR PROBE OF CHILDREN'S HOME

The movement for an investigation of the Du Page county home for dependent children by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom was joined yesterday by Mrs. Jacob Baur, national Republican committeewoman; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Tweedie, Mayor M. J. Pittsford of Wheaton and his wife; Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Fox, Mrs. Waller Borden, co-chairman of the women's board of the Illinois Childrens' Home and Aid society; Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, and Mrs. Marjorie R. Hopkins, trustee of the University of Illinois.

The inquiry was asked by Chauncey McCormick, vice president of the home and aid society; Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, members of the women's board of the society, and Mrs. Austin Angell of Wheaton, one of five taxpayers seeking an injunction to restrain Du Page county from leasing a new home under the management of Mrs. Maybelle Reese, manager of the present home. The suit alleges the expense to be unnecessary and the contract to be illegal.

The demand on Attorney General Carlstrom states that conditions in the home warrant criminal prosecution. It avers that Mrs. Reese had her license revoked by the state department of public welfare and is now housing 24 children in an eight room home. State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of Du Page county and Rodney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare, have refused to take action, signers to the letter state.

Bishop Carey Ill as Graft Case Comes Up in Court

Bishop Archibald Carey, colored member of the city civil service commission, failed to appear yesterday in Judge Joseph Sabath's Criminal court to answer charges of graft conspiracy, which have been pending in the Criminal court for more than one year. His attorney, Richard Folsom, law partner of United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis, said that Bishop Carey is ill in bed. Judge Sabath held the case on call to be tried as soon as it can be reached. Senator Lewis, it was announced, will appear at the trial for Bishop Carey.

PARTISAN MAYORALTY ELECTION ASSAILED BY PROF. MERRIAM

While more than 400 cities in the United States have provided for nonpartisan elections for city officials, Chicago still holds to the "curious arrangement" of electing the city council on a nonpartisan ballot, but of electing its mayor on a party ticket, Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago told a conference of civic organizations last night.

"This manner of electing the aldermen and the mayor is a hybrid thing," said Prof. Merriam, "a compromise that no one wanted and it gums up the whole situation. In years when the aldermanic election coincides with the mayoralty, the latter overshadows the former and the people tend to forget about the aldermen."

At the conference, which was held at the Union League club under the auspices of the Chicago Civic conference, the merits of tax reform, ballot reform, and other bills pending in Springfield were discussed. Announcement was made that the report of the citizens' police committee on its survey of the police department will be out in book form today.

Dry Law Foes Leave Today for Repeal Bill Hearing

A delegation of men and women opposed to the eighteenth amendment will entrain this afternoon at 4 o'clock for Springfield to attend the committee hearings tomorrow on the repeal of the state search and seizure law. Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. eGorge Brennan, representing the Woman's Organization for National Prohibition Reform; Ben McCutcheon of the Association Opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment, and John R. Dean, vice chairman of the Crusaders, with six members of that group, will comprise the protest committee.

STATE PRODUCES MISSING LINKS AGAINST WHITE

Murder Trial Witnesses Tell of Slaying.

CRIMINAL COURT.

The prosecution yesterday introduced far more damaging testimony, according to the prosecutors, against William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, ex-convict and public enemy, who is on trial before Judge Sabath for the murder of Policeman Edward Pflaume of Forest Park, than was given to the jury in the first trial. White was convicted of the murder at the first trial, but the Supreme court reversed the life imprisonment sentence and ruled that under the evidence the state at most was entitled to a manslaughter verdict.

Two important witnesses, Dr. Jacob Goodman, 1425 Sherwin avenue, former coroner's physician, and Policeman Maurice Jacobs, 517 Des Plaines avenue, Forest Park—the latter a participant in the attempted arrest of White—testified yesterday and supplied the missing links in the testimony as it existed in the former trial, the prosecutors said.

Say He Fired from Pocket.

Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne, Ross Lee Laird, and James Brown contend that White fired from his overcoat pocket at Policeman Pflaume when the latter attempted to arrest him.

Dr. Goodman told the jury that he found powder grains at the entrance to the fatal wound in Pflaume's body. The policeman was shot in one leg and the abdomen, the bullets taking a downward course. The powder indicates, the prosecutors said, that the policeman was shot at close range.

Attorney W. W. O'Brien, chief defense counsel, devoted his cross-examination to showing that the physician did not testify to the powder grains at the first trial. Dr. Goodman said he was not asked. The defense attorney also emphasized the fact that Pflaume was a taller man than White and said that he later intends to show that it would have been impossible for the bullets to have taken a downward course if fired from White's pistol in his pocket.

Tells of Search for Bandits.

Policeman Jacobs, in his testimony, supplied a link in the evidence by showing that the police had cause to arrest White as a bank robber suspect. He testified that he and Policeman Pflaume started out to look for the occupants of a Chrysler automobile who had held up an ice cream truck driver in Forest Park. They picked up Policeman James McBride of Bellwood and Policeman Charles Jones of Berkeley.

"While we were cruising around Policeman McBride said something about a bank robber hanging out in our neck of the woods," testified Policeman Jacobs. "He said that this robber had one bum hand with some fingers off."

The witness then described how they found White and James Johnston, another ex-convict, in the Mannheim Inn with two women. They found that the automobile license numbers did not tally with the identification card presented by White, he said. During the comparison of numbers Jacobs said that McBride pulled White's hands from his pocket and discovered the missing fingers. The state will later show that White was wanted for the West McHenry bank robbery.

White, who is nearly six feet and heavily built, seemed not perturbed by the new evidence.

Pflaume's 64 year old mother and several other minor witnesses testified yesterday to establish the corpus delicti. Policeman McBride, who was recently shot while working on the White case, is expected to be a witness at the trial today.

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., March 9.—[Special.]—In the opinion of the undersigned, who has had some slight experience in talking into a microphone, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes did pretty well in his radio debut last night, at least well enough to be entitled to another trial. You must remember he is just a kid breaking in and it is no wonder his voice was a little shaky. With the right kind of teaching he ought to be ready to step in next fall and take charge of one of the minor games like Harvard and Bates or the Army vs. Ursinus.

VOTE REPRIMAND FOR CAPTAIN IN TRIAL OF POLICE

Board Orders Discharge of One in Bribe Case.

The city civil service commission made its decision yesterday in the cases of policemen who had been involved in testimony before the special grand jury and who were prosecuted before the civil service board by Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller. The commission found Capt. Joseph Palczynski deserving of no more than a reprimand; it dismissed charges against Policemen Louis J. Starr, Ira L. O'Hara, and Joseph A. O'Brien, and it ordered the discharge of Policeman James J. Best from the department.

CAPT. PALCZYNSKI. [Tribune Photo.]

Mueller had presented the evidence against the five policemen after the special grand jury which is investigating police graft recommended that action be taken against them. During the trial of Capt. Palczynski the prosecutor left the hearing, but later he and Maj. Carlos Ames, president of the civil service commission, came to an agreement and the hearing proceeded.

Ames Comments on Decision.

"We believed that Capt. Palczynski was at fault only in that he did not confer with the arresting officers," said Maj. Ames in discussing the decision. The Palczynski case involved the reduction of charges of rape against three men to charges of disorderly conduct. The captain's defense at the trial was that he acted after questioning the woman, who refused to sign a complaint.

"The evidence against Starr, O'Hara and O'Brien was unreliable," Ames said, "and even if true it was not serious. A witness testified that on one or more occasions he had voluntarily given the policemen $5 or $10. This was insufficient to warrant any order of punishment. We discharged Policeman Best on testimony that he sold a policy wheel back to a Negro whom he had arrested for operating it. The Negro was fined $50 and then the policeman was alleged to have obtained $40 for the wheel."

"The verdicts seem to me to be proper," Assistant State's Attorney Mueller said. "I told the members of the special grand jury that if there wasn't sufficient evidence to justify indictments there wasn't enough to warrant discharge from the force. We had no thought that Capt. Palczynski was guilty of other than an error of judgment."

Hear Mrs. Kub Contempt Case.

Mr. Mueller appeared before Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court yesterday to prosecute Mrs. Shirley Kub, formerly an investigator for Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, for contempt of court. Mrs. Kub's attorneys attacked Mueller "for having subjected Mrs. Kub to unfavorable publicity and photographs."

"Whose business was it if the defendant married a Negro?" Attorney Michael Ahern said in seeking to justify Mrs. Kub's running away from a grand jury subpoena. "Because of that publicity she felt she had to leave town."

Mrs. Kub, who was an agent of Jack Zuta in the operation of west side vice resorts, was given until Thursday to prepare a further defense. The special grand jurors today will inspect the records found in Zuta's safety deposit boxes after he was slain last summer. These records contain data regarding alleged graft payments to police and politicians.

MOTHER OF NINE KILLS SELF.

Mayview, Ill., March 9.—[Special.]—Despondent over ill health, Mrs. Hiram Knott, 55, mother of nine children, shot herself in the chest yesterday and died today.

KILLED BY FALL

BERNICE OLOWECKI.

Miss Bernice Olowecki, 19 year old professional dancer, was killed yesterday morning in a fall from a window of her room on the ninth floor of the hotel Paramount, New York. The police believed the fall was accidental.

Miss Olowecki was the daughter of John Olowecki, 613 East 75th street. She is survived by her parents, two brothers and a sister. Members of the family said that she had been on the stage since she was 14. Miss Olowecki had recently suffered a nervous breakdown, but her letters had a cheerful note, according to her mother.

The body will be brought to Chicago for burial.

CHARGE JAPAN'S CABINET PERILS LIFE OF PREMIER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 10.—[Tuesday.]—On the eve of the appearance of Premier Yuko Hamaguchi in the diet this afternoon grave fears were expressed by the vernacular papers tha4 the government is risking the premier's life to save itself. The premier has only partly recovered from wounds inflicted by an assassin on Nov. 15. Premier Hamaguchi was barely able to mount the steps of his official residence on returning from the emperor's palace. In calling on the government to resign and pleading, "Don't kill Hamaguchi," the Tokio Asahi editorially condemns forcing the premier's appearance in the diet.

"All who saw the premier while en route to the palace yesterday agreed that he is not adequately recovered to carry on his duties," the editorial says. "Even his political opponents find it difficult, if not impossible, to launch an attack on such a weak man. On the other hand, it is unpardonable trickery on the government and the Minseito party to take advantage of sympathy for an ill man to force his attendance merely to sidetrack an attack."

LET $1,000,000 JOBS FOR PAVING IN ASHLAND AV.

Contracts for the paving of three sections of South Ashland avenue at a total cost of $1,953,490 were awarded yesterday by the board of local improvements. The contracts were let to the Calumet Coal company, the Chicago Construction company, and the John McGarry company. The sections of the street between Roosevelt road and 22d street and between 31st street and Pershing road are to be paved with concrete. The section between Pershing road and 47th street in front of the big packing plants is to be paved with concrete blocks. The contract prices exceed the original assessment, which was made some years ago, by $221,114. This will be charged to the Ashland avenue bond fund as a public benefit.

The county board yesterday opened bids on fourteen highway projects calling for 21.1 miles of pavement. The low bids on the improvements, totaling $577,483, were referred to the roads and bridges committee. Contracts will be awarded next Monday and work will start within a few weeks.

PREDICTS BOOM ON STATE STREET AFTER WIDENING

Open Hearing on Special Assessment.

A skyscraper development on State street north of the Chicago river comparable to that which followed the Michigan avenue improvement was forecast yesterday in Superior Judge E. M. Mangan's court at a hearing on assessments for widening the street to make way for subway construction.

The city plans to widen the thoroughfare from 66 to 115 feet between the river and Chicago avenue. A $2,500,000 bond issue to pay public benefits on the project was voted at the Feb. 24 primary. It is proposed to lay a four-track subway beneath the widened payment.

Assessments Set Record.

The special assessment for both the widening and subway projects was said by the city representatives to be the largest ever levied in Chicago and probably the largest in the world. The whole improvement will cost about $50,000,000. It is estimated the widening will cost $2,741,000, the subway $44,000,000, and land needed for operation of the subway $2,000,000.

Attorney George A. Mason, representing the city at the hearing yesterday, pointed out that as the widening will cut off the fronts of existing buildings, most of them old, modern structures will rise to replace them. With the subway and widened traffic artery, he said, the improved street will become an important northward extension of the loop. Property values, he predicted, will increase tremendously.

"State street through the loop district now is one of the world's most famous thoroughfares," Mason declared. "This improvement is going to make way for its rejuvenation north of the loop."

150 Property Owners Object.

About 150 property owners have filed objections to the widening and 25 cases were given a preliminary call yesterday. Judge Mangan overruled the objections of eleven attorneys who did not appear. The other cases he continued until next Monday which he set as the first actual trial date.

Judge Mangan granted attorneys for the objectors time to view documents introduced by the city yesterday. These include the State street bridge, unified transit, subway, and bond issue ordinances and various state and federal permits.

The first hearing on the subway improvement has been set for next Thursday. It was indicated that most of the same property owners objecting to the widening will file objections to the subway. The proceedings on both improvements will be in Judge Mangan's court.

LOOP STORE HELD UP AT NOON

Crowd Is Unaware

Two masked robbers entered the Spaulding Dress company store in the arcade of the Palmer house at State and Monroe streets just before noon yesterday and took $408 from the cash drawer after forcing the manager, Harry Brand of 1537 Lunt avenue, and a clerk, Miss Sue Tilds, 4116 George street, into the rear of the store. They also took the purse of Miss Tilds, containing a small amount of money. The pair escaped into the crowds outside the store.

TELLS OF STUDY TO GIVE SUBWAY PLENTY OF AIR

Chicago subway patrons will enjoy plenty of fresh air, warm in winter and cool in summer, Prof. A. C. Willard of the University of Illinois told 300 members of the Illinois chapter of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers at a dinner at the Hotel Sherman last night.

Prof. Willard, who designed the ventilating system of the Holland tunnel under the Hudson river, has for several months been conducting experiments with plans for the State street tube.

"We believe that we have almost perfected a system which will make the Chicago subway the most comfortable in the world," Prof. Willard said. "Heretofore the objective has been to furnish adequate air only for respiration. We are thinking more of bodily comfort and striving to make the air not only breathable but neither excessively hot or cold."

Five fan houses will be built adjacent to the subway right of way between Roosevelt road and Chicago avenue, Prof. Willard explained. The motor driven fans will draw in the air from points 20 feet above the street level and it will be carried to air shafts distributed along the platforms. The air will flow out through the station stairways.

HINDU STUDENT BEHEADED; BODY FLUNG IN RIVER

Rio Vista, Cal., March 9.—(AP)—Sant Ram Pande, 32, Hindu student of the University of California, whose headless body was found last week in the Sacramento river near here, was killed, authorities believed today, because he undertook solution of 13 Hindu murders out of gratitude to a wealthy patron.

Tonight three suspects, William Singh, Shaiga Singh, and Nagahar Singh, were found hiding in a barn near the Sacramento river. In the barn officers also found a harrow, one side of which was weighted with a tractor wheel identical with the one attached to Pande's body as an anchor.

A wealthy Hindu merchant of Marysville, Cal., had sent Pande to the university and paid his expenses. The name of the merchant was withheld by the authorities, who feared he might be in danger.

The thirteen murders were committed in northern California since 1927 and were due, authorities said, to political and economic causes.

INDICT LUKE LEA AND CALDWELL IN BANK INQUIRY

Face Both State and U.S. Charges.

Nashville, Tenn., March 9.—(AP)—Indictments brought today against three men whose names have been closely linked with Tennessee's financial and political structures climaxed legislative and grand jury investigations into the collapse of several banking houses last November. More than $1,500,000 in state funds was on deposit in the banks that crashed.

Federal indictments returned at Greenville charged Rogers Caldwell, president of the defunct investment house of Caldwell & Co.; Col. Luke Lea, Nashville publisher and political leader, and J. Basil Ramsey, president of the closed Holston Union National bank at Knoxville, with violating the national banking laws in connection with the bank's transactions.

State Indictments Returned.

Shortly after these indictments had become public the Davidson county grand jury here returned two true bills against Caldwell in connection with operations of Caldwell & Co. and the Bank of Tennessee, a subsidiary. Caldwell made bond of $50,000 furnished by his 76 year old father, James E. Caldwell, and F. L. Murray, Nashville capitalist and part owner of the Minneapolis baseball club of the American association.

The bond was arranged without the personal appearance of Rogers Caldwell, the 41 year old banker, whose investment firm crashed with $40,000,000 liabilities.

Meanwhile Col. Lea issued a statement, proclaiming innocence of any law violation and declaring he would "await with confidence an early and complete vindication." He said that "for months there has been a campaign to destroy me in every way."

Other State Indictments.

Ramsey also stands charged in five state indictments at Knoxville with fraudulent breach of trust and larceny in connection with operations of the Holston Trust company, an affiliate of the Holston Union National bank.

In two federal indictments the three were charged with conspiracy to violate the national banking laws and with two specific violations of them. They were alleged to have conspired for the commission by Ramsey of a false entry and of a misapplication of the bank's credit. Ramsey was accused of committing the actual acts with Lea and Caldwell aiding and abetting him.

The defendants will be arraigned in May and the date of their trials set. Bond of $25,000 each was fixed.

Binghamton Bankers Indicted.

Binghamton, N. Y., March 9.—(AP)—The officers and directors and two executives of the looted State Bank of Binghamton were named in bench warrants issued following the handing up of a batch of 38 sealed indictments to Supreme Court Justice Riley W. Heath here last Friday, it was announced at the district attorney's office here today.

Four of the directors are charged with falsification of reports to the state banking department, a felony, and the other two are charged with participation as directors in the fraudulent insolvency of a moneyed corporation. Only the directors who were members of the examining committee were indicted on the felony charges, according to the announcement.

Four Felony Indictments.

Thomas J. Mangan, vice president, director, and member of the examining committee of the bank, was named in four felony indictments and in one indictment charging a misdemeanor.

Warrants charging participation as directors in the fraudulent solvency of a moneyed corporation named Andrew J. Horvatt, missing president of the institution; Thomas J. Mangan, Michael J. Horvatt, brother of the president, and an assistant cashier and teller of the bank, and several others.

Forgery, second degree, is charged against Ald. Joseph F. Hidock and Michael J. Horvatt.

INDICTED FOR BANK CRASH

LUKE LEA.

CANDIDATE WHO SWORE ON RADIO MUST GO TO JAIL

San Francisco, Cal., March 9.—(AP)—For using "profane language" over the radio, Robert G. Duncan of Portland, Ore., must serve six months' imprisonment and pay a $500 fine, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today.

The decision upholds the right of the government to regulate the use of language in broadcasting and to impose penalties on radio speakers who employ profane, indecent, or obscene language on the air. Duncan's conviction was affirmed.

Duncan's utterances were made over station KVEP at Portland while he was campaigning for congressman.

6 WIDOWS FIGHT FOR $200,000,000, SULTAN'S ESTATE

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 9.—(AP)—The Turkish government is preparing notes to Great Britain, France, and Italy contesting the recent rejection by the mixed tribunals of claims by heirs of Sultan Abdul Hamid to his $200,000,000 properties in Mesopotamia and among the oil fields of Palestine, Syria, and Tripoli. The contest is in behalf of six of the sultan's widows, whose citizenship the government recognizes. By a recent cabinet decision the government has turned over to representatives of the heirs all the sultan's property deeds, heretofore kept among the state archives.

CITY STRATEGIC CONVENTION SITE, BRUNDAGE SAYS

G. O. P. Needs Illinois to Win, His View.

The strategic political advantages of Chicago as the place for the Republican national convention in 1932 were pointed out yesterday by former Attorney General Edward J. Brundage, a Republican leader in city and state politics. Chicago is the logical city for the convention, he declared.

"It has been demonstrated repeatedly that a Republican presidential nominee to carry the nation must carry Illinois," said Mr. Brundage. "It is not only a pivotal state itself but it is the center of the Mississippi valley, which is of utmost importance to the Republican party in a presidential election.

Would Be Aid to Party.

"There is no city other than Chicago which has this strategic political location. Illinois has recently elected a Democratic senator. It must be swung back into the G. O. P. column and a long step in this direction would be to bring the convention to Chicago."

Mr. Brundage said he foresees "complete harmony" in the local Republican ranks before 1932. The turbulent factionalism of the last few years should be displaced by a united party in city and state long before the convention, he stated.

Want Thompson Eliminated.

Although Mr. Brundage did not mention the mayoral election, other Republican leaders have expressed the view that one of the essentials for local harmony will be the elimination of Mayor Thompson. It is also well known in Republican circles that Thompson's support of a Democratic senatorial nominee and his attacks upon President Hoover have discredited him with the Republican powers in Washington and that his reelection would be a blow to Chicago's hopes of getting the convention.

Plans of the Chicago Association of Commerce to form a citizens' committee to go after both the Republican and Democratic conventions were being developed yesterday and definite activity will start within the next month. Officials of the business group have already made preliminary overtures to national leaders of the two parties.

IDENTIFY AGED VICTIM KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

The body of a man who was killed Friday evening when he was struck by an automobile at Augusta street and Ashland avenue was identified at the county morgue last night as that of John Javor, 73 years old, who formerly lived in a room at 1455 Cornell street.

Harry Kochman, 2632 Winona avenue, was the driver of the car which struck the aged man.

No deaths due to automobile accidents were reported yesterday in Cook county and the total since Jan. 1 remained at 231.

HAM AND EGGS IN RUSSIA $1.75, AND VERY LITTLE HAM

Don't Ask for Toast; You Might Land in Jail.

Here is the third of a series of articles on Russia by Henry Wales, Paris correspondent of The Tribune, who is now touring the soviet republics. Mr. Wales says soviet officials have informed him that he may write without restrictions. "They only request that I write what I see and make a sincere effort to confirm hearsay," he adds.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MOSCOW, Feb. 14.—[By Mail.]—Life is no sinecure in Russia even for foreigners. Besides the ever-existent shortages in food and clothing and other supplies, there is the wrangle over hotel accommodations, and worse than all, in winter there is the cold problem.

Under a new edict to conserve the fuel supply, it is prohibited to maintain the temperature in hotel and other public rooms higher than 53 degrees Fahrenheit. And besides that, the local organizations give prizes to janitors who make the best showing in economizing on fuel.

There is no thermometer in my room, but as I write I can see my breath every time I exhale, and stiff icy blasts penetrate through the cracks in the putty that seal up the edges of the inner set of the double windows in the room.

Government Runs Hotels.

The fuel crisis is caused by transportation problems. The authorities find it difficult to haul in the vast amount of wood necessary to heat the capital, and on top of that labor for cutting and splitting the logs is scarce, even with wood fetching $31.50 a cord delivered.

Just three hotels exist for foreigners here, and like all other property they belong to the state and are operated by managers for the soviet government. They are the Savoy, where I am; the Grand, a huge structure facing the main gateway to Red square and opposite the Kremlin, and the Metropole, another large building in front of the opera house.

All three are jammed and have long waiting lists. The only way to get in is through government intervention. The Savoy and the Grand are packed with American engineers, some Germans, and a portion of the staff of the British embassy. The latter are here waiting for the renovation of their official quarters. The engineers are waiting for a break in the weather to proceed to the various projects on which they are employed in the interior.

Building Is Paralyzed.

During the winter the extreme cold paralyzes all building construction, and work on the different units of the five year plan cannot start again until April.

I wired ahead for reservations and friends in Moscow had called at the hotel to arrange accommodations, but when I arrived with my pile of baggage there was nothing doing. I finally obtained a cot in an unheated room for the first night, and it was fortunate I had my own blankets to reinforce the bed covering or I should have frozen.

Next day the foreign office officials at the Narkomindel telephoned the manager, asking him to give me quarters, and I received a nice room with alcove and bath, price $15 a day.

Things come high in soviet Russia; a pot of tea without milk or even lemon, but with plenty of sugar and hot water, costs 67 cents. That's all I take for breakfast, as the bread is nothing to brag about and you can get put in jail for even asking for toast. And the floor waiter says there is no jam.

Ham and Eggs Cost $1.75.

Ham and eggs, three eggs and mighty little ham, costs $1.75, and a pot of fierce coffee and watered, condensed milk is 75 cents. The coffee has a quaint flavor of chocolate, which is extremely original for Java and may be due to the fact that cocoa is made in the same pot for people addicted to that.

Downstairs the hotel has opened a swell restaurant in the premises formerly occupied by Dr. Hammer, the American who obtained the pencil monopoly in Russia just after the revolution and who was recently bought out by the government. The room has been decorated tastefully, and the head waiter wears a black suit and the ordinary waiters wear white jackets. An orchestra plays during luncheon, which starts at 3 o'clock.

Caviar costs $2.90, which is more than it is priced at in Ciro's in Paris and about the same as at the Savoy in London. Other dishes are more reasonable, especially in view of the large size orders which are served. Soup and fish and meat, the latter almost exclusively in the form of wiener schnitzel, and a glass of tea, with tip comes to about $5. No tips at the frontier, and only a modest gratuity for the sleeping car porter, but here the regulation 10 per cent for service or you better not come again.

Drinks Are Expensive.

For dessert there is jelly at 75 cents or a tasty roly poly sort of cake with jam between the layers and sugar sifted on top that costs $1.

Wine and other drinks are expensive. A tiny little carafe of vodka costs three rubles and ninety kopecks, just under $2. This is a good deal more than in La Maisonette Russe in Paris. Reislinger is priced in the Grand hotel restaurant at $25 a bottle. Even the local Russian wines from the Crimea, heavy, sweetish stuff, costs $11 a bottle and up.

Hotel and restaurant prices have nearly trebled in the three years since my former visit, but no kicks are registered. Those who can afford it are glad to get food and drink at any price.

RUSSIA CELEBRATES THE EMANCIPATION OF WOMEN WORKERS

MOSCOW, March 9.—(AP)—Russia's emancipation of women was celebrated today in "International Women's day" with parades and other demonstrations. The principal appeal made was for additional women to enter the movement for the industrialization of the soviet union.

At present women are on an equal status with men in many ways. The all union congress of soviets consists of about 20 per cent women delegates from all parts of the union.

From the beginning of communism efforts have been made to induce women to renounce the kitchen and home work for factories. In 1926 there were 643,000 women in industries and in 1930 there were 881,000. Last year they numbered 30 per cent of all industrial workers.

During the last five years women's wages have been almost doubled. Pre-revolution differences in the wages of women and men were almost 50 per cent, but last year the ratio was raised from 70 to 80 per cent.

14 RUSSIANS GET 5 TO 10 YEAR JAIL TERMS FOR PLOT

MOSCOW, March 9.—(AP)—Russia's second great counterrevolutionary trial in four months, with fourteen prominent Mensheviks accused of anti-bolshevistic activities, ended today, with the defendants receiving sentences ranging from five to ten years in prison.

Death sentences had been asked for seven of them and all had confessed, but it had been generally believed throughout the hearing that no one would be shot. The sentences imposed today may even be commuted.

The men have 48 hours in which to appeal to the presidium of the all-union congress, the only body with power to commute their terms. It is expected some commutation will be decreed.

RUSSIAN TASK GIVEN STIMSON INCITES GOSSIP

Making Intensive Study of Soviet Methods.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Widespread speculation as to whether the Hoover administration plans to change its policy toward soviet Russia was provoked today by the disclosure that Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson is conducting an intensive study of the Russian question in all its various phases.

HENRY L. STIMSON.
[Acme Photo.]

In some quarters the view was expressed that the outcome of the inquiry may be American recognition of the soviet. Another suggestion heard in diplomatic and official circles was that perhaps President Hoover is considering a stronger anti-Russian policy, which might conceivably result in further restrictions against soviet goods.

While state department officials frowned on the idea that Mr. Stimson's latest move forecast any important change of policy, indications tonight were that the secretary would not have embarked on such an extensive exploration of the Russian question without having been directed to do so by President Hoover.

Pressure for Recognition.

Much pressure has been brought on the President by influential groups in the United States to grant diplomatic recognition to Russia, and in some quarters the view is held that this may have had something to do with the Stimson inquiry.

William R. Castle, acting secretary of state in the absence of Mr. Stimson, said today that the study had no significance beyond the fact that the secretary desired to inform himself more closely on the soviet problem. Since becoming secretary, Mr. Castle pointed out, Mr. Stimson has been devoting his time to disarmament, Latin-American affairs, and other problems, leaving no time to study Russia.

The inference left by state department officials was that no immediate change in American policy towards Russia is in prospect. No consideration, it was said, would be given to the establishment of a separate division for Russia in the state department. Reports that an assistant secretary of state would be appointed to handle Russian affairs was discounted.

Other Possible Causes.

It is realized that a number of events may be responsible for Secretary Stimson's intentions. The revelations of the Fish anti-communist committee, the treasury's difficulties over Russian dumping in this country, the farm board's concern over Russian manipulations on the Chicago Board of Trade, and the embarrassments the state department experienced in its efforts to assure peace between Russia and China over the Chinese Eastern railway, it is presumed, have all contributed to the decision for intensive revision of the whole Russian problem.

American policy as now defined is that there can be no recognition of Russia before the soviet government agrees to recognize official and private obligations to this country and cease propaganda intended to overthrow the American government. Repudiated Russian obligations to American citizens total 400 million dollars and there is a credit of 187 million dollars which was extended by the United States to the Kerensky government.

In the soviet fiscal year which ended last October American exports totaled 145 million dollars and imports 32 million dollars, or 28 per cent more than ever before. Most of this was handled through the Amtorg Trading corporation in New York, a soviet agency. The policy of the United States has always been to encourage trade with Russia, even though denying diplomatic recognition.

WABASH

MICHAEL MACIAG.

Michael Maciag, 40 years old, was found dead yesterday in his home in the rear of his grocery and meat market at 2611 South Paulina street. He had been shot through the head.

His widow, Mrs. Jennie Maciag, who discovered the body, told the police that she had not heard a shot, but ran to the room when she heard Maciag fall to the floor. He had no known enemies, she added. As no weapon was found in the room and the cash register had not been looted, the motive for the supposed murder was puzzling.

In searching the place, however, the police found a pistol that had been fired recently in a rubbish heap in the basement. Mrs. Maciag then admitted that her husband had committed suicide and that she had hidden the weapon and tried to make it appear that he had been murdered. He had been despondent over illness.

"I didn't want my children to know that their father had taken his own life," she explained.

LEGISLATURE TO RESUME TODAY AFTER HOLIDAY

Senate Expected to Vote Dry Repeal Next Week.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Springfield, Ill., March 9.—[Special.] Prohibition, reapportionment, interest on gas tax funds, and reform of Cook county's taxing machinery top the program for the tenth week of the general assembly, which reconvenes tomorrow. Next in line is the cross in the circle issue which has taken a group of senators, headed by Senator Richard J. Barr, hotfoot to Boston and Albany to study what happens when party circles are eliminated from the ballots.

SENATOR RICHARD J. BARR.

The researchers are due to arrive Wednesday in time for an afternoon hearing in license committee upon the O'Grady repealer of the state prohibition law which already has passed the house. Senator Frank McDermott's repealer, an identical bill, also is before the committee. A controversy over parentage of the repealer may be settled by giving it a hyphen—the O'Grady-McDermott bill. Both wets and drys are to be heard and the repealer is all set to be reported out of committee by Chairman Victor P. Michel of Peoria.

Want Referendum Clause.

The repealer may get to a vote in the senate next week, although this is not certain. Efforts are expected to attack a referendum clause which the liberals deem quite superfluous in view of the referenda already had upon the question of repeal. Liberals tonight counted 7 votes for the bill, while the drys say one or two of these may be prevailed upon to pull the ancient trick of ducking from the chamber when the roll call is taken.

Lieut. Gov. Sterling, to guard against this has proclaimed that when the repealer is put to a vote 51 senators will be in their seats, all lobbyists will be chased off the floor and the doors locked.

After a recount of noses tonight, Liberals declare the repealer may get 28 to 30 votes in the senate. Some senators, they report, are prepared to vote for it in a bandwagon after it gets the requisite 26 votes, and will support it provided theirs is not the deciding vote.

Senate Is Dawdling.

Meanwhile, even among the senators, sentiment is being expressed that the session is dawdling too much. Voices are upraised declaiming that the senate is keeping specialists' hours, meeting at 4 p. m. on Tuesday, 10 a. m. on Wednesday, then ducking out for the early afternoon trains, according to established custom. A disposition to hold matters back as usual, especially the search and seizure repealer mandate, until the Chicago mayoralty election is over, is bringing criticism. Some assembly leaders say it's high time for the legislature to snap out of it.

Tomorrow the house judiciary committee is to hold a hearing on the Burns resolution memorializing congress to submit the repeal of the 18th amendment to the states.

The remap question is likely to precipitate a lively session if Elmer Schnackenberg [Rep., Cook] calls for a vote tomorrow on his joint resolution for a committee of five senators and five representatives to draw up "a fair and just" reapportionment.

House judiciary committee reported it out favorably last week, when some members from growing downstate districts voted with the Cook county members.

During the week, too, one interesting hearing is to be held upon the resolution of Howard L. Doyle [Dem., Decatur] for a committee of five house members to investigate why the state treasury is not drawing interest on gas tax collections.

FIGHT FOR CHILD

The paternity of 3 year old Maxine Hall, 3502 Cortland avenue, will be the basis of argument at a hearing today on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus before Circuit Judge A. W. Summers. The petition was filed yesterday by Edward Entringer, a farmer of Dell Rapids, S. D., second husband of the child's mother, Mrs. Frieda Hall Entringer.

Entringer alleges in his petition that his wife deserted him six weeks ago, leaving an 18 month old baby, but taking Maxine. Attorney Victor Frohlich, representing the mother, said that he will declare in court that Entringer is not the father of the child.

Mrs. Entringer, according to the attorney, married Roy Hall in March of 1926 and left him a year later, to live with Entringer. The baby was born six months after the separation, the attorney said, and in 1928 the mother divorced Hall and was married to Entringer. The attorney said that blood tests will be taken if necessary to prove that Hall and not Entringer is the child's father.

CHINESE TROOPS MUTINY; REFUSE TO ATTACK REDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
PEIPING, March 9.—The alleged dilatory tactics of Nanking against the communist forces is rapidly widening the breach among government leaders. The growth of the Red movement of the Yangtze river, particularly in Kiangsi and Kiantung provinces, is viewed with general alarm.

Heavy casualties are reported in fighting in Honan province, where communist troops have concentrated along the Peiping-Hankow railway. It is reported that an expedition of loyal soldiers sent from Hankow to aid in crushing the communist troops have refused to attack their former comrades.

Troops ordered into Kiangsi province against the communists are dickering with President Chiang Kai-shek over their pay and the question of financing the expedition. Soviet agents are reported to have inflamed natives of outer Mongolia to rise against native princes and have seized their property.

500 AT RALLY OF G. O. P. CHIEFS AT SPRINGFIELD

Johnson, Carlstrom, and Swanson Speak.

Springfield, Ill., March 9.—[Special.]—The spirit of individual responsibility for good government was exalted as one need of the times before the John Ericsson Republican league of Illinois today by the "big three" of Illinois law enforcement officials.

They were Oscar E. Carlstrom, attorney general; George E. Q. Johnson, U. S. attorney at Chicago, and John Swanson, state's attorney of Cook county—all three of Swedish origins.

The presence of the big three was one of the features of the 37th annual convention of the league, which ended tonight with a banquet at the arsenal with 500 guests, at which Gov. L. L. Emmerson was toastmaster. State dignitaries and Republican party leaders were out in force.

An address on "Republicanism" was made by Edwin P. Morrow, former governor of Kentucky, while Senator Otis F. Glenn spoke on "John Ericsson."

A Patriotic Program.

Following a pilgrimage this morning to Lincoln's tomb, at which Edward C. Westman of Chicago, dean of past presidents, paid a tribute to the emancipator, the delegates held a public meeting in the Centennial building. There was a patriotic program.

"The Spirit of 1776" was represented by Herbert B. Henkel, Jay Akers, and Eugene P. Lauher. They advanced to the platform with fife and drums, and were followed by Messers. Carlstrom, Johnson and Swanson. On the rostrum were A. C. Best, department commander of the Illinois G. A. R.; James A. Holland, representing the Spanish war veterans, and Floyd E. Pierce, representing the world war veterans. Mrs. S. N. Rittenhouse sang appropriate songs.

The constitution was the theme of Attorney General Carlstrom.

"We reconsecrate ourselves today to the preservation of this document," he said. "The greatest gift of America to the world." Dwelling upon liberty, Mr. Carlstrom said:

Scandinavians Liberty Lovers.

"The United States gave Texas liberty from the tyranny of Mexico; Lincoln fixed all the stars in the flag at the point of the sword; we freed Cuba from the tyranny of Spain, and in the world war we demonstrated that right ever will stand above might."

United States Attorney Johnson said for 1,000 years the love of liberty has been in the blood and souls of Scandinavians.

"Let us all assume an individual responsibility for good government," he said. "Democracy and good government rest upon participation by the citizenship in the affairs of politics and government."

State's Attorney Swanson spoke in similar strain. "Liberty imposes its obligations upon the individual," he said, "to perform his share in government."

KING CAROL FIRES BANKING CHIEF IN PARIS LOAN ROW

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 9.—(AP)—The president of the Rumanian National bank, M. R. Williams, was deprived of his office today and former Secretary General Angelescu was appointed in his stead.

The action, most drastic in the history of the National bank, was taken by King Carol. It was regarded as greatly strengthening the position of Premier Mironescu and his cabinet, which has been unsteady in recent days during negotiations for a French loan.

The ousted bank president opposed continuation of the mandate under which a French financial adviser was maintained by the National bank.

AUSTRIA ORDERS ARCHDUKE SWEAR HIS ALLEGIANCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
VIENNA, March 9.—Archduke Leopold, who returned recently from New York, where he stood trial in connection with the Napoleon diamond necklace affair, in which he was indicted for larceny, will either have to leave Austria or give his oath of allegiance to the republic. The Austrian law stipulates that only Hapsburgs who renounce all of their privileges are allowed to live here. When asked by the chief of police whether or not he would swear allegiance to the republic, he replied:

"I realize that the Hapsburg restoration is hopeless, but nevertheless I must think it over."

The necklace affair occurred a year ago. The Archduchess Maria Theresa's $400,000 heirloom was sold to a New York jeweler for $60,000. Of this sum the Archduchess, Leopold's aunt, received only $7,250, the remainder going for fees attending the sale. She accused Leopold of having made off with part of the money. During the trial it was found that Leopold had merely been an agent in the sale. The gems were returned to Theresa.

SPRING COATS

They are called "dramatic" collars because they are adjustable to the role you wish to play. But that is not the only reason coats this spring are interesting. The furs are soft and flattering, the silhouette individual—for coats wrap around to fit the figure. Fabrics are crepey woolens, lightweight yet warm, and sleeve detail takes on a new importance.

WITH FOX FUR, $110

WITH ERMINE, $100

A scarf collar, which may be worn high or open. This Chongella cloth coat accents its fitted waistline with diagonal button closing. It may be had in black with white ermine, or in skipper blue with peach or white ermine. In sizes for women.

INFORMAL EVENING FROCKS

Decorously Decorative In Ladylike Fashion

To be decorative—in a ladylike fashion—that is the chief requisite of informal evening frocks. There is a certain sophistication about from their short sleeves to their graceful longer skirts, which make them suitable for so many kinds of evenings.

With Lace Yoke, $45

A silk crepe frock, in Patou's straightened silhouette, with a low-placed flare from knife-pleated godets. There's a soft, crushable sash belt, a deep tuck to accent the hipline. It comes in Brienne blue, black, rose. Women's sizes.

With Net Yoke, $65

Cut and seamed with precision, the skirt of this silk crepe frock is fitted to swathe the hips. Circular flounces animate the short sleeves, while the flowers give a most demure touch. In light blue, black, gray. Misses' and women's sizes.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs and colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(Adv.)

FRANCE BUILDING BIG WAR MACHINE, BERLIN CHARGES

Disarmament Claims of Paris Challenged.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 9.—Wilhelm Groener, minister of war, today demanded equal rights with other nations for Germany in the matter of armaments, and protested against the recent assertion of the French war minister, Andre Maginot, that Germany must remain disarmed while her neighbors are heavily armed.

ANDRE MAGINOT. [Paul Thompson Photo.]

Gen. Groener, speaking before the reichstag budget committee in connection with the army budget, referred to the Versailles treaty, which provided for German disarmament as the first step toward general disarmament by the other powers. He charged that France had not fulfilled her obligations under the treaty and demanded that she do so. He reiterated Germany's call for a serious, scientific, and impartial international court to pass on the question of war guilt.

"Germany has nothing to fear from the verdict of an impartial international body," he said. "On the contrary, an authoritative statement of truth will definitely destroy the foundation of the treaties based on German war guilt."

Challenges French Claim.

"M. Maginot asserts that France has disarmed partially," Gen. Groener declared. "That is not the case. The reorganization to which France has submitted her army has modernized and increased its striking power. This is not disarmament.

"Do thousands of tanks, airplanes, guns, and tens of thousands of machine guns look like disarmament? The number of units which could be armed with the material on hand can be deduced from the fact that the number of generals and higher staff officers has been increased 50 per cent, despite the reduced numbers of peace time divisions. Military expenses in France have mounted steadily, until now she is spending $728,000,000 on her army.

"The value of an army is not based on the length of service of its men, but on the intensity of their training, the strength of the reserves, and the quality of war material. All of this the French army has to the highest degree.

Same Strength as Before War.

"In 1912 the French army consisted of 640,000 men. Now the men serve only one year, but the strength of the army is almost the same. Almost half of the French army, or 230,000 men, serve overtime enough for them to become a thoroughly efficient and trained body. New officials have taken all the routine work off the shoulders of the soldiers. And 80,000 civilians are helping.

"France has not begun to disarm. On the contrary, she has the strongest and best prepared war instrument in the world."

Denies Police Are "Military."

Gen. Groener refuted the charge, made recently in the French chamber, that German police and customs men form a military organization.

"The 105,000 police and our few thousand customs men were all organized by the inter-allied military control commissions, who saw to it that they did not become military," he said.

Gen. Groener asked the reichstag for $162,550,000 for the German army and navy during the coming budget year. This is slightly over six per cent of the total budget. German statisticians declare that 96 per cent of France's expenditures are for her army and navy.

Gen. Groener said this sum is the absolute minimum with which he can guarantee the safety of the country. He declared that he was not in a position to make the slightest concession toward a reduction.

COMMONS VOTES O. K. OF LEAGUE ARBITRATION ACT

Discusses if U. S. Will Join Geneva.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 9.—Swayed by another olive branch in the hands of Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson, the house of commons tonight approved a resolution that the British government should accede to the general act for pacific settlement of international disputes passed by the assembly of the league of nations two and one-half years ago. The vote was 231 to 139.

Briefly, tonight's action commits Britain to submit all disputes not settled through ordinary diplomatic channels to arbitration. The general act is considered an extension of the optional clause, which Great Britain signed with reservations in 1929. The optional clause dealt only with the settlement of justifiable disputes.

Reservations Are Attached.

The house approved the general act, however, with reservations which bar the general act from being operative in cases of dispute between members of the British commonwealth, between Great Britain and nations not members of the league, and in cases which arose prior to Britain's accession to the act.

Sir Austen Chamberlain led a Conservative onslaught against the measure. He declared that the creation of a new body at Geneva would only plunge the league into incessant litigation and would create additional surfaces for international friction. He charged that the act violates the province of the league council, whose authority, he declared, would be diminished.

Mr. Henderson, however, pointed out that the French senate last week accepted the act and that Italy is considering it. The Liberals supported him.

Discuss U. S. Adhesion.

During today's debate the house discussed the question of American adhesion to the league of nations. Sir Austen declared that in his opinion the United States never would join. Sir Norman Angell, Laborite, challenged this view, declaring:

"I have lived ten years in the United States and I am not at all sure that she will not increasingly engage in international coöperation which will end in her membership in the league of nations. There are powerful forces in America in favor of increasing coöperation with the international organization and with the league."

Joliet Prisoner Found Dead in Solitary Confinement

Joseph Coakley, 34 years old, who was sent to the Joliet penitentiary last October after he had been sentenced to one to twenty years for robbery in Chicago, was found dead yesterday in a solitary confinement cell at the prison. He had been undergoing punishment since Thursday for infraction of disciplinary rules. Dr. C. J. Carlin, prison physician, said that death was due to a blood clot and that it could not be attributed in any way to the solitary confinement. No marks of violence were found during a post-mortem examination of the body, he added.

BRITISH TORIES TO BOYCOTT NEW PARLEY ON INDIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 9.—The Conservative party will refuse to participate in any further sessions of the round table conference to be held in India. This was revealed tonight at a meeting of the party's India committee.

The Tories' decision was announced in the committee's resolution that it "welcomes the decision of Stanley Baldwin, that the Conservative party cannot be represented at any further round table conference to be held in India, as is foreshadowed by the government."

Mr. Baldwin made no such statement in his speech on India last Friday. It is understood that such a resolution as that adopted tonight was first passed by the committee last week.

What the NEW HUMIDOR PACK

means to Camel Smokers*

COMPARE a package of Camels with any other cigarette and note the difference in the technique of packing.

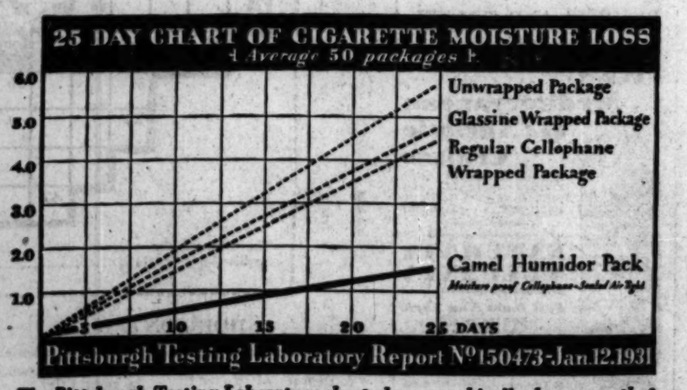
We call this outer shell the Humidor Pack. It differs from the ordinary cellophane pack and while it is egg-shell thin, it means a lot in terms of cigarette enjoyment.

It means, for instance, that evaporation is checkmated and that Salt Lake City can now have as good Camels as Winston-Salem.



The Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

While Camels are made of a blend of the choicest Turkish and mellowest domestic tobaccos, it is highly important, if you are to get full benefit of this quality, that these cigarettes come to you with their natural moisture content still intact.

Aside from cheap tobacco, two factors in a cigarette can mar the smoker's pleasure:

Dry tobacco, robbed of its natural moisture by scorching or by evaporation gives off a hot smoke that burns the throat with every inhalation.

Check the difference yourself

It is a very simple matter to check the difference between Humidor Packed Camels and other ordinary dry cigarettes.

First of all you can feel the difference as you roll the cigarettes between your fingers. Camels are full-bodied and pliable. A dry cigarette crumbles under pressure and sheds tobacco.

If you will hold a cigarette to each ear and roll them with your fingers you can actually hear the difference.

The real test of course is to smoke them. And here's where the new Humidor Pack proves a real blessing to the smoker.

As you inhale the cool, fragrant smoke from a Camel you get all the mildness and magic of the fine tobaccos of which it is blended.

But when you draw in the hot smoke from a dried cigarette see how flat and brackish it is by comparison and how harsh it is to your throat.

If you are a regular Camel smoker you have already noticed what proper condition of the cigarette means.

But if you haven't tried Camels in the new Humidor Pack you have a new adventure with Lady Nicotine in store.

Switch your affections for just one day, then go back to your old love tomorrow if you can.

ALL COMFORTS OF HOME IN NEW JAIL FOR WOMEN

Has Little That Suggests Damp Prison Walls.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—The jail house blues have lost their moan and the lady wags along Broadway are singing "Happy Days," for the home town women's prison has gone Ritzy.

There is a new architectural sight in Greenwich village that might have been built as a setting for "The Bird in the Gilded Cage" and an inspection today of the almost completed "women's house of detention" revealed that it would be far sweeter to live in this modern "jail" than to work and pine away in a boarding house.

Its terraced brown brick walls are ornamented in the Manhattan manner and there is nothing about them to suggest the damp gloom of prison walls. In fact, the jail looks like a high class apartment house and instead of having a depressing effect on land values in the neighborhood it has sent them soaring.

The new prison was designed to house the city's wayward women.

Provide Changes of Gowns.

The 12,000 or more newcomers expected to register there for varying intervals this season will find something more than the comforts of home. There will be none of the drab gray uniforms, but instead something in bright colored prints for week days. Then, on Sunday morning the sisters of the wayward circle will change to prouder garments.

There was dungeon gloom in the old pile of stone that occupied the site, and two women often shared the same narrow cell. In the new "jail" there are no cells—they call them rooms and rightly, too.

The rooms are about the size of a bedroom in a first class rooming house and each has a window looking out on the street. The window has panes instead of bars, and through its translucent glass one may look out but not in.

Plenty of Room Conveniences.

Inside is a bed with a mattress, a table and chair, a wash basin with hot and cold running water, a lavatory, shelf and clothes hanger. The walls are of buff terra cotta and the floors of a rubber substance.

There has been little done to guard against the escape of a prisoner, but possibly the officials rightly reasoned, why should any one want to escape? The one protective device built into the structure is not to prevent escape but to prevent the passing of messages or articles in or out of the window panels.

There is true Brahmin cast in this jail house, for the inmates will be segregated to prevent the contact of one type of transgressor with another.

There is a library of 5,000 books for the studious prisoners and for recreation the inmates have, besides the floor halls, a large roof garden. High above the street handball, tennis, and even miniature golf will be played.

"SHIPMENT MISTAKE" WILL BE DENISON'S RUM CASE DEFENSE

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—Attorneys for Edward E. Denison, former representative from Illinois, who is charged with violation of the prohibition law, announced today their defense would be based on the contention that a "mistake in shipments" was responsible for sending a liquor laden suitcase and trunk to their client's house office building room in January, 1929.

Prohibition agents found the suitcase in a leaking condition in the Union station after Denison had returned from a trip to Panama with his nephew, Charles Lane of St. Louis. They also found liquor in a trunk in Denison's office.

Denison, whose term ended last Wednesday, was indicted on Nov. 19, 1929. He was to have been placed on trial in the District of Columbia Supreme court today, but the trial was postponed until Wendesday.

United States Attorney Irvin Goldstein and John J. Sirica, assistant, will conduct the prosecution. The former told the court today he would have seven witnesses, including the agents who found the suitcase and trunk.

Most of those appearing for Denison will be character witnesses. Among them will be Representative Yates, representative at large and former governor of Illinois.

Denison was defeated in the last election while serving his eighth term in congress. He voted for the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

WILLS JENNINGS RICHES BEFORE HIS CLAIM FAILS

Edward C. Koester, who was indicted for forgery and conspiracy after he posed as the son of Edward B. Jennings and attempted to gain possession of his $7,000,000 estate, left what he hoped to get out of the Jennings estate to 33 relatives, it was revealed yesterday when his will was filed in the Probate court. Koester was penniless when he died on Jan. 10. His will values the Jennings estate at $1,500,000.

Under his will Koester leaves the bulk of his imaginary estate to two cousins, Roy and Dorothy Hoffman, 222 North Karlov avenue. To four other cousins Koester leaves $5 each to buy a book entitled, "How to Treat Human Beings."

SHOOTS WIDOW BALKING AT DEATH PACT, KILLS SELF

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Daisy Dycus, a pretty 24 year old widow of five weeks, was wounded seriously today by Jim McClure, 59, a photographer, who attempted to enter into a death pact with her before killing himself.

The body of McClure, shot through the head, was found in his bedroom back of his studio shortly after Mrs. Dycus, bleeding from head wounds, ran screaming down the stairs. In the room was a collection of writings on suicide and death. McClure's hands were crossed. There was a pistol on his stomach and red stains on the floor.

Mysterious Circumstances.

Mrs. Dycus, whose husband, Patrolman Edwin Dycus, died under mysterious circumstances a month ago, was held for further questioning by police after she gave an account of the suicide and the attempt on her life.

McClure called her to his studio, she said, telling her he had a new picture of her. She said that after locking the door he offered her a glass of grape juice, but she declined, suspecting it contained poison. Mrs. Dycus said McClure then shot her twice in the head and she fell unconscious. When she rallied, she said, McClure struck her over the head with the pistol, breaking her nose. She then fled to a physician's office and does not know when McClure was shot.

The coroner returned a verdict of suicide. A month ago he held an inquest on the death of Mrs. Dycus' husband. Police revealed today Dycus' stomach contained poison and this information has been presented to the grand jury. The theory was advanced that Dycus met foul play because he had been carrying on an active campaign against liquor law violators.

Leaves Note to Mother.

McClure, a widower for 20 years, left a note addressed to Mrs. Dycus' mother, Mrs. Bedford Scott of Hilton, Ky., saying:

"Daisy and I are in love and have been engaged, but we can't be married because we wouldn't be happy. So we have decided to die together. I love her so much I don't see how I can kill her, but it will be done some way. I want to be buried in the same grave with her. She mustn't be buried beside her husband."

NEW CRUISER CHICAGO COMMISSIONED; WILL RELIEVE THE TEXAS

Mare Island, Cal., March 9.—(AP)—The new cruiser Chicago, flagship for Admiral J. V. Chase, was commissioned at Mare Island navy yard today.

The Chicago, the second American cruiser of that name to go into service, is the last of the eight 10,000 ton cruisers authorized by congress in 1924. Under command of Capt. Manley H. Simons, who took over the ship with his crew, the Chicago will make a short trial run Wednesday.

Next week she will put to sea to relieve the Texas as Admiral Chase's flagship. She will carry on her decks four airplanes which circled over the fast craft during commissioning ceremonies.

A tablet carrying the seals of the navy and the city of Chicago was unveiled by Miss Elizabeth Britten.

YOUTH MAY BE DEPORTED FOR CHICKEN THEFT

Because his flivver was borrowed by friends for an Oregon campfire feast on stolen chickens, Edwin Chester Gardner, 21 years old, 5707 North Artesian avenue, faces deportation to Canada.

Gardner was born in Canada, the son of an American citizen. He came to the United States in 1926 and until two years ago lived in Yamhill county, Oregon. The license number of the car used by the boys who raided a henroost was traced to Gardner and he was sentenced to ninety days in jail to an accessory to the crime.

Subsequent to his release, the immigration authorities charge, Gardner went to Tia Juana, Mexico, and returned. Stealing chickens is a crime of moral turpitude and reëntering this country after committing such a crime is a deportable offense for aliens.

WIFE DIVORCES FORMER U. OF C. FOOTBALL PLAYER

Samuel E. Hibben Jr., former University of Chicago football player, was divorced yesterday before Circuit Judge Trude by Mrs. Catherine Campbell Hibben, 7422 Chappell avenue. Mrs. Hibben charged cruelty. The couple were married in February of 1925 while both were students at the university. Mrs. Hibben, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Campbell, 7147 Jeffery avenue, was prominent in campus activities and was a member of Mortarboard, women's honorary society. A property settlement was arranged out of court and Mrs. Hibben was awarded the custody of their son, Samuel, 2 years old. Hibben is the son of Attorney Samuel E. Hibben.

The 80 per center -always falling a little short

80 often the difference between winning and losing is so little. Too many people just miss the mark because they are 80 per centers! Not sick—just below par; tired, too quickly spent by a little effort.

Their greatest need is renewed vitality and increased resistance. To build needed vitality, physicians know the value of two protective factors—Vitamins A and D.

Eighty per centers—the people who are under par—may obtain these "building-up" vitamins an agreeable, new way. With Squibb Adex Tablets, a vitamin concentrate of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil!

Before they knew cod-liver oil contained these factors, physicians recommended it to under-par people as a health-builder.

Each tablet contains as much Vitamins A and D as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb cod-liver oil.

Besides improving the general condition of people who are run down, Squibb Adex Tablets help protect against colds. They also ward off certain nose and throat troubles which cause discomfort.

SORE THROATS serious now:

A sore spot no larger than a quarter can spread to the whole throat overnight. Gargle the very moment you feel the least soreness. Physicians recommend Bayer Aspirin for this purpose. It allays all inflammation immediately. It reduces the infection. Just crush three tablets in ½ tumblerful of water, and gargle well. It's a wise plan to take Bayer Aspirin after exposure to bad weather or whenever a cold threatens. If you ever have neuralgia, neuritis, or rheumatism, you should never be without this quick antidote for all such aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless. See that tablets bear the name, thus:

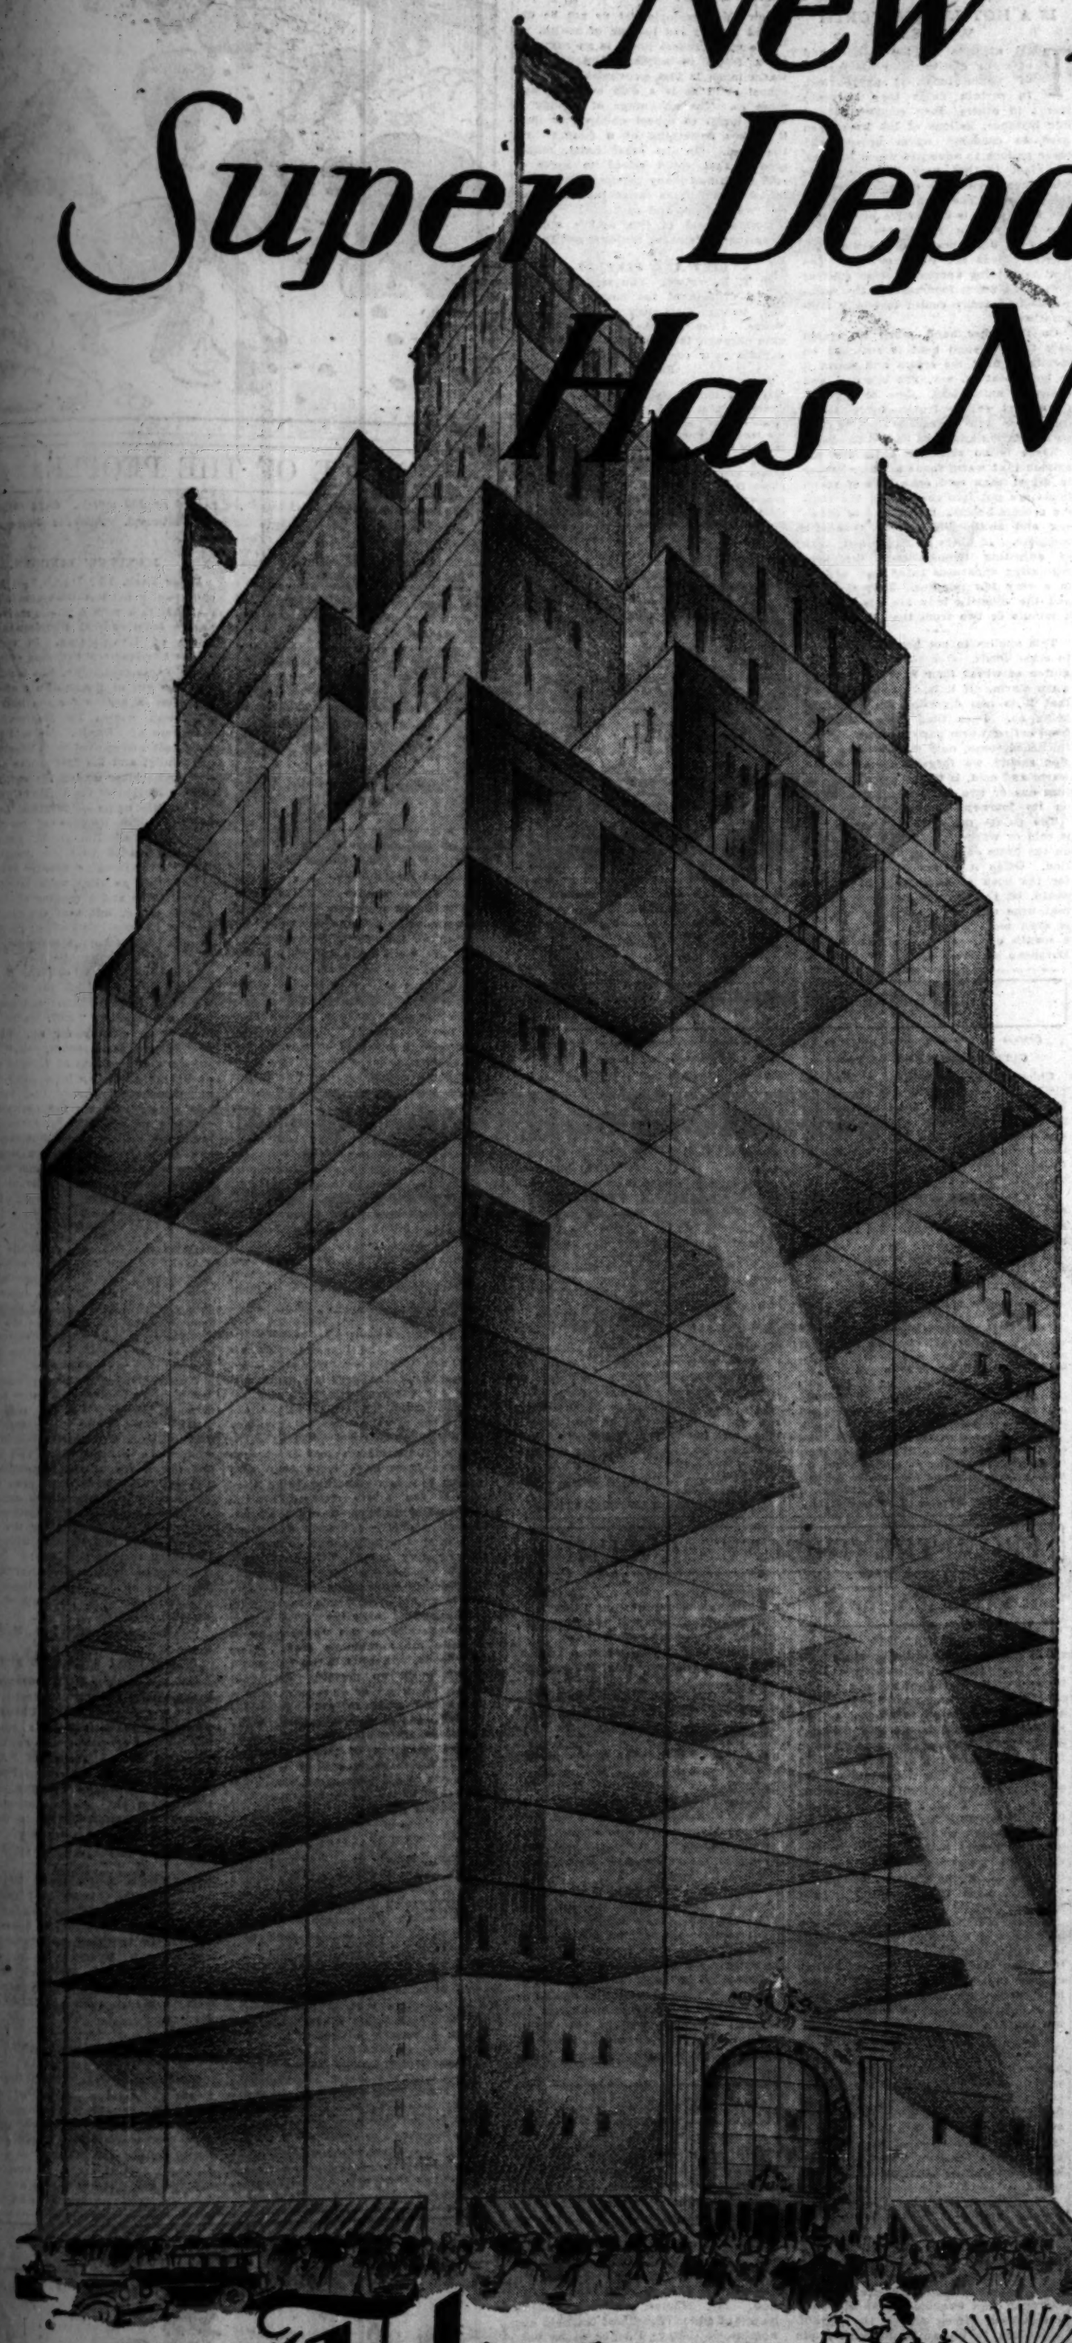
New York's Super Department Store Has No Stock



SUPPOSE that all the great stores in New York got together and established a super-store and sent daily to this colossus their newest, choicest merchandise, their greatest values. Would the public patronize it? The answer is obvious!

For all practical purposes, the people of New York have available just such service. True, they cannot look at the actual merchandise, but they can see adequate pictures of it or read full descriptions. For this is the service The New York Sun offers its readers—a service made possible only because for years The Sun has carried more advertising from more department stores than any other New York newspaper.

Isn't it natural to shop first where the finest selection of merchandise can be found? What is true of a store is equally true of a newspaper. Therefore, when The Sun became New York's greatest shopping center, The Sun's discriminating readers made it New York's most thoroughly shopped newspaper and, in consequence, a most resultful advertising medium for every kind of merchandise or service, sold nationally or locally, that appeals to an intelligent, monied market.

CHICAGO'S INTEREST IN RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION.

The consolidations of the eastern railroads, agreed upon by the railroad managers and given the blessing of Mr. Hoover, have yet to be approved by the interstate commerce commission. The railroads concerned are now preparing their petitions asking the commission to authorize the proposed acquisitions. When the petition has been presented the commission will order hearings on the issues involved.

At those hearings Chicago should be ably represented. Chicago owes its growth in industry, commerce, and wealth in large measure to its unrivaled transportation facilities. In all probability any change in railroad management which will increase railroad prosperity and concentrate railroad management in strong hands will benefit Chicago. Chicago's spokesmen at the hearings need not, and indeed should not, assume that the plan is unsound or inimical to Chicago's welfare, but the manufacturers and shippers of Chicago cannot afford to take too much for granted.

It is to be hoped that the traffic experts of the Association of Commerce will not overlook this opportunity to represent the business community. The effects of the consolidations upon rates, services, and terminal facilities should be studied in detail with a view to preserving and perhaps strengthening Chicago's competitive position.

THE FANATIC CONTROL.

Missouri has joined Indiana and other controlled states as an exhibit of prohibition repression. The legislature at Jefferson City voted down a resolution for a referendum to determine the sentiment of the state for repeal or modification of liquor laws. The Anti-Saloon league control of legislators who are insincere in their prohibition votes is not mysterious. The average legislator who signs on the line for the league does so to get a certificate of character. If his other legislative acts are not what even he would regard as commendable he is covered. The league has proved that it will condone misconduct providing delivery is made on its single issue.

So long as reputability may be had on these terms there will be men to seek it until the sham and its consequences are apparent to the people who elect them. The procedure has been the chief reliance of the league and no secret is ever made of it. In this code no man is a rascal who will vote when and as ordered for prohibition. The league directors know as well as any one else that the experiment with federal operation under the eighteenth amendment has lost the confidence of all moderate people who eventually will be found in the majority in the United States.

In spite of the attempts to conceal or confuse the real findings of the Wickersham commission its report gathers graver meaning as its true contents are perceived. The zealots realize that the verdict of the commission was against them, although all the pressure of their political associations was used to obtain a clean bill for themselves and their work. They have lost their case in the court organized to try it. They tried to conceal the fact, and they seem to have had important assistance in doing so, but nevertheless failed. The object now is to prevent the polling of popular verdicts against the continuance of Volstead.

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT: A CONTRAST.

The British house of commons has approved a new method of selecting members of parliament. The voters will indicate on their ballots not only their first choices but also their second. In a three cornered race, if no candidate has a majority, the second choices of those who voted for the low man will be reckoned in. If, for example, the Labor candidate receives 10,000, the Conservative 8,000, the Liberal 6,000 of the first choices, the second choices of the Liberal voters will then be distributed. If 5,000 of them are for the Conservative and only 1,000 for the Laborite, the Conservative, with a total of 13,000 votes, will be elected over the Laborite with a total of 11,000.

Had the same principle been applied in the recent Republican primary in Chicago, it is altogether probable that Judge Lyle would have been the nominee, for no doubt he would have received the bulk of the Albert second choices and he needed only a relatively small proportion of them to overcome Thompson's lead. As it is, Mr. Thompson is the nominee of a minority of his party.

The British plan has yet to receive the indorsement of the house of lords. The bill seems to recognize, and thereby to encourage, the existence of third parties, and in so doing runs counter to the political traditions of England and America. On the other hand, if a multiplicity of parties is to be regarded as inevitable, whether desirable or not, the plan does serve to assure a somewhat more accurate representation of the people in their legislative assembly.

Needless to say, the introduction of the cumulative principle in our legislative elections would be the height of absurdity. In Illinois we have only the barest semblance of representative government. It is almost exactly a century since the so-called rotten boroughs were abolished in England, but here their existence is encouraged by legislative inaction. The Illinois legislature has not redistricted the state in thirty years, with the result that there are single districts with as large populations as half a dozen of our "rotten boroughs." The most striking examples in the state, both of underrepresentation and overrepresentation, are to be found in Chicago. The seven smallest districts in Cook county have a total population of only 432,000. The remaining 2,500,000 inhabitants in the county live in twelve districts. That is to say, less than an eighth of the inhabitants of Cook county have considerably more than a third of the representation. In the state as a whole the twenty-six smallest districts, containing only 29 per cent of the population, have a majority of the representation. They can override the wishes of 71 per cent of the population concentrated in the remaining 25 districts.

In Illinois we are a century behind England in the application of representative government.

THE PARK STATES.

The report of the Garfield committee on the administration of the public domain shows that about one-ninth of the original domain remains in federal possession. It is a third of what it was in 1904. National parks now include 12,431 square miles in the states of wild scenery and wilder senators.

The committee makes a number of recommendations for the administration of the public land, little of which is available for homesteading and settlement, but it omits one which it might have made. That is that some of the scenery states be made national parks in their entirety. This would conserve them as assets and remove them as liabilities. Sullys Hill park in North Dakota, Wind cave in South Dakota, Yellowstone in Wyoming, Montana, and Idaho, and Hot Springs in Arkansas should be made coterminous with the state boundaries and given a park government. Most of the scenery states should not have been advanced out of territorial status, but party benefits imprudently considered sought votes in the senate from time to time and the crags and crag jumpers got in. These hardy sons of the open spaces are too much for representatives of the working states and consequently the country gets its governments from the caves and cañons. It does not seem right, but it does seem inevitable unless the country can take these sections over for what they are worth as parks. It's probably impractical to try to set them back as territories, but the government could satisfy the property owners with a fair price and get possession of itself again. Fifty cents an acre would buy a good deal of the land, and at any price it would be cheap.

With Mr. Borah, Mr. Nye, Mr. Frazier, etc., as forest rangers innocently and harmlessly calling to the wild not in Washington, but where they are native and congenial, the future of the United States could be contemplated with renewed confidence.

THE COAL TEAMSTERS FREE THEMSELVES.

The coal teamsters' union officially ejected Red Barker from his position of business agent at an election Sunday and also retired the president and another business agent, electing successors to them. Barker is back in the penitentiary—an achievement of the last half year's advance on protected criminality. As one of the speakers at the teamsters' meeting said, Barker never swung a shovel, but he did swing a pistol, and he muscled himself into control of the union by terrorism. The capture of organizations by criminals in this fashion has had a number of exhibits. The consequences are of serious injury to the interests of the men in the organizations and to the peace of business in the city.

The teamsters' chance to escape came when Barker was sent to Joliet to finish serving a sentence. The men had the coöperation of the state's attorney's office and with it they reorganized. The purpose of the invasion of business occupations and trades by gunmen, racketeers and criminals is extortion. The spread of the evil is contingent on its success where it gets a foothold. What the teamsters have been able to do on their front is proof of what can be done elsewhere in like conditions.

Editorial of the Day

BROOKHART SCENTS INIMICAL FORCE.

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

"I have no confidence in the convention. It never has represented the voice of the people, and I think it never will."

Of all the men now in public office, the man most likely to have expressed that opinion is the man who did express it—good old Senator Smith W. Brookhart, a public servant who wears no party's collar. Specifically the colonel was referring to the proposed national constitutional convention to consider repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but one suspects that his thoughts hovered closer to home. It is to be noted that Senator Brookhart's condemnation of the convention as a medium of political expression is broad enough to cover the entire field, and inasmuch as there never has been a national convention to consider revision of the present constitution, it is presumed that the senator's general conclusion is deduced from his knowledge of the more limited conventions which formerly handled such political matters as the nomination of United States senators.

It is not difficult to understand why Senator Brookhart should have no sympathy with the latter type of convention. The theory of the political convention system is radically different from the theory of the Brookhart system. For instance, it was one of the tenets of the convention system that no member of a political party should be nominated for the United States senate—or any other office, for that matter—unless he possessed the outstanding qualities of leadership which would make him a formidable opponent for—in Iowa, an easy victor over—the best man the other party could put in the field. Another illusion under which the old conventions labored was that political parties existed for the purpose of giving organized expression to the political views of their members, and that the will of the party majority should guide the actions of those representing the parties in the governmental organization. They believed and undertook to see that men elected under the party banner should represent the will of the party majority during their terms in office.

These principles obviously are opposed to the practices, if not the principles, of Mr. Brookhart. Strict adherence to the principles of the old convention would have squelched summarily Mr. Brookhart's aspirations for a senatorship. The Iowa insurgent has different ideas as to how political parties should operate. It is ideas such as he exemplifies that have caused many people to say:

"We have no confidence in the direct primary. It never has represented the voice of the people, and we think it never will."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

AND IT'S EASIER IF YOU STAND ON YOUR HEAD.

The bonus is a grand thing, but just a little bit hard to figure out. Apparently you take the bonus certificate in your left hand; this leaves your right hand free to hold a pencil and do figuring. Now you take a sly peek at your bonus gadget and see what the amount is. Then you divide this by two. Now from this amount subtract the total of all loans outstanding. Have you done that? Good!

Now next go to work on the interest of the loans outstanding. Figuring interest on outstanding loans is by no means a merry sport. But keep at it. After a while you get something that may or may not be right. Nevertheless, you've got something. Good! Loans existing, says the government, draw the interest rate, in some cases as high as 7 per cent. Loans made now will draw 4½ per cent. This all makes the figuring more interesting. Now add in your age, the date you joined the army, the date of discharge, the state license number of your automobile. If you have no automobile then the license number of your father's or nearest relative's automobile. Add the days you were in service, your house number, chest measurement, present year, total population of your state (census of 1930), total population of United States, divide by 6, multiply by 2, subtract the number of states in the Union in 1876, add the ages of all brothers, sisters, and first cousins, divide by 133⅓, and there you have the amount you can borrow on your bonus.

War may be what Gen. Sherman said it was, but figuring up the bonus is heller.

TO MY SON.

Little boy, the golden dust
Of half a million years
Glimmers forth among your hair,
But in your eyes gleam tears

Of desires unfulfilled,
Childish things today
Before the wine of life is spilled
And love's song gone gray.

Little boy, the primrose paths
Are waiting to be trod,
Reaching out towards Beauty,
Smiling up to God.

Follow them until the end,
Nothing matters after . . .
But while living, I commend
Honesty and laughter!

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

IT WAS something of a blizzard we've just had. Between ourselves we must admit it. But as far as the outside world is concerned let us do as they do in California. Out in San Francisco they never refer to the earthquake as such. No, indeed; they always call it the Great Fire. Let us then speak of the blizzard of 1931 as the Big Frost.

IN BOSTON they threw grapefruit at Rudy Vallee, but in Detroit they hurled eggs. Which simply marks the difference between the cultured east and the primitive west.

THE ADMINISTRATION doesn't want a special session of congress; which is strange, because when congress isn't in session there's nothing to veto. "I care not," as the poet has said, "who makes the laws of the nation just so I can veto them."

THE DRY SLEUTHS started a big raid in Lebanon, Pa., Sunday, and every whistle and bell in town immediately broke loose and raised an awful whoopee for an hour. And all the speakeasies immediately closed up. One thing about speakeasies—they will take a hint.

WASHINGTON thinks now we ought to have a bureau to aid trade with the soviets. Understand, we're not going to recognize those low down Reds, either socially, morally, or financially, but England, France, and Germany are grabbing down a lot of perfectly good Russian coin that ought to be coming over this way. We're going to let the Russians buy things of us, but they've got to stay outside and throw their money over the transom.

MR. RASKOB and Al Smith don't care if the southern Democrats break off from the party because the northern half controls the money. But if the southern wing is busted the Republicans would gladly finance 'em, give everybody a good cigar, and find out what they'd like to have for Christmas.

AND NOW into the middle west will pour an avalanche of postal cards from Florida: "Sorry you had such a terrible storm. We are eating cocoanuts on the sands right now and are just going in bathing. Wish you were here." Just send the postal card right back with a little writing on it to the effect that they are welcome to go to a much warmer place than Florida for all you care. Gosh! That'll hold 'em.

Lagniappe.

AN OPTIMIST is one who doesn't shovel the snow off his walk because he believes it will soon be warm and the snow will melt off. And it's amazing to see the large number of optimists we have in our city.

DURING THE Big Frost last Saturday it was very hard for people downtown to find a taxi or a street car. For the sake of residents of California to whom we have been boasting of our wonderful climate, we might say that frost is so unusual here in winter that when it occurs the taxi drivers and motormen get excited and don't like to go out.

WELL, ANYHOW, we had a nice spring all winter, and now it looks as though we were going to have a hard winter all spring. R. H. L.

IS A HOT LUNCH WORTH WHILE?

THE attitude of the public and of many dietitians on the subject of warm foods is paradoxical. In certain fields they advocate them; in others, they condemn them. For instance, gallons of ink have been used to condemn warm breads and other gallons to advocate warm lunches. The fact is that very little scientific work has been done on any phase of the subject. The trend of that which has been done is supportive of the theory that within reasonable limits it makes no difference with the digestion whether foods are warm or cold. The heat regulating apparatus is so efficient that when warm food reaches the stomach it is speedily cooled to bodily temperature.

On the other hand, when ice cream gets there enough heat is switched on locally to melt the cream and warm it to body heat in, say, five minutes, and probably much less. The old predictions that eating frozen foods would throw one into a speedy decline had no foundation and have been discredited.

There is no scientific basis for the opinion that warm foods are any harder to digest than cold ones. When warm foods are put into the mouth, the cooling process begins. By the end of chewing and swallowing cooling is nearly complete. If there remains any task of adjusting temperatures, the heat regulating apparatus takes care of that in a very few minutes. Judy O'Grady and the colonel's lady are alike within a minute or two from the plate.

This applies to hot breads as well as to other foods. One theory is that the gluten of wheat flour is more "gooey" when warm. If it is, there is no proof that it is less digestible by reason of being so. Does that theory keep us from eating warm pastry, warm cereals, thickened soups, only to mention a few? Nor should we forget that all bread, warm and cold, is of the same temperature one or two minutes after it starts on its journey digestionwards.

The palate may call for bread that is cold or warm, but let the decision be on the basis of taste rather than digestion. Often it is far more convenient for the cook to serve cold bread, but again, let the decision be based on the real urge and not on a false one. It is even more convenient to bake once a month or a season, as some of our European relatives do. If we wish to follow their example, let us not be diverted by any red herring of health.

The warm school lunch is an example of a fetish in another direction. A warm lunch is just as wholesome for a school child as is a cold one, but not more so. The advantage of serving a warm lunch to school children is that it makes something of a function of the meal. On the other hand, many schools that could afford to serve a cold lunch and many children that could afford a cold lunch cannot afford kitchens, warm food, and such.

Nothing said in this article applies to eating or drinking scalding hot foods.

DIET AND PIMPLES.

S. T. B. writes: You say pimples is not a disease of the blood. Yet you say wrong diet may make pimples worse. Does not the food get to the skin through the blood? How can you explain your contradiction?

REPLY.

There is no contradiction to explain. The fact that the nourishment of the skin is carried to that tissue by the blood does not mean that the skin can be diseased only as the result of disease of the blood. A blackhead is due to accumulation of grease in a grease gland. A pimple is an infected grease gland. The infection gets into the gland from the surface of the skin. The grease gland stops up because the skin is dirty and also because the grease does not flow easily. The diet has some effect on the amount of grease in the grease gland. In that roundabout way diet is a minor cause of pimples.

PROBABLY BEYOND DANGER.

Puzzled writes: I go with a girl whose mother has had tuberculosis for ten years. Five years ago the doctor told her that one of her lungs was gone. She gets hemorrhages every once in a while. Is there any possibility of my getting the disease by going with this woman's daughter, or is there any danger of carrying the germ to my family? Is it contagious?

REPLY.

VARICOSE VEINS IN LEG.

O. T. writes: I am troubled with varicose veins in the left leg. I am 18 years old. Do you think that the injection method of curing varicose veins is a good one? Should I have it done now or wait until I am older?

REPLY.

The injection method seems the better, simpler and safer one. Whether you should be treated now or later your physician will know better than I do.

CITIZENSHIP FOR WIFE.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—[Friend of the People.]—1. A woman who arrived in the United States from Sweden with her parents, who is now thirty-five years of age and whose father was not naturalized until she had attained the age of twenty-one years, desires to become naturalized. What steps should she take?

2. If she should in the next month or two marry an American citizen would she be able to secure her final papers in a shorter period?

3. Can her application be made in Chicago and her final papers received in another state if she moves?

1. She should file a declaration of intention [first paper] and two years thereafter she will be in position to apply for naturalization. The cost is $5 for a certificate of arrival, $5 for filing a declaration of intention, and $10 for filing a petition.

2. The wife of an American citizen does not require a declaration of intention. Neither does she have to prove more than one year's continuous residence in the United States.

3. A petition must be heard in the same court where it is filed. The applicant must return for the hearing no matter where she may be residing at the time of the hearing.

FRED J. SCHLOTTFELDT,
District Director of Naturalization.

WHERE AND HOW.

Chicago, March 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In July, 1930, I bought a suit for $30. In August I lost my job and pawned it, signing a ticket for them to sell the suit in thirty days if the interest of $1.25 was not paid. I have paid back in interest $6.25, but was three days late with February interest and pawnbroker refused to take it. He said suit had been sold. Where do I get off and how? W. E. R.

The law requires them to hold pledges for a full year and, in our opinion, no writing would be valid to supersede this statutory requirement.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BROKER NOT LIABLE.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., March 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a real estate agent be held responsible for renting my bungalow to a party who claimed, at the time, that he was a highway police officer? After this party failed to pay his rent I investigated at the sheriff's office and found he had been dismissed about two years before renting my bungalow. F. A. T.

The broker would not be liable on the bare facts stated.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 10, 1915.

LONDON.—An admiralty statement says that German submarines sank three British merchant vessels yesterday. One vessel was sunk in the North sea off Scarborough in Yorkshire. A second was struck in the English channel off Hastings in Sussex, and the third was sunk off Liverpool in the Irish sea. The locations of the sinkings show that the German undersea blockade is striking at all coasts of England simultaneously. None of the ships sunk was given the slightest warning before being struck. In two cases the crews were saved, but the crew of 38 of the steamer Tangistan perished, with the exception of one man.

GALVESTON, Tex.—The American bark Pass of Balmaha from New York to Bremen, carrying 6,000 bales of cotton, has been seized by a British cruiser and taken to Kirkwall, England, according to private reports to B. E. Harriss here, member of a cotton concern which chartered the bark.

PETROGRAD.—Heavy fighting on the whole front in Poland is announced in the official statement issued by the Russian general staff. Between Niemen and Vistula rivers the fighting has been of a desperate character. In the Carpathians the Austrians launched fierce attacks and gained some Russian trenches only to be driven out by Russian counter attacks.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Secretary Bryan announced that American citizens have been warned to leave Mexico City in view of the critical situation that has arisen there and that transportation facilities would be sought for as many as desire to leave. Obregon has evacuated the city and the Zapata forces occupy the capitol, according to an announcement made by the Villa agency here.

CHICAGO.—At the direct request of THE TRIBUNE the United States government in Washington cut the red tape to meet the emergency facing the nation in the treatment of drug victims. Surgeon General Blue announced that he will open the 27 marine hospitals in the country for the treatment of drug victims wherever the state and city authorities request him to do so.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 10, 1901.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Henry E. Herts will be appointed collector of internal revenue in Chicago to succeed F. E. Coyne, who will become postmaster upon the retirement of Charles U. Gordon.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Dr. Henry Jameson, Gen. Benjamin Harrison's physician, announced that there is no change in the former President's condition. He suffered a return of intercostal pains, but Dr. Jameson said he does not anticipate any serious outcome.

CHICAGO.—Ald. James A. Patten, Board of Trade man and member of the Evanston council, announced he would resign his council seat, saying he is "disgusted with dirty politics and the weakness displayed by Mayor Bates."

WASHINGTON.—The treasury department has become satisfied that bubonic plague exists to an alarming extent in San Francisco and that stringent measures must be taken to prevent its spread.

CHICAGO.—This [Sunday] is to be blue law day in East Chicago, Ind. The Citizens' league began the movement to close the saloons and the town marshal has extended it to close fruit and cigar stands. The sale of newspapers also is prohibited.

ST. PETERSBURG.—The official organ of the holy synod publishes the formal excommunication of Count Tolstoi, the Russian novelist and socialist reformer, because of his "heresies."

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

WASHINGTON.—John Hay, assistant secretary of the treasury, has tendered his resignation for "private reasons." His successor has not been appointed. Congressman Levi P. Morton was nominated for minister to France by the President and the senate promptly confirmed the nomination. Mr. Morton succeeds ex-Gov. Noyes of Ohio. President Garfield also nominated George Pfleger to be postmaster at South Bend, Ind.

WASHINGTON.—Secretary of State Blaine addressed a note to the British minister here on the subject of false reports sent by the acting British consul at Philadelphia as to the prevalance of disease among hogs in the middle western states. Mr. Blaine denies that there is a particle of truth in the statements and asks that immediate steps be taken to have the false reports fully and emphatically contradicted.

LONDON.—Sir Henry Jackson, who last week was appointed judge of the High Court of Justice, is dead.

MADISON, Wis.—Angus Cameron was nominated on the 48th ballot in the Republican caucus for United States senator to succeed the late Senator Carpenter. The nomination is one more victory for the Milwaukee Republican politicians.

PETTY ANNOYANCES OF TRAVEL.

Chicago, March 7.—The trouble with the railroad passenger traffic is not all in the quality of the accommodations. The advantage of the automobile is in its convenience. A trip that I took with my wife last fall is a good illustration.

Dreading the hard driving of making our destination in one day and unwilling to spare two days, we reluctantly decided in favor of the train. As we were to be gone 10 days, we each had a suitcase and a handbag. In addition I had a rather heavily loaded brief case. It being fall and the trip into Canada, my wife took two coats, light and heavy. I took a fall weight coat, and as the object of the trip could not wait on weather I also took a rubber coat. My wife carried an umbrella.

The first job was to load the duffle into a taxi. In our own car it would have remained undisturbed until we pulled up at the hotel, if a one day trip, or we could have pulled out the handbags at night if we took two days.

We unloaded at the station in about two minutes. Next was the job of getting the luggage, unaided, into a suburban train. At the Chicago station the red caps, being paid by tips, do not make a practice of meeting this particular train. However, we finally got one who helped us to the taxi.

At the outbound station there was another red cap [tip] to the checkroom. We were rather early, as a later suburban train would have made the connections rather close. We had the choice of piling the baggage around us and watching it, or checking it. The checkroom fees on five bags, three of the four coats, and the umbrella were 90 cents. On some remark of mine about the cost the attendant tied the three coats and the umbrella together and reduced the fees to 60 cents. In an hour and a half we had another red cap [tip] to the train. Our compartment was roomy enough, but we were more inconvenienced by the luggage than we would have been in our own car.

Coming back the drawing room adjoining our compartment was used by the train crew for social relaxation, enlivened by the Canadian merchandise most in the public mind these days.

Nearly all travelers resent checkroom fees when they have more than two pieces to pay for. Another thing they resent is the prices charged at the stands in the stations. The present administrators of the railroads won their places when the public had to use the trains or stay home. "Coaxing" the public is against their ingrained training. Station concessions may be run at a loss, but the whole revenue is trivial compared with the invisible loss in passenger fares due to creating a preference for automobile travel. The brotherhoods, run by old timers, would probably insist on porters [additional jobs] on suburban or day coaches if a railroad did wish to aid passengers with baggage on such coaches. They are too old fashioned to realize that they are paid out of passenger revenues. If the managements do wish the train crews to aid passengers, then they are unequal to the disciplinary management of their men. J. F. W.

TAX WASTING.

Chicago, March 2.—I noticed this morning as the ash and garbage wagon went through our alley that five or six men accompanied it. They were all helping a little bit. These men were given work and, no doubt, derived some benefit therefrom. Presumably, this is a sample of Thompsonism charity, and I might appreciate it did I not feel that it was done to help maintain a great political octopus that is crushing the poor taxpayers in its grasp.

I am a woman advanced in years, obliged now to take up plain sewing if I can get it [which is not my line of work] to meet the ever increasing taxes on my home. But what does it matter if I and thousands of other people, debarred from wage earning on account of age, must mortgage or lose our homes to FEED the octopus! Yet many are so blinded by prejudice and partisanship that they will vote to continue IT in power. E. F. M.

MASTERS' LINCOLN.

Palos Park, Ill., March 5.—I had the opportunity a short time ago to have a pleasant talk with a public man of high repute from central Illinois and a collector of Lincolniana. In discussing Edgar Lee Masters' belittling estimate of Lincoln this gentleman, who is not a Republican but of Republican antecedents, suggested a reason for the lack of appreciation shown by Masters of the greatness of Lincoln. He said that he was well acquainted with Masters and his family, and his father was a southern sympathizer during the war, reputed to be a Knight of the Golden Circle, and the middle name of Masters, Lee, was given to him because of his father's admiration of Robert E. Lee. This gentleman said that he thought the Lincoln-Douglas debates were remarkable as they were intended for the hustings and a reading of them was disappointing, but that the real greatness of Lincoln came out by his development as he faced the responsibilities of government during the war.

In the writer's opinion if Edgar Lee Masters in all his voluminous writing could have written [and conceived] such a phrase as "with malice toward none, with charity for all," his place would have been secure, but while the speeches and papers of Lincoln are full of thoughts of such lofty character and of such lyrical beauty that they read like poetry and are the cherished possessions of all who read the English language, he is a rare bibliomaniac who can recite from memory a single sentence from Masters, to whom writing is his whole profession, while to Lincoln it was merely a tool. EVAN L. REES.

OBITUARY.

Chicago, March 4.—While today, March 4, has not been publicly observed as a day of thanksgiving in the churches of the country, nevertheless much private rejoicing has undoubtedly been had over the relief to the country in the passing out of existence of probably the most destructive congress the country has ever seen.

Apparently animated by venom, and led by incompetency, bigotry and selfishness, the nation has suffered appallingly by their blind malevolence. Let us thank God they have disappeared and, with all penitence and humility for our share in the responsibility for the evil they have done, pray for betterment in the congress to come.

There might well be appointed a day of prayer and fasting for the date of reassembling in December with Illinois including specific petitions:

From battle, murder, Norris, Caraway, and sudden death. From plague, pestilence, famine, La Follette, and all uncharitableness

Good Lord deliver us! A. M. DAVIS.

SPAGHETTI AND THE FUTURE.

Chicago, March 2.—The denouncing of spaghetti by Futurist Marinetti will not affect the Italians of the United States. They will have always a good, red sauced dish of spaghetti to be thrown in the face of the author of "Spaghetti and the Future," an editorial published in today's CHICAGO TRIBUNE, insofar as the Italian government and all decent people who know which is the truth about the hit and run story.

DR. MARIO LIUNI.

TOGETHER WITH REV. VOLSTEAD.

Clinton, Ia., March 5.—I notice that Harvard university has decided to talk all the Yale locks off its doors, out of respect to the feelings of its students and alumni. Would it be out of place to suggest that a Michigan fraternity has found a very satisfactory substitute in a lock evidently invented by a Mr. Pad? H. S. T.

IS THIS CALIFORNIA PROPAGANDA?

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 6.—Could you send a carload of oranges here? Everybody is freezing. Since I left Chicago Jan. 17 there have been only 2 nice days here; cold and rain. Last Sunday and Monday rain without a stop. And this city is too poor, too crocked and yellow to give any relief. J. DES CARES.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

A PRICE-DECENNIAL*

Beginning This Morning and Extending Indefinitely

A PURCHASING OPPORTUNITY

SUCH AS OUR PATRONS HAVE NOT ENJOYED SINCE THE PRICE DEFLATIONS OF 1920 AND 1921

—even since 1913-1914 or 1915—in some instances

We have studied the primary merchandise markets . . . surveyed the current retail offerings in our own and other great retail stores . . . and compared our buyers' first choices made from the available emergency offerings of merchandise . . . all in relation to the most outstanding values advertised in the deflation era ten years ago.

The results rather surprised us . . . and will amaze you.

Have you, yourself, realized that today you can purchase special values in merchandise on such a favorable price basis . . . from any of the leading retailers?

It is for the purpose of building a more general appreciation of this fact that we are announcing this morning—which will continue in this store for some time to come . . . making known special values of such a striking nature . . . that in themselves they will convey their own convincing message of superiority in value—quality for quality—as compared even with the leading Deflation Values of 1920-21—and 1913, 1914 or 1915—in some instances.

THE PRICE-DECENNIAL*

Every special article of merchandise advertised this morning is marked . . . quality for quality . . . at our lowest price in ten years . . . to the best knowledge of our management, that of our retail buyers, our wholesale authorities, and all manufacturers with whom we have collaborated.

SHEETS AND PILLOWCASES

$1 FOR SHEETS 25c FOR PILLOWCASES

In Fact—Back to 1915 Prices

Greater Durability and Softness

Full Standard Size Sheets, 81 x 99 inches, also 72 x 108 inches (All sizes before hemming)

Standard Size Cases, 45 x 38½ inches

Notes of Interest in This Great Sale

These soft Sheets, because of their greater number of soft cotton threads to the inch, will give a greater feeling of comfort and luxury.

The great hotels of the country present their good quality bedding as a sales reason why people should patronize them.

These Sheets have more threads to the square inch than any that have been sold at this price for over ten years, to our knowledge. Value! That's all!

You are in bed one-third of your life. Why not use good quality Sheets when you can buy them at this price?

How to economize in Sheets and Pillowcases:

First, buy them at this Sale. Second, always have a sufficient number, so that you can plan a change of bedding without washing any one sheet too frequently. This economy prolongs the life of each sheet.

The dollar's buying power now expands.

Value—We Believe Incomparable Value—That's all.

There have been sellings . . . and sellings of Sheets and Cases—but to our knowledge, never a Sale like this . . . even in the 1920-21 deflation era.

These are Sale Prices—not regular prices, which, in themselves are lower than ten years ago. Think of that!

To the buyers of sheets and cases for hotels and institutions the above specifications mean much as they assure long service and satisfaction. And think what the home owner can save by buying these sheets and cases while they are selling at these quantity prices. Sheets and cases of this quality have not to our knowledge sold at as low prices . . . since 1915.

Through a large and most fortunate purchase we are able to make this wonderful offer, and although we purchased 56,840 of these sheets and 36,000 of the cases we are certain they will not last long, hence the advisability of getting your order in early. If you cannot come to the store, it will pay you to telephone. Call State 1000, ask for "Personal Shopping Bureau".

FIELD SPECIAL

Sheets, 81 x 99 . . . . $1 each

Sheets, 72 x 108 . . . $1 each

Cases, 45 x 38½ . . . 25c each

This event is of such magnitude that we are forced to expand our selling space in both our Second Floor and Basement Sections. Come to either place to buy—the prices and qualities are identical.

G. O. P. WILL HAVE ADVISORY BOARD TO WOO FARMERS

Forestalls a Meeting of Insurgents.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—The Republican National committee moved today to meet the farm problem and satisfy the farm vote by announcing the organization of an advisory council for agriculture.

Senator Elect L. J. Dickinson of Iowa is chairman and the other members are Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, and Representative Robert G. Simmons of Nebraska, and Fred S. Purnell of Indiana.

Forestalls Insurgent Meeting.

The committee's action came a jump ahead of the conference of insurgent Republicans and Democrats to be held Wednesday and Thursday, at which farm relief is to be one of the five chief issues.

The advisory council will have headquarters both in Washington and the west, it was announced. It is scheduled to begin its organization work immediately in the corn and wheat belt states. One of its purposes, it was stated, is to be the "dissemination of accurate information regarding the various constructive steps the administration has taken to aid the farmers and to save them from bankruptcy in this critical period of economic depression and drought."

Plans of Progressive Conference.

In the meantime, the bipartisan insurgents made plans to divide their conference into five sessions, each dealing with a major topic.

Senator Borah of Idaho, advocate of the debenture plan, is to head the session on farm relief. Senator Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the conference committee, will head the public utilities session. Senator Cutting of New Mexico, will preside over the representative government session; Senator-Elect Costigan of Colorado over the tariff session, and Senator La Follette of Wisconsin over the unemployment session. All but Senator-Elect Costigan are nominally Republicans.

The main theme of the meeting will be the exact opposite of that in the Republican national committee's announcement, holding that the Hoover administration has done nothing worthwhile to relieve the depression.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, March 9.—A political storm is brewing over Premier Bennett's appointment of William D. Herridge, Ottawa lawyer and war hero, as the new Canadian minister to Washington. It is reported here that Herridge is Premier Bennett's sister's fiancé and already the opposition press, without referring to the reported romance behind the appointment, is denouncing the handing of "this important semi-ambassadorial post to a young favorite with no experience."

HINT INTERNATIONAL ANGLE IN HOLLYWOOD LOVE MARKET CASE

Los Angeles, Cal., March 9.—[Special.]—Operation of William Jobelmann and Olive Clark Day's Hollywood high school girl love market as an intercity and international enterprise was hinted today.

Blayney Mathews, district attorney's chief investigator in charge of the case, returned today after a search for two young girls in San Diego or Tia Juana, Mexico. He declined to say what he had learned.

Interest today centered on information from San Francisco on the disappearance there of Mrs. James Evans, aged 24, several weeks ago. The woman's husband said she failed to return home after leaving to answer an advertisement placed there by Jobelmann.

Jobelmann remained in the county jail and said he stayed there on his own preference. "I'm perfectly healthy here," he said. He intimated he thought he might not remain healthy outside. Jobelmann has been informed of the disappearance of his partner, Miss Day, after her release from jail Sunday. Her attorney said he feared she was being forcibly detained somewhere.

PROSECUTION IN SCHROEDER CASE ENDS TESTIMONY

Indianapolis, Ind., March 9.—[Special.]—The prosecution rested late this afternoon in the trial in County Criminal court here of Harold Herbert Schroeder, 35 year old Mobile [Ala.] business man and former army aviator, charged with murder and cremation in his automobile of an unidentified hitchhiker near here the night of last May 30.

Before defense testimony was begun secret conclusions of the sanity commission of alienists were received by the court. Investigation of Schroeder's sanity was made at the prosecution's request when his council indicated he might plead insanity. The sanity findings will be divulged just before the case goes to the jury.

Testimony of Indianapolis detectives was introduced today as to how Schroeder acted when he was suddenly confronted with the charred remains of the unknown man whose body was found in his burned automobile. Defense counsel charged that as part of the police third degree methods Schroeder was kept in front of the open coffin for some time, although detectives themselves were forced to leave at intervals because of the nauseous and searing fumes of the embalming.

JOB INSURANCE PLAN OUTLINED TO CHURCHMEN

Members of the Chicago Church federation yesterday heard plans for unemployment insurance developed by Dr. Paul H. Douglas of the University of Chicago. Dr. Douglas told the churchmen, meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A., that "it is only a question of how long adoption of some such plan will be put off." Dr. Douglas declared the cost of an unemployment insurance plan must be mutually borne by both employers and employes, with the employers bearing the larger share.

HOLMES MAKES FIRST DECISION SINCE OVER 90

He Reverses Plane Case from Illinois.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme court today achieved his ambition of handing down a decision after he was 90. His 90th birthday was yesterday, and today he delivered a typical Holmes decision. In it the Supreme court decided that within the meaning of the motor vehicle theft act an airplane is not a motor vehicle. The court reversed the judgment passed on William W. McBoyle of Galena, Ill., who was sentenced to serve three years' imprisonment and to pay a $2,000 fine for transporting from Ottawa, Ill., to Guymon, Okla., an airplane which he knew was stolen.

JUSTICE HOLMES.
[(C) Harris & Ewing]

What made it a decision typical of the venerable jurist was the last paragraph, in which Justice Holmes laid down the rule that makers and construers of criminal laws must play fair in marking out the line between right and wrong.

Urger "Fair Warning."

"Although it is not likely," he said, "that a criminal will carefully consider the text of the law before he murders or steals, it is reasonable that a fair warning should be given to the world in language that the common world will understand, of what the law intends to do if a certain line is passed. To make the warning fair, so far as possible, the line should be clear. When a rule of conduct is laid down in words that evoke in the common mind only the picture of vehicles moving on land, the statute should not be extended to aircraft simply because it may seem to us that a similar policy applies, or upon the speculation that, if the legislature had thought of it, very likely broader words would have been used."

The act, under which McBoyle was convicted provides that "the term 'motor vehicle' shall include an automobile, automobile truck, automobile wagon, motorcycle, or any other self-propelled vehicle not designed for running on rails."

Hinges on Word Vehicle.

"The question," said the decision, "is the meaning of the word 'vehicle' in the phrase 'any other self-propelled vehicle not designed for running off rails.' No doubt etymologically, it is possible to use the word to signify a conveyance working on land, water, or air. . . . But in everyday speech 'vehicle' calls up the picture of a thing moving on land. . . . So here, the phrase under discussion calls up the popular picture.

"The words . . . indicate that a vehicle in the popular sense—that is, a vehicle runninng on land—is the theme. It is a vehicle that runs, not something, not commonly called a vehicle, that flies. Airplanes were well known in 1919 when this statute was passed, but it is admitted that they were not mentioned in the reports or in the debates in congress."

Shot by Roommate When Gun Is Fired Accidentally

Francis McMullen, 24 years old, was seriously wounded last night when a pistol in the hands of William Nelson, who shared a room with him at 4716 Sheridan road, was accidentally discharged. The bullet struck him in the abdomen. Nelson was held for further questioning and McMullen was taken to the Jefferson Park hospital.

BRITISH EMBASSY IN U. S. UNDER FIRE IN COMMONS

LONDON, March 9.—(AP)—The new British embassy building in Washington came under fire in the house of commons tonight during debate on a supplementary estimate, which included £150,000 for the purchase of extra land for the embassy. Commander A. R. J. Southby, Conservative, moved a reduction of the sum by £5,000 as a parliamentary protest, and asked why the purchase was necessary.

"Is it true," he asked, "that the design is as bad as popular report says, that the heating pipes go through the larders, that the garage accommodation is hopelessly insufficient for the use of the ambassador and his staff, and that, therefore, fresh expenditure is to be incurred by the taxpayer to provide accommodations which should have been thought of at the time?"

George Lansbury, first commissioner of works, said there would be opportunity for a full discussion when the main estimates came before the house.

MULTI-CYLINDER PERFORMANCE?

Cadillac and LaSalle, with Fisher and Fleetwood coachwork, range in price from $2195 to $7700 f. o. b. Detroit. Convenient G.M.A.C. terms are recommended.

Something has happened which makes it advisable to compare motor cars, once more, as you did in the past: by a test of their performance. Cadillac is building twelve- and sixteen-cylinder power plants—and the discoveries made during their development have resulted in a type of performance with which everyone should be familiar. For example, Cadillac and La Salle cars now operate without perceptible noise. Acceleration, braking and steering are materially improved. Shifting in either direction between second and high is completely silent with the Synchro-Mesh non-clashing transmission. In fact, Cadillac-La Salle performance must be experienced before it can be appreciated. Consequently, we are extending to one and all an invitation to come in for a trial drive.

CONTRACTS FOR SIX DESTROYERS TO BE LET SOON

Design New Craft to Be Powerful Units.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—Contracts for the construction of at least six of the eleven destroyers appropriated for during the short session will be awarded early this summer, navy department officials said today.

At the same time, it was disclosed that the designs for the new destroyers call for the largest, most heavily armed; fastest and most seaworthy vessels of this class ever built for the United States fleet. The new vessels will have a speed of forty miles an hour, weigh 1,500 tons each, carry five-inch guns and, in addition, have a large fuel carrying capacity to provide a larger radius of action.

Present Fleet Obsolescent.

Present American destroyers, designed fourteen years ago, weigh about 1,200 tons each, carry four-inch guns, and have a speed somewhat less than that designed for the new destroyers. In addition, all American destroyers are becoming obsolete so rapidly that all vessels now built will be over age before the expiration of the London naval treaty in 1936.

According to naval officials, ruggedness, high speed, and high gun power will feature the new destroyer type. These vessels, it was said, have been designed to make high speed in heavy weather, something which the lighter present type destroyer cannot do.

A decision has not been reached regarding whether the vessels would be armed with long range five-inch guns or faster firing five-inch anti-aircraft weapons, which can be utilized against either aerial or surface targets. It is probable that a few anti-aircraft guns will be installed on each vessel.

Depend on Speed for Safety.

The longer range five-inch gun is favored by some naval officers, who contend that American destroyers should be armed heavily enough to meet any foreign destroyer on even terms. The long range five-inch gun would have an extreme range of 22,000 yards, almost as great as that of a six-inch gun cruiser. The new destroyers will not have any armor, depending on extreme speed for safety.

NO WAR FOR NATION UNLESS PEOPLE VOTE IT, ADMIRAL'S PLAN

Washington, D. C., March 9.—(AP)—Adoption of a constitutional amendment to prevent this country from going to war without a referendum of its citizens, except when attacked, was advocated today by Rear Admiral Samuel McGowan, retired.

This recommendation, made before the war policies commission, drew immediate opposition from Chairman Johnson of the house veterans' committee and Brig. Gen. Delafield, former chairman of the war department board of contract adjustments.

Johnson described the referendum plan as "impracticable" and Delafield termed it "unnecessary."

Continuing its search for a means of eliminating the profits from war, the commission received indorsements of the Baruch plan to prevent profiteering by "freezing" all prices during a war.

Under the plan proposed by Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board during the world war, all prices would be fixed by presidential proclamation at the pre-war level.

McGowan, paymaster and chief supply officer of the navy during the war, said the constitution should provide this country could not declare war unless a majority of its citizens favored that action in a referendum.

He added the amendment also should provide that if the referendum resulted in war every able bodied male citizen between the ages of 18 and 35 be drafted. He advocated prohibiting any increases in wages during war also.

The three witnesses indorsed the Baruch plan, but Johnson said he still favored the proposal he has been urging before congress for eight years to conscript all man power and labor.

He added he realized, however, this could not be enacted on account of formidable opposition and urged the commission to find some practical plan to eliminate war profits as close to that "ideal" as possible.

Johnson predicted legislation of the kind under consideration would come to a vote in the next congress and urged the commission to formulate a program by that time.

Canadian Miners Protest U. S. Ban Against Workers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TRURO, N. S., March 9.—At a district convention of the United Mine Workers' union held at Glace Bay today, a resolution was forwarded to John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, protesting against the barring of Canadians from jobs in the United States and asking the Americans to take the matter before congress. It was also proposed to urge Canada to halt all immigration during the period of depression.

ROOSEVELT AIMS FRESH BLOW AT TAMMANY HALL

Launches Official Probe Into Crain's Office.

New York, March 9.—[Special.]—Tammany Hall's grip on the city government of New York was threatened from another angle today. Ex-Supreme Court Justice Samuel Seabury was appointed commissioner to investigate the City club's charges of incompetence and misfeasance against District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain.

Mr. Seabury, for twenty years a thorn in the side of Tammany, has lately been making it uncomfortable for the Union square political organization as referee of the inquiry into the so-called Magistrates' courts "racket." His appointment to the new inquiry post by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today was seen as a new gage of battle thrown down by the newly fused anti-Tammany forces of the city and state to the Tammany hosts. Tammany is fighting back tooth and nail. Its chief weapon is the investigation into the failure of the Bank of the United States, conducted by Max D. Stewer a Tammanite, to the discomfiture of some who are aligned against Tammany.

Seabury Gets Busy.

Seabury lost no time in accepting his new commission, and announced that he would begin his investigation immediately. It was reported tonight that Steur might act as counsel to the district attorney in the inquiry.

The door is open now for an inquiry of vastly wider scope than was hitherto possible for Referee Seabury. Pursuing the collateral lines of inquiry into all departments having dealings with the district attorney's office, as he has done in regard to the magistrates' courts, he can go into the police department, the department of purchase, the fire department, the board of standards and appeals, the dock department, and the building department—all named by the City club as providing cases in which Mr. Crain has neglected his duty.

District Attorney Crain had nothing to say when he arrived at his office this morning. For the first time since he has been in office he refused a request of newspaper men to come out and talk to them.

Push Gordon Murder Probe.

Meanwhile District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin of the Bronx launched the twelfth day of the Vivian Gordon murder investigation by calling in Vannie Higgins, a beer racketeer whose name has been linked with the killing ever since the finding of the body.

The prosecutor said that he was at last "making definite headway" and that he "felt much better about the case," having eliminated "a great many of the crazy theories."

Asked definitely whether he had eliminated the theory that the Gordon woman was killed because of her eagerness to testify before the Seabury vice inquiry as to alleged graft in the police vice squad, he said: "No, I have not."

REAL WINTER WEATHER PROVES WORTH OF REM

Out in Minnesota, where the blizzards come whirling down from Canada, they're used to having "winters as are winters." So the mothers in that section have had to learn what to do for the coughs-and-colds that develope during the bad-weather season. Mrs. F. C. Winterer of 836 Juno St., St. Paul, found the answer several years ago when she first started to use REM for her youngster Richard. As she herself tells it: "A few winter's ago I happened to see REM advertised at a time when my son Richard had a very troublesome cough. I got a bottle of it at the Randolph Pharmacy at Randolph and Victoria, and it relieved his coughing at once. We've used it several times since and it's always helped." REM's a great remedy for coughs, as thousands testify. You'll be glad you insisted on REM.

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John says, had magnanimously adopted the child. Hilary suspects such magnanimity. John's sister, Gertrude, became Judith's legal guardian when his wife died.

Hilary had taken her war invalided brother, Hugh, away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister, Christine, and brother, Stephen, a better chance. Now that Hugh is dead, Hilary was returning home. Hilary is not met when the boat docks and John takes her to her door. Hilary's stepfather, the only sympathetic member of her family, tells her that Hugh left her his possessions in trust, to be settled on her at her marriage or to buy her an annuity at the age of forty if still single.

The next day after their return John takes Hilary to luncheon. He tells her he loves her and asks her to marry him, and Hilary accepts.

Judith leads a lonely life in her aunt's home. She has a private teacher, Miss Mead, while her cousins are away at school. Her cousin, Prue, is her only friend in her aunt's home. Her father she knows as Uncle John. She senses she is different in some way from other children.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

A PLAGUE OF AUNTS.

"Is it because I was adopted?" Judith wondered sometimes, puzzling it out, but how could she be to blame for that? And somehow whatever it was, she had a feeling she was to blame. And then she would cheer up a little, remembering what Prue had said. Judith wanted to wear her hair short like all the other children, but Aunt Gertrude insisted on a pigtail, and nothing would move her.

"Why shouldn't the poor infant have it shorn off if she wants to?" Prue had argued.

"Certainly not, it would be most unsuitable. That is enough, Prue," said her mother shortly.

"O, good heavens, mother, it isn't Judy's fault," Prue had cried, to Judith's bewilderment, and grown-up as she was, had been sent from the room.

That night, contrary to her aunt's strictest rule, Judith had climbed out of bed and waylaid Prue coming up the stairs.

"O, Prue, what isn't my fault, please?" she had begged in a distressed and anxious whisper.

"Hist!" said Prue, screwing up her pretty impish face, "also shush! But are we observed? No." Pushing the little girl back into bed and shaking a finger at her, she went on: "Nothing is your fault, Judy the Obscure, just keep that face before your nose and you'll do them all in. . . . Is it your fault the world goes round and makes people giddy, or that accidents happen in the best regulated families, or that the Lord has sent you a plague of aunts, or that the moon is made of green cheese? Certainly not."

"Please, Aunt Gertrude, don't make me go away," cried Judith eagerly.

Although Judith knew that most of this was just Prue's funny way of hugging you up in the mud, one comforting, splendid fact remained. Nothing was really her fault. Prue had said so.

The clock in the hall which had the most melodious voice in the world, to the hearer at least, chimed nine o'clock, and Judith hastily closed her drawer and ran upstairs to the schoolroom.

Everything was all right. Miss Mead smiled at her as though funny books were unknown, so she had not noticed anything; and the sunlight came in the open window out of a splendid morning. By and by they would have a game of tennis, and the court had just been rolled and re-marked because Prue was coming home to use it on Saturday. Judith's spirits rose. For an hour and a half she was absorbed and happy, fears forgotten.

Then there was a knock at the door.

"Please, Miss Mead, the mistress would like to speak to you in the morning room as soon as possible."

Jane retreating, left behind her a big girl and a little one staring at each other with apprehensive faces.

"O, dear, I hope it doesn't mean Mrs. Livingstone's dissatisfied," said Miss Mead, looking nervous and shaken.

"No, it can't, because think how nice she was on Monday," said Judy, eager to comfort her friend. "And this is only Friday."

"You never know, Judy; she might have sent me out because she was going to interview the new one."

"But only Uncle John came while we were away, Jane told me."

"Did he really?" asked Miss Mead, her hopes reviving. "Well, I suppose I'd better go. O, dear, I wish I didn't always get so worked up."

Judith opened the door for her and stood watching as she went downstairs, then forlornly returned to her books, but it was no use. They would not make sense, though she read the words over and over mechanically. She went to the window, humming at the top of her voice, and a sparrow at lunch on the sill flapped his wings and fled to a branch of the elder tree. Judy, friend and patron of a whole world of sparrows, did not even notice.

A picture on the wall was crooked and she put it straight again with fingers always clever and careful at tasks like this. She was a fastidious little girl, without knowing it, any more than she knew that other quality in herself which was perhaps more than anything responsible for Aunt Gertrude's funny looks—an indefinable air, an impertinence this, which should not have been looked for [thought Mrs. Livingstone] in her mother's child. She was tall for her age and thin, her small, beautifully shaped head set well back on her shoulders, her neck slender and not too long. She had very little color, but her skin was clear and fine, and when she was happy or eager the whole face was lit by the beauty of her eyes. At other times she wore a rather questioning look, and it was then she was most like the one person in the world her aunt was determined she must not resemble. "Don't stare, child!" she would exclaim. "If you have something you want to say, say it. You look positively foolish." But there rarely seemed anything Judith wanted to say on these occasions.

The sparrow returned to his meal and peered with his head on one side through the window, the room was so still. Judy was standing with her cheek pressed to the half open door and gazing out. As though she heard something at last she ran from the room and then ran back again, pulling herself together in a way that would have seemed rather dreadful to the governess if he could have known she was a child.

Miss Mead came in with quick, nervous steps, attempting cheerfulness.

"Judy, dear, where are you? You're to come and dress because you're going away to the country."

"O, no!" pleaded Judy in a whisper, and the governess, flinging discretion aside, gathered her into her arms.

"Darling, I knew you'd hate it, but how could I say anything?"

"What have I done?" asked a despairing voice.

"You haven't done anything. I'm sure you haven't. She said it would be good to be at the farm in this lovely weather."

"She isn't sending you away?"

"No, . . . I don't think so. . . . I hope not. She said I was to take you to Hayden where Tracy will meet you, and then come back. She would need me . . . There are going to be visitors, I understood."

"But if it's only visitors I wouldn't be in the way," cried Judith eagerly. "I could be as quiet as a mouse. . . . I'd stay upstairs and never even come. . . . O!"

She broke away from the arms of her friend and ran quickly downstairs before her courage should fail her to Aunt Gertrude.

"Please, Aunt Gertrude, don't make me go away! I'll be terribly quiet. I can stay in the schoolroom. . . . I won't even come downstairs while the visitors are here."

"Judith!"

That offer, with all it seemed to suggest of knowledge or suspicion, was the last in the world to placate her aunt.

"Don't talk such utter nonsense. How dare you!" cried Mrs. Livingstone in a burst of righteous indignation. "Any one would suppose you were sent to prison, instead of being given a treat that would delight any normal child."

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

Trader Horn speaking: "That's Africa—when you're not eatin' somebody, you're tryin' to keep somebody from eatin' you!"

"Trader Horn," the photoplay, developed from the book of reminiscences related by the old ivory trader to Ethelreda Lewis, is, without doubt, the most astounding and thrilling jungle melodrama ever turned out. It is a strange, weird, blood curdling blend of fact and fiction. The realism is furnished by the actual jungle stuff—animals, scenery, natives. The imagery is concerned with the yarn threaded through, which relates how a white "goddess" is saved from the man-eating Isorgi tribe by Horn, the young chap who accompanies him, and the faithful native guide, Renchero, a role taken by Mutia Omoolu. Both the fact and the fiction compel your fascinated attention.

Harry Carey, veteran actor whom we used to enjoy in "western" films, impersonates Aloysius Horn—without a beard, thank heaven! He may not have whiskers, this screen Horn, but he has plenty of nerve, and is a thoroughly convincing old timer of the velut. Duncan Renaldo is the young chap, son of Horn's old friend, who, with the trader, is making his first tour of Africa, and whose naive questions give the older man opportunity to get across a heap of information regarding the country and its occupants. Mr. Renaldo is a pretty boy with sideburns and, at the start you fear he's going to fall by the way and let a wildebeest get him. But he fools you and you like him better and better as time goes on. The other principals do splendid work.

Two years well spent were those occupied in making "Trader Horn." Under the marvelously astute direction of W. S. Van Dyke the picture has been skillfully assembled. The man has missed nothing. Your shakings and your quakings induced by the menace of the jungle, as made known by tribal rites, cruel and deadly fights among cruel and deadly beasts, and the horrible beating of drums that never cease are soothed by deftly inserted flashes of scenes that are peaceful and beautiful. Smart, that!

In the jungle of "Trader Horn" are poisonous crocodiles that infest the waters much too close to the players for comfort. And you're a heap more blasé than I if your skin doesn't creep during the scene where a native impales on a stick, the raging lion that has leaped at him. Also what, I wonder, will happen to your beautiful poise as you watch the killing of a black man by a hippodromic rhinoceros! There's one assorted animal melée that will surely make your blood run cold.

The entire film—it is very long—has been photographed, to be colloquial, like nobody's business, and no bets have been missed to insure your respect for the actual authenticity of the production.

There are some critics who can tell you, when a hyena laughs, just WHERE he laughs. I'm not smart like that. I assume that, probably some work on "Trader Horn" was done in Hollywood. But, I do know that a big company DID spend months in the jungles, bravely laboring and enduring hardships and perils that a great picture might be made. SO—when the screen informs me that "this is Africa"—why I'm quite willing to be credulous and believe that it IS Africa.

KIND—Drama, featuring the Foreign Legion. Sequel to "Beau Geste" and built after the "Beau Geste" formula.

QUALITY—Weak.

PHOTOGRAPHY—All right.

SOUND—Satisfactory.

SETS AND SCENERY—Regulation. No surprises.

AUDIENCE APPEAL—None for this one.

REMARK—You can certainly waste a lot of time at the Palace theater of a morning, waiting for the management to decide whether the show should start fifteen minutes or three-quarters of an hour late.

See you tomorrow.

"ROMAN GENTLEMEN PREFERRED BLONDES; VENUS DYED HAIR"

Des Moines, Ia., March 9.—(AP)—The Greek Aphrodite, also called Venus, the Roman goddess of love, was a peroxide blonde, and Cleopatra is officially recorded as the first person to wear a permanent wave.

So Emile Rohde, Chicago cosmetologist, told the Iowa Society of Cosmetologists today.

Venus took her cue from blonde Nordic women captives, to whom Roman gentlemen took a characteristic preference, and bleached her originally raven tresses.

"Very few of the southern European women were blonde," Rohde said, "and when the golden haired Nordic women were much sought after by the men of that time the fashion of bleaching the hair came into vogue."

WORLD CONGRESS ON SOCIAL ECONOMICS TO MEET AT AMSTERDAM

King of Jokers Nearly Crushed by Berliners

Cops Club Back Fans; Violets for Chaplin.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 9.—Charlie Chaplin had the greatest fright of his life on his arrival at Berlin today. Thousands who rushed him in a frenzy of welcoming joy nearly crushed him on the railroad tracks. Berlin's sturdiest cops had to club their way to his rescue while the station was echoing with wild cheers. Children who had come to present flowers to their film favorite were only saved by strong men lifting them to their shoulders above the milling mob.

About 10,000 movie fans assembled outside the station nearly upset Charlie's car, and tried to race it to the Adlon hotel, where they besieged the entrance. Only one of the scores of elaborate or touching bouquets meant for Charlie reached him. But he was clutching a tiny bunch of violets when he reached the Hotel Adlon. There mounted police on the sidewalk were trying to scare off movie fans who were holding up traffic. A hundred of them broke into the hotel before the heavy iron riot gates were closed.

The tea drinking crowd in the lobby gave Charlie the same ovation as did the mob at the station. One of the doors of his suite was smashed as fans poured in along with directors of theaters and restaurants who begged Chaplin to visit their establishments.

"I want to get a rest here if I can," Charlie answered when the worst of the hubbub was over. Marlene Dietrich was at his side with a few other stars who are anxious to give Charlie a grand time in Berlin. So far he has announced only one visit—to one of Berlin's biggest jails—because this visit, Charlie believes, will "be necessary to get a complete cross section of the country."

In the snow and ice hundreds are standing outside of the Adlon tonight shouting "Charlie, komm raus!" by the hour, and from time to time Charlie comes out to the porch and bows to the masses who are cheering with enthusiasm worthy of a monarch.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALITY?

Dr. Norman E. Richardson.
Presbyterian Theological Seminary.

Spirituality, as a characteristic of human experience, is a quality of mind that makes one sensitively aware of and abundantly able to solve the problems encountered in living an upright life and in doing the essential work of the kingdom of God.

It makes possible victorious problem solving.

An individual may be considered as being spiritual, in the Christian sense, when he possesses the disposition and ability to realize in his conduct the characteristics of the victorious life.

This is a life of victory in the midst of actual life situations. It is the mode of life that seeks, first and successfully, the kingdom of God. This is the highroad of achievement. This is the narrow way, so easily missed, but so joyous and exhilarating when found. The truly spiritual person is living a life of victory.

If a Christian is to overcome the world he must start in at those points where he makes contact with the world. This means wrestling not with abstractions or vague generalities but with flesh and blood, with principalities and powers, with economic, civic, political, industrial, social, and other kinds of actual, every day surroundings. Whatever problems are actually encountered as life, devoted to God's purpose, is lived under present conditions constitute the occasions in which the power to live the victorious life may be demonstrated.

Churches as Sponsors View Stage Work of Winning Players

Religion and drama—for a century or two regarded as virtual enemies—are fast making peace. Last night culminated months of work of more than 400 amateur religious thespians with the presentation of three plays at the Goodman theater. The plays and casts were the winners in the religious drama tournament conducted by the Council of Religious Education of the Chicago Church federation.

Semi-finals in the tournament were recently staged on the north, west, and south sides of the city. Last night the winners presented their work before a near capacity house at the Goodman. Prof. Fred Eastman, Chicago Theological seminary, chairman of the central committee of the tournament, declared the dramatic work now sponsored by Protestant churches is filling the gap in Protestantism left by overemphasis on the subjective side of religious expression.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

If you are in need of a quick definition of "Up Pops the Devil," which came to the Selwyn theater last night, you might consider this one: "Up pops Greenwich Village." In other words, the hero writes; the heroine dances, and they live together for a year before they decide to get married.

During the last few years good old, bad old, dear old Greenvich Village has been losing ground in the drama as an important segment of the American scene. Its vogue as a "locale" has dwindled sadly. I had begun to fear that the area of studios, hall bedrooms, and speakeasies in lower Manhattan had become old fashioned. Its tradition of bright dreams and shabby habits, I often told myself, had been swept away by the relentless march of progress; had departed to join the ghosts of Victorianism, at which it so bravely scoffed.

But along comes "Up Pops the Devil" to put the place back on the map. And right merrily, too, for this is a frisky, chatty comedy which handles its atmosphere persuasively and deals with the "villagers" as if they were human beings. It is a bright, wise cracking picture of studio domesticity, with an undercurrent of extempore gin parties, and it hasn't a word to say about the importance of art or America's neglect of her geniuses.

Here we have the story of Steve [Roger Pryor] who thinks he can write a novel, and of Anne [Sally Eates] who dances in the chorus at Roxy's to pay the bills while the great American saga is trickling out of his typewriter. Steve has quit his job at Anne's insistence to devote himself to this task, but as a side-line he has to cook the dinners and attend to the housework.

Steve doesn't take kindly to this arrangement. He has the American husband's weakness of wanting to pay the bills out of money that he has earned in the marts of trade. He calls himself a kept man and shudders at the epithet. He nags himself into sullen moods over the petty annoyances of the doorbell. He groans in despair over the typewriter out of which the great American novel refuses to trickle. After his fourth chapter, inspiration dies.

The picture of Steve as he sits at his machine in the doldrums of invention, tapping out stuff which he knows is unworthy of printer's ink, is a dreadful warning to all the potential novel writers of the nation. It peels the romance from the ghastly process of literature in its birth throes. No fond mother, after seeing "Up Pops the Devil," will want to raise her boy to be a writer.

Steve eventually explodes under the strain and walks out on Anne before he knows that she is going to have a baby. But the last act brings them together again; the novel gets itself accepted, and joy and gin once more prevail in Greenwich Village.

Mr. Pryor and Miss Bates play the central rôles crisply and appealingly, and there is much expert characterization all along the line. "Up Pops the Devil" is, altogether, a neat bit of typical American comedy.

PARENTS MARVEL AT CHILDREN'S SKILL AS TRAINED BY STRANGERS

Twinkling toes and nimble fingers, trained in public playgrounds under the supervision of the board of education or the city park systems, demonstrated the myriad activities of Chicago's recreational facilities yesterday at the Chicago Woman's club. Scores of boys and girls, in costume and out, jigged, tapdanced and tumbled about the auditorium stage in a program supplementing an exhibit of their handicraft in the Addams room adjoining.

In the Addams room parents and club members looked and marveled at the skill attained by the playground children in divergent lines of accomplishment. Metal book ends, hand made valentines, carved wood toys, parchment lamp shades, soap sculpture, model villages, intricate hand sewing, brightly tinted hook rugs, paintings, printing, wax flowers, and pottery were included in the hundreds of examples of playground instruction.

Flowers Defy Piles of Snow, Bloom in Loop

Crowds at Opening of Garden Show.

Springtime invaded the loop yesterday as the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs opened their annual home and garden show at the Hotel Sherman, filling two floors of the building with thousands of floral and garden displays. The show continues through next Sunday.

Despite minor delays caused by the week-end snowstorm, crowds flocked about the alpine, wild flower, cut flower, table setting, window box, dish garden, and formal lawn exhibits in the show's opening hours. Judges last night completed the pinning of awards on displays of women's clubs, amateur and professional groups, on view from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily this week.

One large room has been transformed into an out-of-doors effect, with a series of gardens of varying types supplied by the Lincoln park, south and west parks and forest preserve commissioners. Here wild flowers climb realistic hillside retreats, a complete bungalow of brick is landscaped, a rose garden flourishes, and alpine flowers from the Rockies frame the course of a running brook.

The women's clubs are sponsoring daily cooking demonstrations together with afternoon and evening lectures on gardening, open to the public. Modern table settings are supplied by State street merchants.

Business Men Try Again to Get Quota for Drought Relief

The "flying squad" of 350 business men organized last week and pledged the raising of $1,000 each. Although the bad weather hampered their work many large contributions were reported at a meeting yesterday. The group is under the leadership of Samuel Insull Jr. and John E. Gilchrist.

The "flying squad" is making the first concerted effort for general solicitation that has been made during the fund drive for $3,640,000 for the Chicago area. To date $455,469.71 has been secured. A total of $10,000,000 is needed by national contribution to care for 1,000,000 persons impoverished by the drought who daily are under the surveillance of the American Red Cross.

Large gifts not previously reported include $10,000 each from the Chicago and Northwestern railroad and the Pullman company. The International Harvester company pledged an additional $5,750 to a previous large gift.

Among other gifts was $2,500 from Continental Illinois Bank building, and $1,000 each from the following: George M. Reynolds, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, H. M. Byllesby & Co., Byllesby Engineering and Management corporation, Foreman State National Bank building, National Tea company, Mrs. Samuel Insull, Mrs. James A. Patton [additional], Mrs. Rensselaer W. Cox.

The new $500 gifts were from Paul H. Davis & Co., Arthur Henderson & Co., F. B. Keech & Co., Pierce Wrapping Machine company, H. Teller Archibald [Fannie May Candies], Arthur Young & Co., National Machine Works, Harrison B. Riley, M. L. Joslyn, Hibbard Spencer Bartlett, S. W. Straus & Co., American Furniture Mart Building corporation and employes, Furniture Club of America and employes, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Smith, Chicago Mail Order company, Pioneer Investment company, Walter A. Rogers, Pierce Electric company, Butler Bros., Maurice L. Rothschild, Junior League of Chicago.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Recently I attended a benefit performance the advertised feature of which was a dress showing, with debutantest modeling. The clothes shown were extremely lovely. The girls exhibiting them were young and fresh looking, with their hair done in varied and charming styles.

In the group was one arrestingly lovely thing—brown haired and gray eyed. She carried herself like a young princess. She had not the stilted, stop-go walk of the usual model. She was wafted along like a leaf before a soft June breeze, head held at the most graceful angle, chest up without any obvious forcing, and a back that was a back for the decollete model she wore in the last promenade act.

Said a woman near: "Breeding just does tell, doesn't it? Look at that girl. Wonder what finishing school she came from."

The truth, as it came out on investigation, was that the girl never knew a finishing school except the one so many fine persons graduate from, and that is called the school of hard knocks. She was, in fact, one of those flowers that bloom on back streets and among surroundings that are far removed from rich folk contact, unless through the "trade entrance" gate. She was a professional model—a new one—imported from an under-the-el region to give certain gowns just that chic of wearing that makes them profitably salable.

None of the debutante group could vie with her. No slam at debutante groups is intended at all, for among them you may find the exact beauty of carriage that distinguished this one lovely young miss and the clothes she wore. But what the particular exhibition, and the particular young princess referred to did, was to prove again that carriage is a distinctively important item of feminine charm.

The girls were all good looking. But I was not alone in my judgment on the favorite, for she drew the biggest round of applause on every showing. There is something that compels a handclap when beauty walks that way—or even when a woman, not bowed down with beauty assets, carries herself with the grace of a swan.

Coat May Be Long or Short Sleeved

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — (Special.) — Short sleeved coats and jackets worn with 16 button gloves of suede to match the costume or in a pale harmonizing shade will be a feature of 1931 spring and summer style. They are favored by Lelong, Talbot and Premet, to name only a few of the leading Paris couturiers who show them.

The short sleeved coats were already launched in the winter collections, but, though smart, Parisiennes found them rather chilly except in closed and heated limousines, so they have not been worn extensively by women who must count the cost of taxi fare.

Philippe et Gaston offer a clever solution of the long or short sleeved coat question in the afternoon coat sketched today. They make it of fine beige twill, a fabric that is going strong with the couturiers for spring, with a short sleeved bolero top of deeper nut beige broadtail. Tailored glove sleeves of the beige twill pull up over the short broadtail sleeves for cold days. Later on they may be smartly replaced by long beige suede gloves.

This bolero effect exemplifies the vogue for contrasting tops, lighter or darker than the skirt, that are scattered all over the fashionscape just now. It is cleverly cut in one with a scarf collar that drapes gracefully 'round the neck. The coat is lined with nut beige crepe to match the fur.

It Takes Time to Build Habit of Orderliness

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

To continue from yesterday on the subject of orderliness in children! Besides setting them an example of orderliness, we need next to keep in mind another fundamental—which is that the building up of the habit of orderliness must be a gradual thing, like all our other constructive work with children.

We must begin by expecting only a little of them. This holds whether we begin to build up orderliness when they are little, or whether we find we must begin suddenly at 9 or 12 years of age because they never attempt to pick up after themselves, at all. The habit must be built up by expecting them to put in their places only two or three things, at first. When these have become routine acts, then add to them gradually.

At first there will have to be a great deal of reminding. This should be done in a friendly, helping way—not a fault-finding one. With older children, it is sometimes possible to alternate reminding with leaving the things they forget to put away until later in the day—when they will see them and remember, themselves. A pair of pajamas and bedroom slippers and a soiled dress on the chair in an otherwise orderly bathroom at four o'clock in the afternoon often act as their own reminders.

When the habit is started young, tiny boys and girls love to put away things with the idea of helping mother—doing it with her also makes a chummy little function of it. Praise at this time, and later, too, is one of the greatest helps in forming the habit. After all, it's rather a bore for children of some temperaments to put away their clothes and toys, and a word of praise helps a lot.

Tact and Silence Often Best Way Out of Trouble

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A nice young bride told me a mother-in-law incident the other day. It seems the bride and the best groom ever had their little menage all furnished and ready to step into on their honeymoon return. To the bride's astonishment, when she got back she found the furniture in the living room all rearranged. The couch was moved to the other side of the room, the piano shifted, the lamp position changed.

The bedroom had also undergone a shift of furniture. Mamma-in-law appeared on the scene the night of the return and proudly announced that she was the interior decorator sprite who'd committed the magic arrangement.

Instead of making a scene, the young woman took it with the best face she could muster. The evening was spent agreeably. But the next morning the bride's time was occupied shuffling the furniture back into its original place.

When mamma-in-law called again, no word was said. And while the two women aren't what you could call chummy—still, they do get on. The son and new husband wasn't approached from either side on the subject of the furniture display, so no emotional situation was presented to him. Clever management, I call that. Mamma got her lesson—and the bride got her rights.

And the latter would have been right, too, in turning the piano on its head and leaving it so, without any interference from the older woman. Mamma, however, is due for her word of praise, too, for her unprotesting exit as managing interior decorator. Anyway, that's the way a whole series of conflicts are avoided. By effacement and recognition of what is the other one's business.

But here's "Jean," a spoiled girl who goes into terrible rages if the older woman makes a suggestion to her. Wants her husband to beat her mother out, in her name. The young woman of the furniture incident asked no such quarter of the older woman's son.

"He's been hers," she said, "for many years as I've been my own mother's daughter, and I would have done exactly the same if it had been my mother who'd upset my nice little furniture plans. I wouldn't have gone off in a rage with her."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Truth Will Out.

There were twelve guests and I was the first to leave. I had said good night to eleven, all of whom I knew. My embarrassment was almost complete when I said, plainly enough to every one else, "I am glad you came, me." I will never try to say "I am glad to have met you" again. F. F.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Find an Agreeable Girl.

"Dear Miss Blake: My girl friend is angry at me. When I ask her for an explanation she always says 'Oh, forget the subject.' Please advise.

"LORENZO ANDREWS."

Society Hopes to Give Parties to Galsworthy

BY THALIA

It does seem too bad that the artistic and literary lions whom everybody is dying to meet usually are prevented either by lecture contract terms or inclination or both from being lionized socially while the visiting celebrities who are more amenable to being entertained aren't nearly so much in demand.

When word got about that John Galsworthy was coming to Chicago the last of the month to speak on "Literature and Life" at Orchestra hall the evening of the 30th several clubs sent off invitations to him to appear before them.

To date they haven't received any encouragement, and the general impression seems to be that the novelist is pretty well "sewed up" with his lecture tour.

Miss Butcher tells me that he goes about almost none at all while he's in this country, and that the last time he was here several years ago the only thing he did was to go out to the University of Chicago for a lecture there. Arthur Aldis is acquainted with Mr. Galsworthy, but, of course, he's in Italy now.

Musicians also find the strain of their performances too great to permit their accepting the invitations that are heaped on them. Vladimir Horowitz, who has played at several lovely private parties here; Jascha Heifetz, and José Iturbi, all of whom would be rushed around at a dizzy pace if they but would, are to be here within the next few weeks for concerts, but, except for small, informal parties with the people they know and like best, they probably won't be seen socially.

Mrs. F. J. Loesch's Mother to Celebrate Her 94th Birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch and Mrs. Loesch's mother, Mrs. Stephen G. Browning, who are traveling westward from Washington, will arrive in Pasadena, Cal., in time to celebrate Mrs. Browning's 94th birthday next Sunday.

These anniversaries are always large and joyful occasions and invariably attract a deluge of good wishes from Mrs. Browning's friends in all parts of the world. Because she is an inveterate traveler, Mrs. Browning's birthday parties are seldom held in the same part of the globe for two successive years. Last year Mrs. Loesch gave a luncheon for her at the Mayflower in Washington. Her 93d birthday was observed at Biloxi, Miss., her 91st on the Carribean sea en route to the Canal Zone; the ending of her 90th year was observed at the Drake hotel here, and the 88th in Jerusalem.

Things to wonder about—what Adeline Lobdell Atwater meant by the dedication of her novel, "The Marriage of Don Quixote"—it is "To My Father and My Mother," and underneath in parenthesis is "To encourage them" . . . why one of the dancers in "The Land of Oz" was chewing gum so ferociously during one of the "acts" . . . what the modernistic bouquet will be like that Alice Miller is to do for one of the exhibits of the Winnetka Garden club at the flower show at the Merchandise Mart the week of March 21 . . . who designed the Heigh-Ho club's stationery—it's of heavy tangerine colored paper, trimmed with wide silver bars in modern arrangement and blue lines and printing with a trick insignia made of the club's initials.

Mischakoff and Copeland Will Play for the Arts Club.

The Arts club announcements for another of the enjoyable Sunday evening programs will be out shortly. George Copeland, pianist, and Mischa Mischakoff, violinist, are to give the program on the evening of March 22, and there will be a supper party beforehand.

Unclassified . . . the joint committee on hourly nursing met yesterday and reported that the first two months of this year showed a large increase in service over any previous period. . . . Mr. and Mrs. H. Godfrey Haggard have been entertaining M. Charlton and Mrs. Charlton at the Pearson hotel [Mr. Charlton is the newly appointed British consul of San Francisco, and they are on their way direct from Milan. They leave for California today or tomorrow] . . . the junior board of the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children will meet, lunch, and play bridge today at the Chicago Athletic association . . . the Evanston Country club is having a program on Friday night, Jacques Cartier doing some of his Indian dances. . . . the Evanston Junior league announces a style show on Monday and Tuesday next during lunch hour at their Maisonette [their ultimate goal is to establish and support a dental clinic in Evanston].

Goings away and comings home . . . Mr. and Mrs. Caryl B. Young of the Drake have returned from a West Indies cruise. . . . Mrs. William Scudder, who motored to Virginia with Mrs. Ralph R. Foreign Art on Show Here; Some Is Fine

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THE foreign paintings from the Carnegie international exhibition, held last fall in Pittsburgh, are on view today in the east wing galleries of the Art Institute. As they are meant to illustrate contemporary art abroad, they make an intersting showing; were they just another exhibit with no particular significance they would, in the opinion of many of us, fall a bit flat. Even as it is, representative of foreign art today, they are less exciting present than they were in anticipation.

Picasso's portrait of his wife, a painting that dates back twenty years, and is as academic as a portrait well could be with the exception of a grossly drawn first finger, was given the first prize at the Carnegie and must be looked at twice on this score. Soberly considered, here again is an instance of a prize going to the man rather than the picture. Derain and Matisse already had been honored by the Carnegie first prize and Picasso was next in line. There is more sense in this reasoning of the award than in the calm acceptance of the portrait as the best piece of painting in the show.

Laura Knight offers the best and soundest painting among all these pictures. Her "Three Clowns" are splendid, and the "Ballet Girl and Dressmaker" is superb. The "Fruit Tree" by Francesco Camarda is a glorious epic to fertility, a grand gesture, impetuous, vihrant, and inspired. "Primavera," by Pedro Sanchez, is a whimsical and naive composition. The "Portrait of Ethel Bartlett," by Harold Knight, is a lovely piece of painting. The portrait of Mrs. Homer St. Gaudens by I. Buisseret is very much in the manner of Paul Trebilcock, but even more exquisitely polished, and it shows Mrs. St. Gaudens as a very pretty woman.

Among the other paintings which will be remembered are "The Sea Shore," by Vivian Forbes; "The Balcony," by Gilbert Spencer; "Betsabea," by Giovanni Romagnoli; "Young Mother," by Pedro Pruna; "Funeral of Foch," by André Mare, the four large panels by Antonio Ortz Echague, and "Children on a Balcony," by Iuri Pimenov. The exhibit will continue into April.

BETROTHED

MARGARET W. WEEGE.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Frank Weege of 3530 North Lowell avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Wilhelmine, to Justus Carl Frankenfeld, son of the late Rev. Justus W. Frankenfeld and Mrs. Frankenfeld of St. Charles, Mo. The wedding will take place in the fall and the bride and groom will reside in Phoenix, Ariz., where he is engaged in entomological research work for the federal government.

Praise Given Mina Hager After Recital

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mina Hager, mezzo-soprano and a superb artist of song, appeared in a recital at the Playhouse yesterday afternoon. On this occasion the Musicians' Club of Women, or rather this club and its predecessor in name, the Amateur Musical club, presented their 180th artist recital, a record in which to take considerable pride.

Miss Hager, who used to be a Chicagoan but now keeps an address farther east, is one of the most stimulating persons now on the lyric stage. She always liked to sing unusual songs; she made yesterday's program in great part out of unusual and little known works.

Pergolesi's "Salve Regina," in three parts, arranged by Frederick Stock, and a splendid example of old sacred music, began the program. Then came a beautiful group by Erich Wolff, varied by a repetition and an encore. There was a half serious, half comic little suite by Poulenc called "Le Bestiaire," there were songs by Debussy and Severac. Ruth Crawford, one of Chicago's harmonic and melodic insurgents, contributed one; another by Imre Weisshuss had neither accompaniment nor words, just a tune for the voice. Then came a pair by Joseph Marx, and at the end a group by John Alden Carpenter.

New music is ever risky for the musician, but Miss Hager succeeded as few recitalists succeed. Singing with her is both fine singing and a medium of fine interpretative art, and she and Isaac Van Grove at the piano projected one of the best constructed and best performed programs of the season.

Word from the east tells that Conchita Supervia, mezzo-soprano, will appear in some guest performances with the Chicago Civic Opera company next season. The name part of "Carmen" and Rosina in "The Barber of Seville" are spoken of as rôles for her, and in order to prevent protest over the second, be it added that "The Barber" was originally written for a mezzo-soprano voice of highly flexible nature. Miss Supervia, a good deal of a youngster then, was a member of the Chicago Opera in the Campanini days, singing, among others, Carmen and Mignon.

Bright Sayings of the Children

We were boating on a north woods lake just as the sun was setting—a huge, orange red ball of fire. We watched and commented upon it, and then forgot about it in some other topic of conversation.

Soon, however, small Joanne called, "Mother! Mother! The sun has melted." And surely it seemed so, as sky, water and even trees were bathed in a sea of molten gold.

Patients Ask for Cards.

"We are patients in this sanitarium and often time hangs heavily on our hands. We are wondering if one of your readers would have a few extra decks of bridge or pinochle cards to give us. We like to play in the evening. J. K."

Slightly soiled playing cards are often disposed of when some one else—these patients, for instance—might be making use of them. Won't you let me know if you can donate a deck or two to the boys of this cottage?

Asks $55,000 to Help Those Handicapped

An expansive program providing for the training of the physically handicapped as well as securing and creating work so they may become self-supporting is to be undertaken by the Goodwill Industries of Chicago, located at 1020 West Monroe street.

In an appeal for contributions toward a $55,000 budget to carry on this work Walter C. League, superintendent, yesterday announced that three departments will be formed, each to render a different service in the rehabilitation of the handicapped. The first is the department of occupational therapy [curative workship], where work will be given that assists in restoring the functions of certain muscles or disabled members of the body.

The second department is that of industrial therapy and vocational training, providing a factory atmosphere while training handicapped persons for occupations. The third department is the sheltered employment, which gives remunerative employment indefinitely to the handicapped who cannot be placed in competitive industry, and temporary employment to the handicapped while out of employment.

In addition the program plans to secure work for handicapped persons, prosthetic appliances, employment, and living quarters, and to provide a hospital visitor to encourage handicapped patients.

"There are 2,000 men and women in the Chicago area who in normal times are unemployed because of their handicaps," Mr. League explained.

DESTROY COLD GERMS

Self-infection certain every time handkerchief is used again . . . one reason why colds hang on

Avoid self-infection with

KLEENEX

Disposable Handkerchiefs

You use . . . then discard

THE importance of using Kleenex during colds has received dramatic confirmation from the scientific laboratory!

A series of tests prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that a single use of a handkerchief during colds fills it with thousands of disease germs! Germs which carry infection back to the user every time the handkerchief is used again. Making recovery slower, more difficult.

Use only once

Kleenex removes every danger of self-infection from handkerchiefs. It permits the complete destruction of millions of germs which otherwise must be carried about in purse or pocket — then saved days longer in the laundry bag!

Kleenex is a soft, immaculate, super-absorbent tissue. The size of a handkerchief. So gentle, so soothing, that irritation is impossible. So inexpensive that each tissue may be used just once, then discarded.

What science says about the ordinary handkerchief

1. It may self-infect the user time after time.
2. Spread infection among others.
3. Infect clothing in which carried.
4. Infect clothing in laundry bags (germs survive for days).

Bacteriological tests show:

1. That handkerchiefs used by persons having colds may contain as many as 4,170,000 germs per handkerchief. The types of organisms in the enumeration are those known to be associated with colds.

2. That organisms representative of those associated with colds, when rinsed in boiling water and/or soap water, were found not to be killed or appreciably inhibited from growing.

Kleenex has many other uses. Beauty experts say these absorbent tissues are the safe, sanitary way to remove cold cream. Being powerfully absorbent, Kleenex picks up all dirt and powder along with cleansing cream.

Ask for Kleenex at any drug, dry goods or department store. Comes in three sizes: 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. If you have not tried Kleenex, send for a free trial packet to the Kleenex Company, Lake Michigan Bldg., Chicago, Illinois.

Food Talk.

We have recently had a request for a discussion of methods of cooking vegetables to retain their highest nutritive value.

The nature of vegetables prevents us from cooking them all in the same manner. Those that may be cooked in their skins retain a greater per cent of their nutritive value than if they were peeled before cooking. The minerals are found in or near the skin, therefore the removal of the skin removes much of the mineral matter. There is much less food waste in removing the skin of a cooked than an uncooked vegetable. If one will eat the skins, and it is perfectly proper from the standpoint of good table manners to eat them, important cellulose will be furnished to the diet. Vegetables cooked in their skins also retain starches, sugars, and proteins better than pared vegetables.

Vegetables that are steamed over boiling water or in their own moisture retain a greater per cent of their caloric, protein, and mineral value than those that are boiled in water. They also retain a more natural flavor. All vegetables except the strong juiced ones—cabbage, onions, turnips—should be cooked in as small an amount of water as possible.

Do not throw away the water in which vegetables are cooked or that in which they come when canned. It contains minerals, starches, sugars, and proteins which have been dissolved out of food. Use this liquid in sauces, soups, or allow the vegetable to cook low in its own liquid, carefully evaporating all of the water but retaining all the food value.

Cook green vegetables as quickly as possible. The color is more attractive, the form is better preserved, and the flavor is more natural. Then, too, the vitamins are not destroyed nearly to the extent in quick cooking as they are in excessive and prolonged cooking.

To provide for quick cooking the vegetables should be of medium and uniform size. If those at hand are large, make them uniform by cutting into medium sized pieces. I would never suggest the use of soda to hasten cooking or to improve the color. Soda has a harmful effect on the vitamins. Green vegetables and strong juiced vegetables retain their color and flavor when they are cooked in an uncovered pan in boiling salted water. And, if available, use soft water as the color and flavor of vegetables remain more natural.

Heavy aluminum or steel cooking pans that have tight fitting lids are excellent for cooking all vegetables, except the strong juiced ones, in their own steam. This is a great advantage in retaining all the nutritive value. A small steamer is also an advantage. One can be devised by fitting a strainer in a sauce pan, placing the vegetable in the strainer over boiling water, covering securely and steaming until done.

GREEN PEPPERS STUFFED WITH RICE AND MUSHROOMS.

1 cup broth.
½ cup thick tomato puree.
½ teaspoon salt.
2 tablespoons shortening.
1 small onion chopped fine.
3 branches parsley, chopped fine.
2 mushrooms, if desired, chopped fine.
1 cup cooked ham, chopped.
⅛ teaspoon salt.

Trim off one end of the peppers that they may stand level and form cups. Sometimes better shapes can be secured by cutting the peppers in halves, lengthwise, to form two receptables from one pepper. Discard the seeds, parboil in boiling water 10 minutes, wipe, and, when filled, set into a baking dish, add a little boiling broth or water, and let cook in the oven about 15 minutes, or until hot throughout. Serve from the baking dish. To prepare the filling, heat the broth, tomato, and salt to the boiling point, add the rice and set to cook in a double boiler. Melt the shortening, in it stir and cook the chopped vegetables until softened somewhat, then add to the rice to cook until the rice is tender. Add the ham and more salt if needed and use to fill the peppers. Tomato or cream sauce may be poured around the peppers before serving.

Yield: Eight servings.

BOARD URGES U. S. TO DISCONTINUE RADIO BUSINESS

Would Bar Commercial Messages.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 9.—[Special.]—A recommendation that the government get out and stay out of the commercial radio field was submitted to President Hoover today by the special committee set up by White House order to study government radio facilities and activities, with a view to ending duplication and developing greater efficiency. The committee is headed by William R. Vallance of the state department, and includes representatives from the navy and war departments, the radio commission, and the bureau of standards.

Would End Commercial Use.

Specifically, the committee recommends that the navy and war departments, which now handle several hundred thousands of dollars' worth of commercial business annually, should confine their activities in the future to government work, principally national defense business. The committee advocates that the army and navy eventually should give up handling messages for other government departments, but it is understood no recommendation to this effect was made.

The move to oust the army and navy from the commercial field came shortly after the committee had advised the sale of the Alaska cable-radio system now operated by the war department to a commercial concern. The report submitted to President Hoover today reiterates this recommendation and at the same time recommends that in the future the navy confine all its activities to overwater facilities, while internal radio activities for national defense purposes should be handled by the war department.

Would Cut Military Service.

Should this recommendation go into effect, the war department would be forced to abandon its powerful radio circuit to Hawaii and the Philippines. The navy would give up the Great Lakes radio station and its interior circuits. The navy would send messages over the army's land circuits, while the army would be forced to depend in peace time on the navy's Pacific circuit.

The navy now does about $100,000 worth of commercial business, while the army's commercial business runs higher. Both departments handle messages for forty or fifty other government departments, branches or commissions.

ELOPEMENT ENDS IN DIVORCE FOR MRS. ANN MARTIN

Mrs. Ann Goelitz Martin of Deerfield, daughter of Adolph Goelitz, wealthy candy manufacturer of North Chicago, was granted a divorce from James Beverly Martin and restoration of her maiden name in a decree of Circuit Judge Dady at Waukegan yesterday.

Allegations of cruelty were made against Martin, who did not contest the suit. Mrs. Martin alleged that he beat her with a riding whip on one occasion, hurled her to the floor on another, and blacked an eye on a third.

The couple, then students at the University of Illinois, eloped in August, 1929, and were married at Crown Point, Ind. They have been separated since Oct. 20, 1930. Martin is the son of Lon E. Martin, publisher of the Taylorville Courier.

FIRE IN LOOP DRAWS CROWD.

UNDERSECRETARY OF STATE COTTON IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Baltimore, Md., March 9.—(AP)—Joseph P. Cotton, under secretary of state, who has undergone two major operations at Johns Hopkins hospital in the last six weeks, was pronounced in a critical condition tonight.

"Mr. Cotton is pretty sick," Dr. Walter E. Dandy, brain specialist under whose care the undersecretary has been, said.

Mr. Cotton underwent an operation on Jan. 21 for infection of the spinal cord, and on Feb. 16 his right eye, which had become infected, was removed.

The under secretary, appointed in May, 1929, bore the brunt of the state department's work when Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson was absent at the London naval conference, and last summer his health became poor. In the fall he took a two months' leave of absence to have his tonsils removed.

He was one of a group who worked with President Hoover when the latter was food administrator during the world war and later when secretary of commerce.

Mr. Cotton is 56 years old and a member of the New York City law firm of Cotton and Franklin. He is a director of a number of corporations. He was graduated from Harvard in 1896 and from the law school in 1900.

Sues Wife After She Sues Him; Charges Misconduct

Two days after he had been sued for separate maintenance by Mrs. Tyra L. Wattles, a former Follies dancer, of 914 Vernon avenue, Winnetka, George M. Wattles, an official of a New York coal company, brought suit for divorce against Mrs. Wattles, in a bill filed yesterday in the Circuit court. In his bill Wattles accuses his wife of misconduct with a foreign language teacher, who is not named.

Choose Your Colors First of All

Color is by far the most daring innovation of the mode. Shades cannot be too brilliant . . . nor combinations too unusual, as long as they are subtly handled and smartly worn.

Contrast is Fashion's theme song this Spring. This means that you may wear your favorite color or black, provided you add a dash of contrast!

Because of the vogue for contrast, such exciting tri-color combinations as skipper blue and white with yellow, or black and white with green or red will be worn by smart women.

Be Both Demure and Sophisticated

Jackets appear on every sort of frock . . . and the smartest are those that contrast, either in type of fabric or in color, with the rest of the costume.

The soft suit will be worn everywhere . . . at all hours of the day . . . its gracious femininity of detail enhanced by its stunning simplicity of line.

Coats for Spring resemble dresses so much that it is sometimes hard to tell one from the other. But by their pebbly fabrics ye shall know them!

Dinner pyjamas are no longer matters of idle speculation, but of actual lace or silk crepe, to be worn for dancing as well as for a dinner at home!

Ankle length evening dresses are beginning to replace the almost-to-the-floor frocks of last Winter, with a charmingly light and very Summery effect.

And Make The Little Things Count

Gloves are longer, and should be bought a size too large, so that they slip on and off easily, and wrinkle at the wrist in a most nonchalant manner!

Shoes no longer have to be severely tailored to be smart, although trimming to be in good taste, should still be restrained.

Chalk white jewelry is a very smart accent to almost any of the Spring colors . . . especially to those tri-color arrangements, accented in white.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 9.—[Special.]—Michigan defeated Chicago, 29 to 15 tonight, thereby going into a tie with Purdue and Minnesota for second place in the Big Ten standings.

Seven minutes had elapsed before Michigan scored its first field goal and 10 minutes before the Maroons broke into the scoring column. The last half of the final period was much the same, both teams using substitutes who made the battle a comic affair. The officials charged Michigan with 13 infringements of the rules and Chicago with 14.

Daniels Chosen Captain.

Daniels maintained his reputation as Michigan's high scorer, making three field goals and four free throws. Immediately after the contest, which closed the schedule, he was chosen captain of the 1932 quintet.

Altenhof cashed in on a free throw for Michigan's first point and then Eveland tore in for a short shot to give the Wolverines a three point lead. Daniels tossed one in from the foul line a minute later.

Porter gave Chicago its first two points and Daniels then caged a field goal and two free throws to give Michigan a 9 to 2 lead. Here Fish came in for a short one, and a minute later he made good on a charity toss. Parsons followed it with another free throw.

Petrie Sinks Long Shot.

Petrie, who replaced Weiss, made good on a long toss and Daniels scored two foul throws to close the Wolverine's counting for the period. Parsons scored a short try after shaking loose from Daniels.

Altenhof broke the ice in the second period by caging a long one. Petrie duplicated it a minute later. Eveland then dropped in two free throws and Petrie one, and Daniels and Eveland counted from the floor to give Michigan a 24 to 8 lead.

Shaw, the first of the Michigan reserves to go on the floor, netted another free throw before Fish counted on a free shot for the Maroons. The visitors then took up the offensive, Schlifke counting a basket and Fish two more free throws. Hudson dropped through an easy one from short range, and Weiss ended the season's scoring for Michigan by following it up with another bucket. Schlifke swished one in from near the center of the floor just before the final gun sounded.

GOPHERS, 31; OHIO, 24

Minneapolis, Minn., March 9.—[Special.]—The University of Minnesota basketball team drove into a second place tie with Purdue and Michigan here tonight when they romped off with a 31 to 24 decision over Ohio State.

For a time the Gophers looked as though they would make a runaway of it, holding the Buckeyes scoreless for the field until 17 minutes had elapsed. Minnesota led, 17 to 2, at the half, but Ohio came back with four baskets at the start of the second half against a makeshift array of Gophers to make things interesting. At 23 all the score was tied, but then the Gophers took charge of things to finish in front.

Once again the forward duo of Capt. Schoening and Loose were the principal cogs in the Gopher triumph as they wound up their collegiate basketball careers.

SAM WILLAMAN DENIES HE WILL QUIT OHIO STATE

Columbus, O., March 9.—[Special.]—Reports that Ohio State would have a new football coach next season were denied here this afternoon by Sam B. Willaman, now head grid coach. According to advices from Western Reserve university of Cleveland, Willaman has been offered a five year contract at a salary of $10,000 a year.

Willaman denied receiving an offer and at the same time said he was going ahead with his plans here for spring football practice the last of the month.

FUNNY MEN OF MOVIES FADE OUT BEFORE CUBS, 19-1

Comedians' Nine Remains in Character.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 9.—Joe E. Brown, a movie funny man, and eight jolly stage carpenters came over to Catalina island this afternoon and attempted to be serious in the perpetration of a ball game in collaboration with the Cubs. Despite their attempts to be serious, Mr. Brown and his cast were very funny.

Mr. Brown once had a couple of cups of coffee in the major leagues, but at the request of baseball employers went out into new fields of endeavor. Now he is an actor at a reported three grand a week, which is probably more than he would be making had he continued in the baseball profession. The game still has the old lure for him, though, he says.

Statistics relative to movie affairs always are sketchy, but the most reliable rumors had it that the eventual score of the game was: Cubs, 19; Actors, 1.

Natives Enjoy It.

The farcical character of the contest was somewhat of a disappointment to the experts, who consider the national pastime a sacred pursuit, but the natives, released for a half holiday, seemed to enjoy the spectacle, seeing that there were several movie actresses posing for pictures with Hack Wilson, Rogers Hornsby, and other Cubs.

Late in the game a Mr. Ruby went in at second base. Mr. Ruby writes many of those black out sketches for the musical shows and films, and makes so much money that all the newspaper writers rooted in a body against him.

The first time Mr. Ruby came to bat, the Mexican band played one of his songs, "Three Little Words," and Mr. Ruby responded by striking out. Umpire Lotshaw, a wag himself, shouted, "Three little words — you are out."

The Cubs will engage themselves in routine labors tomorrow and Wednesday, when they will play their final intraclub game of the season. Thursday morning will be devoted to trunk packing and at 3:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon the uke players will strum "Aloha" as the boys push off Avalon's shores for another year.

Play Angels 5 Games.

Friday afternoon the real exhibition season will be starting at 2:15 o'clock. There will be games with the Los Angeles Angels on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but Monday will be a day of rest. Tuesday business will be resumed, games being played Tuesday and Wednesday, after which the San Franciscan pilgrimage begins.

A week from Sunday the Cubs regulars will play morning and afternoon games against Pittsburgh in the new San Francisco ball park.

The present indication is that the squad will leave its training base 100 per cent strong, a contrast with last year and the year before. Two years ago Gabby Hartnett left camp with a dead arm and last year Hornsby set sail with his famed horned heel in full bloom.

California weather boosters are pulling for two more days of perfect weather. If this is accomplished the Cubs will have a record of not having been forced to practice under so much as one tiny cloud during their stay here.

Reveal Alumni Fund Records to Iowa Solons

Des Moines, Ia., March 9.—(AP)—The records of the alleged alumni "slush fund" for University of Iowa athletes were revealed today before the legislative investigating committee, which began an inquiry into the cause of the school's ouster from the Big Ten conference in 1929.

PAUL BELTING.

Willis Mercer, Iowa City merchant, who administered the fund for five years, told the committee it was for emergency use to help deserving athletes and was not used to induce men to attend the university.

He denied that President Walter Jessup had anything to do with the fund, declaring that the executive refused to consider a plan to be administered by a faculty-alumni committee. Mercer said he and Paul E. Belting, at that time athletic director, worked out such a proposal and submitted it to Jessup.

Advanced Money as Loan.

Money was advanced to athletes to pay their tuition or other requirements, Mercer said, with the understanding that the allowance was a loan and not a gift.

"It was merely an emergency fund to help men over the rough places," Mercer said. "Usually the loan was made when the athlete was competing in his own sport."

Mercer said the alumni fund may have contributed to the school's suspension, but he could not say positively.

"The Big Ten never seemed to want to know much about the fund," he said. "I think it was run too honestly to suit them. I offered to talk to Maj. John Griffith about it, but he did not seem to want to."

The alumni had no intention of knowingly violating conference rules, Mercer testified. He maintained the system was a common practice in other Big Ten schools.

May Have Caused Ouster.

Representative Byron G. Allen will go to Chicago tomorrow to take a deposition from Maj. Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner, relative to the school's ouster from the conference.

The committee voted at adjournment late today to send Allen to hear testimony of the Big Ten commissioner and other witnesses. Earl Wisdom, assistant attorney general, is expected to accompany him, and Henry Walker, Iowa City attorney, will represent the state board of education.

E. H. Lauer, university athletic director, also will be in the party.

The decline in funds, Mercer's testimony showed, brought a letter to him from Auditor W. H. Cobb in September, 1927, asking that a group of notes taken by the university for athletes' tuition be paid. The letter, a copy of which was introduced as evidence, said the notes must be settled during the semester, because an investigation might prove embarrassing to the athletic department.

NEWS TO GRIFFITH.

Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commission, last night said he had received no invitation to confer today with an Iowa delegation concerning the University of Iowa's ouster from the Big Ten in 1929.

"All I know about it is what I have read in the papers," Maj. Griffith said, "but I expect I shall hear from them if they come to Chicago."

CENTRAL A. A. U. TO HOLD TRACK MEET FRIDAY

The thirty-third annual senior indoor track meet of the Central A. A. U. will be held Friday night at Oak Park High school field house. Championships will be decided in both men's and women's divisions. Special events include a high school medley relay, Oak Park grammar school relay, and an Oak Park church basketball league relay, in which a basketball will be passed instead of a baton.

SOX REGULARS TO MEET RESERVES, ROOKIES TODAY

Bush Seeks Information on New Players.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 9.—Donie Bush, the White Sox pilot, finally has concluded that a few intracamp games might serve as a means of giving him more needed information on the vast army of athletes now under his command. To this end he has ordered actual combat for tomorrow, the principals to be what now are known as the Sox regulars and a team comprised of the reserves and rookies.

The decision to put on a camp game and at the same time add a little life to a daily practice undoubtedly was hurried by the failure of the new players, scheduled for regular jobs, to display any startling symptoms in the two frigid days at Houston. While there Bush was particularly interested in his prospective infield, but the members thereof, Willie Kamm excepted, acted in a mediocre manner. The fact that Bush wouldn't comment on their work should be sufficient proof that he wasn't satisfied.

See Watwood at First.

It will cause no surprise if Bush soon begins to give more attention to Johnny Watwood as the regular first sacker. Radcliff, who had been selected for the job even before Bush had seen him in uniform, thus far has failed to display the fielding agility expected from a young athlete. Whether he is as good a hitter as advertised will not be known until he faces some finished pitching.

The same uncertainty exists about Bill Cissell as a second sacker. He still is inclined to be erratic defensively. He'll have to bear down to keep Johnny Kerr from the job. Appling, the new shortstop, seems to have ability, but will need intensive schooling before he tones down.

So that the irregulars will have at least a chance against the regulars tomorrow, Bush is going to loan some of his star pitching talent to the former gang. They will have the help of Thomas, McKain, and Braxton. The game probably will be cut to six innings, thus allowing two rounds of labor for each. It will be their first appearance of the spring and they are now so far along in their conditioning that there will be no excuse for them if the regulars hit them. The hurling for the first team will be handled by Intlekofer, Frasier, and O'Shaughnessy, the last named a Chicago semi-pro of possibilities.

New Men Get Chance.

In the second team lineup will be players who so far haven't had a chance to prove whether there was any reason for the Sox purchasing them from various minors. The infield will be made up of Watwood at first, Kerr at second, Mulleavy at short, and either Goff or Jeffries at third. The latter will perform if his spiked right leg permits. Eventually Jeffries may be given a chance at the shortstop job.

The second string outfield will be filled by Daddy Fothergill, the fat man; Finlator from Selma, Okla., and Willingham from Dallas. Both the last named boys made reputations as hitters. Bush is especially impressed by the form of Finlator, who has a stance almost an exact duplicate of Hornsby's.

Today's drill, conducted in a fairly warm atmosphere, was a bit tame. A number of the boys who made the Houston jaunt complained about stiffness. They probably hadn't thawed out. Old man Faber wasn't included in this lot. He remained here while the Houston expedition was under way, so he was in fine fettle this noon for his first real workout. He hurled for about fifteen minutes in batting practice and actually showed so much that the ambitious hitters were plainly annoyed.

Travel Next Week.

Ted Lyons, who had spent several days indoors while battling a cold, was able to return to uniform. He wisely confined his training efforts to the receiving end of a bunting game.

Next week, which originally was left open for training here, probably will be filled completely by barnstorming engagements.

CATERPILLAR AT WORK

Kenny (Little Caterpillar) Jackson, one of the four surviving flyweights in the Golden Gloves tournament, returned to work in a Peoria "caterpillar" factory after his four victories in the Tournament of Champions last week, but he'll be back at the Stadium tomorrow night, battling for a place on the team which meets New York's best March 30.

Keenan Points with Pride, but He Can't View with Alarm

BY HOWARD BARRY.

This is the season in which public characters are given to pointing with pride and viewing with alarm, so it seems high time some one suggested that Mr. George Keenan do a little speechmaking on his own account. But there are two reasons why such a suggestion would be out of order.

For while it is true that this young man, who is one of the outstanding contenders for the Golden Gloves welterweight championship, has many things to which he might point with pride, he probably would have difficulty finding something to view with alarm. And in the second place he's a man of action, not words.

Call It 57.

Among the things to which he might point with pride are 55 victories in the course of 57 fights—and the two defeats were avenged promptly in return bouts. Then there are his victories over Chancy Crain and Nick Fosco in the south side preliminaries of the Golden Gloves tournament.

Crain was one of the hardest battlers on last year's team, every opponent who faced him being on the floor at least once. He came back this season a prime favorite to repeat, but Keenan put him out before the tournament was fairly started. And Keenan's victory over Nick Fosco speaks for itself, for Nick's prowess is well known to all the fans who saw him fight his way to a place on the 1929 Golden Gloves team.

Those are some of the things to which Keenan might point with pride, but what could he view with alarm? To an outsider there would seem to be plenty, for three hard punching opponents still are in the running for the welterweight championship and George will have to beat two of them before he can claim a Golden Glove. That should be enough to alarm anybody—but not George. For he's proved in his 57 encounters that he simply can't get alarmed.

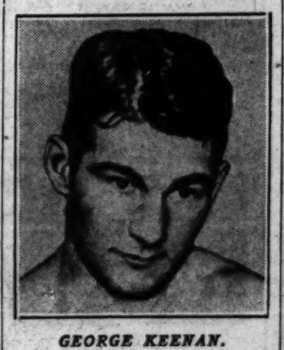
Jim Starts Him.

It was George's older brother, James, who started him in the boxing game. James needed a sparring partner, so George volunteered, and it soon became apparent that the youngster was more than an animated punching bag. He learned how to slam over a right cross with knockout power, how to punish an adversary with tantalizing jabs and how to sidestep a haymaker.

Presently George was ready to do some fighting on his own hook and here's how he began—three victories in his first three bouts, two of them technical knockouts and one of them a decision. After that he just breezed along, knocking off one opponent after another. He joined Johnny Coulon's gymnasium and is representing that institution in the Golden Gloves tournament.

George entered last year's meet and it was only hard luck that stopped him. After beating his first opponent, he contracted blood poison in his right arm and was forced to withdraw.

Boxer and Golfer



GEORGE KEENAN.

While attending Lindblom High school, from which he was graduated last month, George went out for the boxing, wrestling, and golf teams, making all three of them. He won the 135 pound boxing championship of the school and played on the golf team which took the city title in 1930.

A Good Golfer, Too.

He used to spend his summer vacations at the Palos Park course, where he had charge of the water hole, his business consisting of swimming after lost balls. Next to boxing, golf is his favorite sport and he plays it well, shooting in the high 70s or low 80s.

George comes from Buffalo, N. Y., having moved to Chicago's south side when he was three years old. He now lives with his mother and father, three brothers and two sisters, at 3829 West 64th place.

BLACKHAWKS AND CANADIENS PLAY RUBBER CONTEST

MONTREAL, March 9.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks and World Champion Les Canadiens will play the rubber game of their four game season series tomorrow night. In the three games played each has won one. The other resulted in a tie.

The Blackhawks are out to win the game, although Les Canadiens' defeat of Detroit Sunday night clinched a playoff position for the Chicago team. Victory tomorrow will entrench the Chicagoans in second place, which they now hold by a slender game and a half margin.

N. Y. BOYS TRADE SOME SOCKS FOR GOLDEN GLOVES

25 Scrappers Qualify for Final Round.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—Fifty young amateur fighters of various weights whiled away a pleasant evening at Mecca temple tonight belting one another around the ring in a series of 25 semi-final bouts of the New York News' 1931 Golden Gloves tournament. They were the survivors of an original field of about 3,300 kids who began thumping about a month ago in a scattered program of elimination bouts held in little clubs and parish houses all over New York and in nearby regions of New Jersey.

They were divided into two divisions, the open and sub-novice classes. The open class boys were fighters who had fought in other tournaments before; the sub-novices had no tournament experience prior to the present one. It was easy to tell the difference in most cases without reference to the program. The open class fighters showed more know how and nonchalance than the others.

Where They Fight for Fun.

The hall was small by comparison with the Garden, where the New York finals will be held on March 16 and the intercity bouts with the Chicago team on March 30. It was hard to absorb the idea that the boys were fighting just for fun and the honor of fighting for fun some more in the big store, the Garden, later on, but that was the central idea of the show nevertheless.

There were no heavyweight fights, the practice being to save the semi-final fights among the big ones for the night of the final show. Then there will be two semi-final heavyweight bouts and a final in each division, open and sub-novice.

The young men worked against a back drop of royal palms, Florida bungalows and pyramids, in three colors, ordinarily used for the fraternal jinks and rituals of the brethren who own the temple.

The most knocked outest young man of all in the course of the slugging was George Walker of the Hackensack Y. M. C. A., a sub-novice weighing 147 pounds. Johnny Consiglio laid him a tap on the chin in the first round and he went down so hard he almost broke in pieces.

Like Tendler and Chaney.

In the 126 pound sub-novice class the four round fight between Izzy Gibbs of the well known Kovno family of Gibbs, and Vincent Dimare, was a wild reminder of the days of Leftie Lew Tendler and K. O. George Chaney at their best. Gibbs is a left-hander by nature, but a turnover hitter, and whenever Dimare seemed to be timing his left-hand shots and rolling under them consistently, he switched about and turned orthodox. For three rounds they slugged away, free style, with a delegation of Gibbs' neighbors sitting just outside the ring on the platform, yelling "geevem Izzy" and "hittim in the kishkis, Izzy."

In the fourth round Dimare spent

HAVE YOU GOT YOUR GOLDEN GLOVE TICKETS?

Tickets for the Golden Glove finals at Chicago Stadium tomorrow night are going fast, but there still are hundreds of good $1 and $2 seats available at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn street. No further mail orders will be accepted.

Thirty-two boys, survivors of a field of 2,000, will battle it out for championships and the right to represent Chicago against New York in the intercity bouts at Madison Square Garden, March 30.

TOMORROW IS BIG NIGHT FOR FIGHTERS, FANS

Championship Facts

Event—Golden Gloves finals.
Place—Chicago Stadium, tomorrow night.
Admission—$1, $2, and $3; all seats reserved.
First bout—7:30 p. m.
Contestants—32 boys from 12 out of town teams and Chicago.
Boxers—Report between 2 and 4 o'clock tomorrow at the Stadium to weigh in; physical examinations between 5 and 6 o'clock; drawings at 6:30.
Team trophy point scoring—First, 6; Second, 3; third and fourth, 1 point each.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Two armies—one made up of fighters, the other of spectators—today will begin marching toward Chicago and the Chicago Stadium where tomorrow night the championships will be decided in THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament.

When these armies are mobilized and are at full strength at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening fighting troops will number 32 of the best amateur boxers from Chicago and six surrounding states. The army of spectators, which will fill every seat and every nook and corner of the world's largest indoor arena, will come from all parts of the country and will number slightly more than 23,000. It will be the greatest crowd ever to see an indoor boxing show.

Tickets Still Available.

While a world's record attendance is practically assured, this does not mean that all tickets have been sold. Several hundred good seats in the lower priced sections will be on sale at THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service office today. Tomorrow night at 7:45 o'clock two thousand general admission tickets will go on sale.

Eleventh hour requests for tickets came into THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service office last night by the thousands. This was an indication there will not be a ticket unsold.

The boxers—large and small—the champions from Chicago and the champions from Chicagoland—wound up their training yesterday except for the light workouts which they will take today. Some of the boys may have to exercise a bit tomorrow in order to make weight, but for the most part the hard work for these young fighters striving for a Golden Glove and a place on the Chicago team which later meets New York, and still later fights the champions of France, was over when they took off their fighting togs after yesterday's drills.

Doxey Is Ruled Out.

An eleventh hour change was made in the 112 pound division when Frank Doxey, the Springfield champion, was ruled a professional by the Western association of the Amateur Athletic union. This automatically eliminated him from the competition. The place left vacant was filled by the substitution of Johnny Nate of the South Bend team, who made the best showing of all the flyweights who were beaten in the tournament of champions at the Coliseum last week.

Among the early arrivals at the Stadium tomorrow night will be a party from New York which will include several scouts for the New York News team. One New York scout watched the Tournament of Champions last week.

The program will open tomorrow night with the semi-final round, and the 112 poundera, as usual, will step into the ring first. There will be sixteen semi-final struggles and then will follow the eight bouts in which eight champions will be crowned. At the end of each fight a Golden Glove, emblematic of the 1931 championship, will be awarded to the victorious gladiator.

Will Finish in Four Hours.

It is expected the program will be completed in four hours or less. This depends entirely on the number of knockouts. One bout will follow another in rapid fire order. Boxers will report to be weighed in between 3 o'clock and 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The pairings will be made by lot at 6 o'clock.

Plans were going forward last night to handle the record breaking throng as it makes its way to and from the scene of the Golden Gloves battles. Extra police are to be added to the Stadium force, extra trains are to be run both on the surface and elevated lines, and additional parking space will be provided.

No boxing show held in Chicago has attracted more general interest than the battles tomorrow night. The amateur struggles were being discussed everywhere yesterday and last night. There was a wild scramble for ringside tickets, which were not to be found. There was no evidence of scalping.

Improvement Noted in Ban Johnson's Condition

St. Louis, Mo., March 9.—(AP)—Considerable improvement was noted today in the condition of Ban Johnson, retired president of the American league, but his condition continued serious, attaches at St. John's hospital here said. The former baseball czar took more nourishment today than he has at any time for several weeks.

the first minutes blasting Izzy on the chin with his right hand, but the scion of the Kovno Gibbsea had high absorbent qualities and after the Italian had used himself up Izzy's left hand recommenced the drumming on Vincent's solid jaw. Izzy won the decision to the great pleasure of his cheering section, and the two boys swayed into each other's arms for a final clash of their soggy gloves as they left the ring.

Siciari Storm Ring.

The next riot at 112 pounds in the open class brought the Siciari family into the ring in considerable force. There was Jimmy Siciari, twice a Golden Gloves winner and captain of last year's New York team; Joe Siciari, also a Golden Gloves champion of the past, and, under their brotherly charge, a bantamweight fighter named Jack Siciari, to fight for the family tradition against Jimmy Martin, whose name might have been Martini not so long ago.

Jimmy Siciari was unexpectedly interrupted and eliminated from this year's tournament recently, and tonight. Martin painted Jack's face red with right hands on the nose and for the first time in several years the Golden Gloves tournament advanced to the final round without a Siciari remaining in the lists.

Another fight in the same class presented Charley Villareal, recent winner of the state bantamweight championship, in a strange affair with Anthony Idone, a squat, hairy legged little party who crouched so low and wide with a wishbone stance that he always seemed on the point of reaching down for a cobblestone to upholster his glove. Villareal, very pretty and graceful, was bouncing hither and yon, making the acquaintance of this unusual person, when suddenly a thump sounded and Villareal went spinning to the floor on the point of his chin. He got up quickly and from his superior height began throwing things down on Tony. They soon established mutual respect.

The Battle Grows Hotter.

Tony fielded a few smacks with his chin and began to clinch as his seconds, from outside the ropes, yelled "Hold him, Tony." Villareal desired no further relations with Tony's right hand which had up-ended him. They went three rounds to an even score, devoting themselves to feinting and ducking more than amateurs generally do, and after the fourth round Villareal won the decision by some fraction of a point. It was, as Villareal's chief second remarked pleasantly on leaving the ring, a verminous fight.

The best fighter on the program was one Johnny Bonito, a 126 pounder of the open class, who executed Maury Roth, a game, sneering slugger, in one round. The victim bobbed to his corner on his heels, his face looking as if some one had slapped him in the face with a paint brush soaked in red lead. He mumbled some drunken defiance when the referee decided to call it off just there, but he was the most thoroughly beaten young man of the evening, the victim of the best puncher in the house.

Hibernators Soon Will Be Awakening

BY BOB BECKER.

Although the mild winter—mild up to the arrival of last Saturday's blizzards—upset the sleeping schedules of many hibernators, it won't be long until these creatures can safely wake up and resume normal life above ground without the worry of snowstorms.

Snakes, frogs, toads, turtles, chipmunks, gophers or ground squirrels, and other interesting inhabitants of the outdoor world still are half alive, half dead as far as activity is concerned, and not until warm days come will they end their sleeping orgy. Bears also are in the long sleep class.

Thus we find that this group, which retires in the fall, ranges from big animals like bears to small toads and frogs which bury themselves in the mud.

Ground Hog Comes Out.

In between the biggest of the sleepers and the small fellow of ponds and streams we have the famous woodchuck, who lends himself to the fiction of ground hog day. This animal fixes up a snug underground den for his long winter sojourn beneath the surface. When spring has arrived to provide food for his ingrowing appetite, sharpened by many days of nothing to eat, out he comes to feast on new vegetation.

The raccoon, rated as an on and off winter sleeper, likes a hollow tree for his winter snooze. This animal responds to winter weather by sleeping when it is cold and coming out of his den for a stroll when a midwinter thaw warms up the atmosphere. In late winter he gets up for good, holing up only when a cold snap occurs. Thus the crafty raccoon is rated as a light sleeper who can tune his program to the theremometer.

Turtles and Frogs Dig In.

Whereas the woodchuck, bear, and chipmunk have to spend some time and effort in the preparation of snug winter quarters, turtles and frogs have a much simpler system for a comfortable winter's sleep. When autumn days grow too cold they simply bore into the lake of stream, lake or pond and call it a season. Their heart action slows up and their bodies are in a complete torpor until the spring sun gives them the signal to wake up.

Prometheus Is St. John's Purse Victor

New York, March 9.—(AP)—A chilled and overcoated crowd saw W. R. Padgett's Prometheus, a Whitney castoff, romp away with the St. John's handicap today as thoroughbreds returned to the quaint little oval midway between Jacksonville and St. Augustine for an 18 day meeting.

The 4 year old son of Broomstick was made the odds on favorite for the six furlong sprint and proceeded to beat Guilder by one and one-half lengths. Three lengths back trailed the lightly weighted Black Dove.

Willie Smith did not get away any too alertly with the former Whitney runner, but he rushed him up the back stretch and as the small field reached the bend, Prometheus was matching strides with Guilder, the early pace setter. In the drive for home Prometheus easily forged to the front and down the final furlong was taken in hand, holding the race safe without effort. He paid $3 for a $2 ticket.

Chip, a consistent performer at the Fair Grounds meeting, got back into the money, after finishing fourth the last two times out, with a brilliant triumph in the mile and 70 yard feature at Jefferson Park, New Orleans.

For three quarters of the journey, the five year old son of Supremus was out of the running, but once the field of seven hit the stretch he began to move up fast. At the judges' stand he was four lengths in front of Bud Charlton, the pace setter, with Come On, the favorite, a length to the rear in third position. Chip paid $17.80 for $2.

3 STATE CAGE CHAMPS ENTER LOYOLA TOURNEY

Three winners of state tournaments and a sectional champion yesterday were added to the entry list for the eighth annual national Catholic interscholastic basketball tournament, which opens March 18 at Loyola university.

The new entrants are Father Ryan High school of Nashville, Tenn.; Campion academy of Prairie du Chien, Wis.; Duquesne academy of Pittsburgh; and Mount St. Mary High school of Philadelphia. Father Ryan, Campion, and Duquesne are the winners of the tournaments in their respective states to select representatives for the Loyola tournament, and the Philadelphia school holds the title in its section.

The four new teams have brought to twenty the total of schools accepted for the tournament. They represent fourteen different states.

Fight Decisions

At New York—Lope Tenorio beat Eddie Shapiro [8].

MRS. JONES WINS BELLAIR MEDAL WITH CARD OF 88

Bellair, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Playing steady golf over a rain lashed course, Mrs. Melvin Jones of Chicago today won the qualifying medal in the annual Bellair women's championship. Mrs. Jones' 88 was the only better than 90 card.

In second place with 91 was Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., while a stroke back came Mrs. E. T. Nicholas Jr. of Chicago. Mrs. Sidney Small, Detroit, turned in a 93, two strokes better than Betty Wolvin, St. Petersburg, and Mrs. Helen B. Stetson of Philadelphia, defending champion.

SHAMROCKS AND PLA-MORS MEET ON ICE TONIGHT

Hockey Scores

Duluth, 4; Buffalo, 3.
St. Louis, 5; Minneapolis, 4.

The Kansas City Pla-Mors, 1930 champions of the American Hockey league, and holders of second place in the current race, invade the Stadium rink tonight to meet the Shamrocks. The Chicagoans' chance of earning a position in the league playoff depends upon tonight's game, since a defeat practically will eliminate them as contenders.

The Shamrocks hold a four to two advantage over the Pla-Mors in their meetings thus far this season, but the champions appear to have hit their stride, demonstrating it a couple of weeks ago at the Stadium by pushing the Shamrocks back to third place.

Coach Dennenay of the green and white team will send out a revised starting lineup for tonight's game. Mike Karakas, 19 year old goalkeeper, who played a great game against Tulsa Sunday until he was tricked in the last few minutes, will be in the Chicago net tonight. Karakas entered the game in the last period.

Curley Headley and Spud Burland will start at the defense jobs in place of Bouncer Taylor and Andy Mulligan. The Shamrocks forward lines will remain intact.

...changed to MAN style

Something is transforming the faces of well-dressed men, adding a virile touch which fashion needs to be man style. One quick look tells that the long, graceful Robt. Burns Panatela works the change.

Its voguish outline, right for clear-cut features, charted the way. Smart men promptly followed the back trail to the gentleman's choice of smoking for generations—the cigar.

But they demand this neat, modernistic cigar. Back of genteel appeal, the Robt. Burns Panatela has the essential flavory mildness of full Havana filler. It's a cigar no cigarette smoker need fear.

ROOSEVELT PREP TEAM WINS FROM HARRISON, 43-18

Roosevelt of the north section and Crane of the west were the victors in yesterday's City league semi-final heavyweight basketball games. The former trounced Harrison at the Von Steuben Junior High gym, 43 to 18, while Crane defeated Lake View, 25 to 13, on the latter's court.

Parnofsky with 12 points and Zisman with 13 led the Roosevelt attack, while Bergbom and Applebaum each contributed 8 points. Capt. Odron and Jim Siculak featured for Harrison.

Crane staged a great second half rally and played one of its best defensive games of the year in defeating Lake View. The home team led at the half, 13 to 9, but Crane, led by Bob Gruenig, came back in the second half and scored 16 points while holding Lake View scoreless.

PLAY FOR TITLE

St. Ignatius of the south section and Loyola of the north will meet for the lightweight championship of the Catholic league at De La Salle of Chicago gym tomorrow night.

St. Ignatius heavies will meet De La Salle of Joliet at White City Thursday in a game which will decide the south section title. Both completed their schedules with a record of seven won and three lost. The winner will battle St. Mel, north section victor, for the league championship at Loyola gym Saturday.

CLINNIN URGES HOUSE TO O. K. 15 ROUND BOUTS

Springfield, Ill., March 9.—[Special.]—Revision of the boxing law to permit a maximum of fifteen rounds instead of ten will be urged before the house committee on economy and efficiency tomorrow by Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission.

He declares that longer bouts are necessary if Illinois is to meet the competition of other states such as New York, Michigan, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Kentucky, and California, which allow fifteen round contests. Pennsylvania is asking its legislature for fifteen rounds instead of ten.

MOON MULLINS—HOW TO BE HAPPY THOUGH MARRIED

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL, MRS. ROODLES HAS KINDLY CALLED TO EXPLAIN THAT IT WAS MOONSHINE, NOT ME, WHO WAS WITH HER WHEN THE FELLAH IN THE FUZZY FEDORA GAVE HER SUCH A START. AND I HAVEN'T THE SLIGHTEST IDEA WHO THE MAN WAS.
MY GUESS IS, IT WAS YER HUSBAND, MRS. ROODLES.
NO, IT COULDN'T HAVE BEEN OTIS. HE IS OUT OF TOWN.
WELL, HUSBANDS HAS BEEN KNOWN TO COME BACK, MRS. ROODLES— AND I ALWAYS IMAGINED YOU'D BE HARD FOR A MAN TO GET ALONG WITH.
OH, I AM VERY HAPPY, THANK YOU, MRS. MULLINS. YOU KNOW I'VE GOT THE BEST HUSBAND IN THE COUNTRY.
HA! WHO WOULDN'T BE HAPPY WITH THEIR HUSBAND IN THE COUNTRY!

Cardinals One Up in Spring World Series; Beat A's, 4-3

Fort Myers, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals, National league kings, heaped insult upon injury today by using three rookie pitchers to whip the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 3, and take the third game of the spring world's series in Florida.

It was the second victory for the Red Birds. There is one more exhibition game between these rival championship clubs to be played in Bradenton next Monday.

Grove, in his exhibition debut, was rapped for six hits in three innings. Three of these blows netted the Cards a run in the third. Rommel was the victim of a decisive rally in the sixth when the Cardinals made three runs. Watkins, with two doubles and a single, led the assorted Red Birds at bat.

GIANT ROOKIE LOOKS GOOD.

San Antonio, Tex., March 9.—(AP)—John McGraw's efforts to turn Freddie Lindstrom into an outfielder may turn out to be more than a gesture if Johnny Vergez comes through at third base for the New York Giants.

"Lindstrom's a natural ball player," said McGraw today, "and he will make good in any position. Vergez looks like a pretty good third baseman. He cut loose for the first time today and he impressed me."

BRAVES WHIP ROBINS.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—With Ed Brandt and Bruce Cunningham working in midseason form, the Boston Braves whipped the Brooklyn Robins, 10 to 2, in the first of their spring series today.

The two veteran Boston hurlers let the Robins down with seven hits, while their teammates were slamming the offerings of old Jack Quinn, Ray Phelps, and Fred Helmach. The Braves collected 14 hits, including a home run by Wally Berger and four safeties in as many times at bat by Earl Sheely. Score:

PECK TO TUTOR GOLDMAN.

New Orleans, La., March 9.—(AP)—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh of the Cleveland Indians said that tomorrow he will start to correct the weakness that kept Shortstop Goldman from being one of the best in the American league last year. That was his inability to work speedily as the pivot in a double play. Goldman's leading rival is Bill Hunnefield, formerly of the White Sox.

HAYS SIGNS WITH GRIFFS.

Biloxi, Miss., March 9.—(AP)—Infielder Jack Hayes today signed the 1931 contract offered him by the Washington Senators. The Hayes' contract brought the total of the Senators' players to 37.

FREEMAN WINS 10 ROUND DECISION OVER BABE RUTH

Joey Freeman, south side 130 pounder, continued his winning streak by pounding out a ten round decision over Babe Ruth of Louisville at White City last night. In the semi-windup Phil Ross, South Chicago middleweight, knocked out Dean Spencer of Des Moines, Ia., in the sixth round of a scheduled eight round bout.

Other results were: Joey Bosak beat Bobby Allen, who substituted for Harry Garbell, in five rounds; Hamburg Wiskany beat Kelly Kulac, 5; Kid Irish beat Buddy Kerns, 4, and Joe Barlow shaded Freddie Miller, 5.

LOHMAN VS. DOKTER

Joe Lohman, veteran heavyweight, and Joe Doktor of Buffalo, N. Y., will meet in the six round main event of Promoter Billy Cepak's boxing show at the Cicero Stadium, 20th street and 52d avenue, Friday night. Two other six rounders and four fours round out the program.

Sammy Levine, ex-Golden Gloves champion, will meet Babe Kellar, Cincinnati, O., featherweight, in the six round semi-final. Their previous fight ended in a draw.

Nick Clementi vs. Henry Cullen, 4 rounds, 116 pounds.

North Central Head Sticks to Guns Against Big Ten

Tulsa, Okla., March 9.—[Special.]—"I do not anticipate that the North Central association will take any backward steps affecting the administration of athletics in its member schools and colleges," Merle C. Prunty, president of the North Central association of colleges and secondary schools, said here tonight.

Prunty was replying to reports indicating that Western conference schools might sever connections with the North Central unless the association assumed a hands off attitude toward Big Ten athletic policies.

Won't Surrender Standards.

"The leadership of the North Central is firmly set in its decison that our colleges shall remain educational institutions, and not surrender educational standards to those agencies, either inside or outside the colleges, which are attempting to administer college athletics.

"The size of the schools has nothing to do with their retaining membership if they violate the rules we have laid down. But the North Central association never has taken a hasty or rash action," Prunty concluded.

FIGHT FOR TRACK MEETS

Lincoln, Ill., March 9.—[Special.]—Central Illinois high school principals and track coaches see in the recent action of Illinois state colleges in cancelling interscholastic track and field meets the death knell of this sport. Many plan to attend the annual meeting of the North Central association of Secondary Schools and Colleges to be held at the Hotel Stevens, Chicago, next week, in the hopes that this body will rescind its recommendation tabooing these meets.

Millikin, Illinois Wesleyan, and Bradley have called off their annual meets because of pressure from the North Central. Almost to a man, high school principals and coaches declare that within five years there will not be any track and field sports, and are unanimous in agreeing that North Central is making a mistake.

The high school principals are up in arms over the fact that a small group of men should attempt to dictate the policy of entire states and will go to Chicago next week armed for a bitter fight.

Coach Harry Hill of Atlanta, who has served as a high school superintendent and principal for 15 years, declares it is the most absurd action he has ever heard a group of educators make and recommended the "wholesale drowning" of the North Central men responsible.

FRENCH NETMEN DOMINATE U. S. INDOOR MEET

New York, March 9.—(AP)—Unless the postman changes the situation with the first mail in the morning, Jean Borotra and his French mates will face little opposition from the boys in the American indoor tennis championships opening here Monday.

The entry list closed tonight with no word from Johnny Doeg, national outdoor titleholder and No. 1 ranking star for 1930; Johnny Van Ryn, or George Lott Jr., both Davis cup reliables. If their entries are in the mail delivered tomorrow, postmarked before the lists closed tonight, they will be accepted.

The American contingent, without considering the possibilities of the late mail, will consist of Cliff Sutter, New Orleans collegian; Frank X. Shields, New York, Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin. Francis T. Hunter, who won the singles crown in 1930, has turned professional, leaving the title open.

Indications today were that the mail would not increase the entry list of stars and that Doeg, Van Ryn, and Lott would save their energy for an indoor series with the Borotra squad here March 23, 24, and 25. Shields is the fourth member of the American team. Borotra, with Christian Boussus and Paul Landry, are due here tomorrow on the liner Paris.

4 PAIRS LEFT IN BEST BALL GOLF MEET AT MIAMI

Sarazen and Farrell Have Close Call.

Miami, Fla., March 9.—(AP)—Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, fighting back a dark horse threat, outlasted John Kinder and Jack Thompson over the 36 hole quarter final round of the $5,000 international four ball matches today to win, 1 up.

While Gene and Johnny were advancing, Denny Shute and Tony Manero teamed to upset Clarence Gamber and Cyril Walker, defending champions, 2 and 1.

McFarlane, Cox Win.

In the fourth quarter final Willie MacFarlane and Whiffy Cox kept their strokes in order on fairway and greens to eliminate Charley Guest and George Christ, 4 and 3.

The semi-finals tomorrow will send Sarazen and Farrell against Shute and Manero in one bracket, and Hagen and Smith against MacFarlane and Cox in the other.

Doped by tourney followers to win handily from Kinder and Thompson, Sarazen and Farrell barely staved off defeat and trailed throughout the day to the 32d, where Sarazan's four put him on even terms. Farrell sank a three on the 35th to go one into the lead and they halved the 36th.

Match Ends on 34th.

Hagen and Smith methodically played out in front of Mehlhorn and Walsh. The favorites ended the match on the 34th, three in the lead.

MacFarlane and Cox halved the first 14 holes with Guest and Christ, lost one, regained it and were leading one up at noon. They had no difficulty in the afternoon, finishing by the longest margin of the day when they ended the match on the 33d.

Indiana Governor Signs Bill Legalizing Boxing

Indianapolis, Ind., March 9.—[Special.]—The bill creating a state boxing and wrestling commission, and legalizing fights and wrestling matches to a decision in Indiana, was signed here tonight by Gov. Harry G. Leslie. The state will exact a tax on gate receipts at all fights.

• • Blending makes it better

IN the test kitchen of a great soup maker, the gifted master-chef creates the blend of ingredients to produce the perfect soup. In a scent-laden room in a corner of France an expert blender of perfume invokes his highest genius that our sense of smell may be gratified. In a work-room fragrant with the aroma of many types of coffee beans, a highly-paid specialist concentrates his energies that we may be provided with a coffee blend to please our palates. Whether it's soup or soap, tobacco or tea, music or mustard . . blending is vital to the production of the best of each. Equally as vital, if not first in importance, is the knowledge and genius of the blender. He must know how.

The best gasoline, too, is blended. In the processes of a modern refinery three types of gasoline are produced. They are, Natural Gasoline, Straight-run Gasoline, and Cracked Gasoline. Each possesses certain desirable qualities necessary for perfect motor operation . . . but . . . no one of them possesses all these wanted characteristics.

So CONOCO Gasoline is a blend of the three. There is Natural Gasoline, to give quick starting. There is Straight-run Gasoline, to give power and long-mileage. There is Cracked Gasoline, with its desirable anti-knock quality. Just as carefully as the perfume blender at his delicate task, CONOCO refiners have developed their balanced blend of these three ingredients. Theirs is the gift of knowing how to merge the qualities of the three gasolines to create a balanced, triple-test fuel. One brand of coffee outsells all others because of the expertness of its blender. And so, with CONOCO Balanced-Blend Gasoline, the skill of the blender accounts for the popularity of the product. Stop today at the sign of the CONOCO Red Triangle and have your gas tank filled with this better motor fuel.

I. N. G. REGIMENT TO ESCORT BODY OF GEN. STUART

The body of Brig. Gen. James E. Stuart, veteran of three wars, who died Sunday, will be borne to the grave at Forest Home cemetery tomorrow afternoon, escorted by the 800 officers and men of the 132d infantry, Illinois National Guard, under the command of Col. Charles H. Davis. The guardsmen will march from their armory to the Warren Avenue Congregational church for the services at 2 o'clock and afterward will accompany the funeral procession as far west as Homan avenue.

From 11 o'clock tomorrow morning the body will lie in state at the church. A guard of honor will be recruited from his old regiment, the 132d. The funeral services will be in charge of Dr. J. A. Jenkins, formerly pastor of the Warren Avenue church and a chaplain in the world war. Veterans of the civil, Spanish-American, and world wars, in which Gen. Stuart participated, will make up a color guard.

Former comrades in three wars called yesterday at the Stuart home at 3144 West Monroe street to pay their last respects. Messages of condolence reached the family from many cities as well as from hundreds of Chicagoans.

William Matthews Rites Will Be Held Tomorrow

Funeral services for William Matthews, for the last nine years manager of collections in the United States for the International Harvester company, will be held in the Church of the Atonement, Kenmore and Ardmore avenues, tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Matthews, who was 63 years old, died suddenly on Friday while on his way to Florida in an automobile. His widow and three daughters survive.

HENRY J. BOHN OF HOTEL WORLD TAKEN BY DEATH

Henry J. Bohn, 75 years old, publisher of the Hotel World for the last fifty years, died yesterday at St. Petersburg, Fla.

A native of Cuyahoga county, Fla., Mr. Bohn came to Chicago in 1876. At the age of 23 he was foreman in a printing shop, and since 1879 had been a publisher of technical books and trade papers. He had been a trustee of the village of Morgan Park and president of the Calumet park district. In 1897 he organized the Hotel association of Chicago.

Mr. Bohn was a member of the Art institute and of the Union League, Hamilton and Press clubs. A widow, one son and four daughters survive.

Mrs. Madge Rae, Widow of Newspaper Worker, Dead

Mrs. Madge Rae, 72 years old, widow of Fred Rae, who was on the editorial staff of the old Chicago Chronicle, died yesterday in the West Side hospital of a fracture of the hip. She stumbled over a rug in her home at 4900 Monroe street on Feb. 13.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

EISMAN—Goldie Eisman. In loving memory of our beloved daughter and sister, Goldie, who passed away one year ago today.

"There is a link that death cannot sever;
Love and remembrance last forever."

MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

MILLER—Hortense Miller, whose 17th birthday is today, March 10, 1931.

We think of you in silence;
No eye can see us weep,
But many a silent tear we shed,
When others are asleep.
But what we'd give to clasp your hand,
Your darling face to touch,
To hear your voice we loved so well,
That means so much to us.

Lovingly, MOTHER AND DAD.

PALMER—In memory of my father, George E. Palmer, who passed away March 10, 1928. RUBY PALMER WITZTHUM.

SURVEY SHOWS BARGAIN VALUES IN MDSE. LINES

BY O. A. MATHER.

"It is the history of most economic depressions that they end when commodity prices have fallen, when production has declined to or below normal demand, and when excess stocks of goods have been consumed. There are obvious evidences that these factors have been operating for some time and are now bringing a gradual improvement in trade and industry.

FREDERICK D. CORLEY.

Results of an exhaustive investigation of primary merchandise markets were made known last night by Frederick D. Corley, vice president and merchandise manager of Marshall Field & Co. As the result of the general decline in commodity prices many lines of merchandise now can be sold at lower prices than prevailed during the 1920-'21 deflation period, while some lines show even lower prices than prevailed during the pre-war year of 1913-'14.

Points Way to Buying.

"We studied the primary merchandise markets, surveyed the current retail offerings in our own and other great retail stores, and compared our buyers' first choices made from the available emergency offerings of merchandise—all in relation to the most outstanding values in the deflation era ten years ago," Mr. Corley said. "The results surprised us and we think they are of widespread interest and great importance generally in the retail trade. We believe this will point the way to freer buying and a less restrained spirit of trading in all lines of business."

Evidencing that production in some important lines has fallen considerably below demand, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants reported yesterday that sales of standard cotton cloths last month reached 154 per cent of production, which was the largest ratio of sales to output in four years. Sales in February totaled 326,691,000 yards, shipments were 303,954,000 yards, and production was 211,163,000 yards.

Stocks on hand on Feb. 28 totaled 1,328,000 yards, a decline of 10.2 per cent for the month, and reaching the lowest level since statistics were started at the beginning of 1928. Unfilled orders at the end of February were 295,892,000 yards, an increase of 9.7 per cent over Jan. 31 and the largest since Dec. 31, 1929.

Cites Definite Gains.

The American Bankers Association Journal calls attention to the fact that retail trade is holding the level of a year ago, but that the accepted index of production are still about 20 per cent below the corresponding period in 1930. Further, it recites that general business has not lost any ground in the last month, while definite gains have been made in several key industries, including steel, automobiles, and textiles.

Chicago steel makers and jobbers reported a better demand and an increase in unfilled orders as the result of improvement in the automobile industry. Steel plant operations in the Chicago district are expected to average between 55 and 60 per cent of capacity this week, compared with 55 per cent last week. Operations also have been expanded somewhat in the Youngstown district.

In the automotive field the Cadillac division of the General Motors corporation announced an increase in its daily production schedule to 3,000 cars from 2,600 units. Output this month will be approximately 2,400 cars. Expanding production schedules also were announced by E. S. Gorrell, president of the Stutz Motor Car company. Shipments last month were 2½ times those of February, 1930, and orders carried over into March were six times as large as a year ago.

N. Y. Central, Pennsy Roads Offer $125,000,000 in Bonds

New York, March 9.—(AP)—The effects of the recent strength in the bond market appeared today in the offering of two new railroad bond issues totaling $125,000,000.

A syndicate headed by J. P. Morgan & Co. is offering $75,000,000 of first mortgage refunding 4½ per cent bonds of the New York Central Railroad company at par and accrued interest, subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission. These bonds are being issued to refund an issue of $50,000,000 of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad and to reimburse the treasury of the New York Central for expenditures previously made.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. lead a syndicate which is offering $50,000,000 of 4¼ per cent general mortgage fifty year bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad company at 96½ and accrued interest, subject to the approval of the interstate commerce commission. The bonds are not redeemable before maturity. This offering is the first general mortgage bonds of the Pennsylvania to be sold since 1918.

Meet Capital Requirements.

This issue, which is tax exempt in Pennsylvania, will fill the new capital requirements of the Pennsylvania for the rest of 1931. The proceeds will reimburse the treasury of the company for the construction of necessary additions, betterments and improvements to the property covered by the mortgage.

The marketing of the New York Central issue is expected in Wall street to be followed a little later in the year by an offering of rights to stockholders to subscribe to additional common stock, furnishing funds for extensions and improvements. Plans for this stock financing are subject to changing market conditions, but indications are that the directors will seek to raise around $40,000,000 through the sale of stock.

There are outstanding 4,992,597 shares of capital stock of $100 par, leaving available 2,007,403 shares of the authorized 7,000,000 shares. Stockholders last year approved an increase in authorized stock by 2,000,000 shares.

Previous Offerings.

The last rights to shareholders were offered in 1929 at par in the ratio of one new share for each thirteen shares held. They expired on Jan. 31, 1930. Previous offerings were at the rate of one for ten in August, 1928; one for ten in November, 1927, and one for ten in January, 1924.

The amounts raised in this manner were $24,902,460 in 1924, $28,325,000 in 1927, $41,975,900 in 1928, and $35,669,900 in 1930. On the 1928 offering subscribers were permitted to make payments in two installments.

Employés also have been given special rights from time to time, the last being in March, 1930, at $130 a share for 75,000 shares.

Warren Bros. Financing.

New financing for the Warren Brothers company, largest road-building concern, will take the form of an issue of $5,000,000 convertible 6 per cent sinking fund debentures, due March 1, 1941. They will be offered by a syndicate including the Bancamerica-Blair corporation, Paine, Webber & Co., Hornblower & Weeks, and Hayden, Stone & Co. The debentures are convertible into common stock at $45 a share to March 1, 1934, at $50 a share thence to March 1, 1937, and at $55 a share thereafter.

The New York bond market moved ahead today but the advance was not uniform. A few issues made sharp gains while other slipped back.

Foreign obligations provided many of the more striking changes. Advances in the various issues of the Province of Antioquia ranged upward to more than 6 points in the case of the second 7s of 1957. Bolivian, Colombian, City and Province of Cordova, Cundinamarca, Tolima, Warsaw, Porto Alegre, and Rio Grande do Sul obligations gained sharply too. Liens of the United States government fluctuated uncertainly on a few sales. Declines among the foreign bonds were narrow and few.

NAT. DAIRY PRODUCTS SHOWS LARGEST SALES SINCE ORGANIZATION

New York, March 9.—(AP)—National Dairy Products corporation, which claims a position as the largest dairy products distributor in the world, reports the largest net sales volume in its seven years' history for 1930, as well as earnings per share of common stock surpassing 1929.

After giving effect to interest on funded and floating debt and dividends on preferred stock, 1930 net profits amounted to $25,470,942, equivalent to $4.10 a share, slightly larger than predicted. This was on the basis of 6,202,177 shares of common stock outstanding, and compares with net profits of $20,758,898, equal to $4.04 a share on 5,135,645 shares in 1929.

Net sales for the year, the corporation reported, were $374,558,411, against 300,021,483 in the previous year. The report shows total current assets of $68,152,624, with cash on hand of $19,886,012, comparing with $54,569,991 current assets in 1929.

Commenting on business conditions, Thomas McInnerney, president, said he believed business and commodity prices had touched bottom and any change would be on the upside. While the corporation had thought the milk business was depression proof, it had been adversely affected during the last six months of 1930, he said, but the decrease from the previous year amounted to only 2 per cent.

February Sales of 37 Chain Firms Total $118,262,477

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 9.—Reports from thirty-seven chain store companies, exclusive of mail order and chain combinations, show aggregate gross sales of $113,262,477 in February, compared with $119,502,624 in the month last year, a decrease of 5.2 per cent. Seventeen of the reporting companies had higher sales in the month this year than in 1930.

New York, March 9.—Today's share market was mainly front. Auburn Auto, with a net gain of eleven points, Case Threshing Machine up 6¼, Industrial Rayon 4⅝, and Columbian Carbon 4¼—these and other high stepping in-and-outers made it look like another of these bull whoopee affairs.

But the shindig of the impressionables just about tells the story of the performance. Taken as a whole the market was about as dismal an affair as the exchange has had to endure this year. Volume fell off to 2,800,

SILVER STRONG, COPPER EASES IN METAL MART

New York, March 9.—(AP)—Copper was slightly easier today and, in contrast, bar silver was strong.

Some of the custom smelters were reported to be willing to sell copper at 10¼ cents a pound in the domestic market, a concession of one-quarter of a cent from the prevailing price, and small sales at that price were said to have been made to establish a price on custom intake.

The large producers, however, held firmly at 10½ cents a pound and the amount of copper available at 10¼ cents was said to be too small to meet requirements of domestic fabricators.

Bar silver in New York was strong, advancing ⅞ of a cent and more than recovering the drop of ⅝ of a cent Saturday. Today's quotation was 29 cents an ounce, an advance of two cents since the signing of the Indian peace agreement early last week.

Union Tank Car Reports 1930 Income of $2,546,464

Union Tank Car company's annual statement issued last night by President L. J. Drake shows net income for 1930 of $2,546,464, which compares with net income of $3,666,589 in 1929. The 1930 earnings are equivalent to $2.04 a share on the 1,254,048 shares of capital stock outstanding. The 1929 earnings were equivalent to $2.92 a share after giving effect to the four-for-one split of the $100 par value shares. The company's balance sheet as of Dec. 31 shows a strong current position, with quick assets of $13,637,804 and current liabilities of $502,177.

"WHAT DID THE MARKET DO TODAY?"

• The next time you are in a small group and a newcomer is introduced as a member of an investment banking organization, note the inevitable question put to him—"What did the market do today?" • Perhaps the query will take a different form but the substance of it will be some reference to the "market."

• To the man in the street the business of investment is very often largely a matter of the stock market and its course from day to day. Certainly the movement of important stock prices has a significance for business and the investor, but it does not by any means sum up the process of investment.

• The purpose of investment—the conservation and effective employment of savings—indicates the nature of the activity. It starts with a program laid out to meet individual situations. It is made effective by balance and strict adherence to well tested principles. It is not a matter of quotations but of intrinsic values.

• In the formulation of your own investment policy, this organization offers broad facilities, 37 years' specialized experience, and an approach that is based on your particular needs. We invite your inquiry.

THE STORY OF

OUR TWO MILLION DOLLAR SPECIAL RESERVE

Our Special Reserve Fund of $2,000,000 has been voluntarily set up as a protection for the beneficiaries in trusts under wills as well as living trusts.

Before the beneficiaries can lose anything on interest bearing investments purchased by us we must lose two million dollars.

While some losses have occurred in the investment of trust funds, these have been borne by us out of other reserves.

"Will my income continue?"

"Will my principal be kept unimpaired?"

CHICAGO STOCKS EDGE UPWARD IRREGULARLY

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Continuing to reflect the mixed sentiment among speculators the Chicago stock exchange edged irregularly forward yesterday. The price improvement was confined largely to the motor accessory, utility and a few miscellaneous issues. Losses scattered throughout the list only in rare instances exceeded a point.

The motor equipment shares benefited from the impressive advance in the leading automobile stocks on the big board. Supporters of Perfect Circle put their stock up more than 3 points. Sales in the issue approximated 2,100 shares which represents a fairly lively day for the issue. Borg Warner made over a point and the other automotive issues trailed along with smaller gains.

Holds Most of Advance.

Efficient support enabled U. S. Radio to hold most of an early 2 point gain. The alternate buying and selling made for some confusion in price movements throughout the list but the late trading found purchasers in the majority. The moderate volume of trading, which totaled only 140,000 shares, was responsible for the sensitiveness of the market.

Kellogg Switchboard and Polymet which were put through their paces in last week's late trading were again fairly active but neither issue experienced significant price change.

Missouri Kansas Shows Income.

Missouri Kansas Pipe Line shares were bid up to 10¼, coincident with the filing with the exchange by company officials of an audited balance sheet and income account.

The firm's last fiscal year ended March 31, 1930 but the income account covered the twelve months ended Oct. 31, 1930. Net earnings for the period, after depreciation, depletion and other charges, amounted to $161,719 or 11 cents a share on the common stock outstanding on Oct. 31. The earnings included profit for the ten months ended Oct. 31 of properties sold as of that date.

The balance sheet as of Oct. 31, listed total assets of $25,211,943, including fixed assets of, $4,829,059 representing plant and properties, etc., at cost. Total assets as of March 31 were $11,131,146. Current assets were carried at $2,762,988 about half of which represented cash and marketable securities.

Pan Handle Investment.

Investment in Pan Handle Eastern Pipe Line company in which it sold a 50 per cent interest to the Columbia Gas people last year, is carried in the balance sheet at $17,584,318. This figure included appreciation through revaluation of $3,825,000.

Current liabilities stood at $643,966. The surplus account discloses a deduction of $2,240,723 representing the excess of cost over sale price of the 50 per cent common stock interest in the Pan Handle Eastern company.

The auditor reported that 2,000 shares of the company's investment in Pan Handle Eastern stock are deposited under an option contract which provides for the sale of all or any part of the block of shares at a price approximately $3,150,000 less than the valuation given in the balance sheet.

Warner Bros. Shows Current Assets of Over 35 Millions

The consolidated balance sheet of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and subsidiary companies, published yesterday as of Nov. 29, 1930, the end of the company's first quarter, shows cash on hand of $6,169,982. Bank loans, which on Nov. 29, 1930, were $3,500,000, but have now been reduced to $2,500,000, the company explained. In addition to stated current assets totaling $35,680,869, the balance sheet shows trade accounts receivable and inventories of the radio and record division carried at $5,696,107. Current liabilities, on the other hand, totaled $18,403,715. Land, building, etc., on Nov. 29, 1930, after reserves for depreciation and amortization, were $164,614,464. Total assets were carried at $228,414,032.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was firmer today, due principally to increased buying on the part of outport refiners and operators. The spot price remained unchanged at 3.20c, but shipment sugars were steadier.

Early irregularity in raw futures was followed by sharp upturns on increased covering and trade buying, with offerings comparatively light and the market closing at net gains of 3@4 points. Approximate sales, 25,450 tons. Prices follow:

Snowstorms curtailed the movement of live stock toward all markets yesterday, and cold weather stimulated the demand for meats, resulting in some of the sharpest gains of the year to date. Hogs jumped 25@50c, the top going up 45c to $8.10, the highest since Feb. 11.

Fresh pork loins on the wholesale market advanced 2@4c per pound to the highest point since Nov. 28. Lambs advanced 25@35c, the top at $9.50 being within 10c of the highest of the year. Cattle ruled steady to 25c higher, both yearlings and weighty beeves bringing $11.25, the top price.

Hog receipts at 38,000 were the smallest for Monday since last October, while shipping demand was broadest in several weeks. The clearance was early at the advance, with only 2,000 estimated left at the close. All classes, with the exception of packing sows, shared in the full gain, the general average moving up 35c at $7.60, the highest since Jan. 22.

Trading Is Wild.

Trading was wild in midseason when it became evident that many shipping orders would be got over unfilled, due to the shortage in receipts. Outsiders obtained more than 60 per cent of the supply on the market after directs had been deducted.

Hogs averaging 170@210 lbs for today's delivery were bid $8.25 on yesterday's " to arrive " market, but there were no sellers at that figure. Hogs averaging 210@260 lbs were bid $8.00, and 260@310 lb butchers were bid $7.75. Trading in future months was slow, but at 25c higher prices. April light sold at $8.50, against $8.00 the midde of last week. May light were bid $8.50 and offered at $8.90. Light medium, and heavy for next Sepember were offered at $9.50 and bid $8.50 @8.75.

Cattle receipts at 11,500 were second smallest for Monday since last November, this total comparing with 13,130 a week ago, with 17,933 a year ago, and with 17,559 two years ago. Prices ruled steady to 25c higher, with the clearance earlier than usual when only 6,000 were posted for today.

Top Lambs Reach $9.50.

Lambs sold under brisk competition at the 25@30c higher prices yesterday, all classes sharing in the full strength. Medium and weighty stock in some instances are as much as $1.00 above the low point of last week. Prime 92@100 lb lambs went to local packers at $9.00@9.25, while 104 lb averages were sold at $8.75.

Fancy light to shippers reached $9.50. Aged sheep were firm, with light ewes at $5.00. Yearlings met good demand at sharply higher prices, the top at $8.65 going back to last August for a higher mark in that branch. Feeding and shearing lambs were strong.

Railroad Shares Corp. Has $125,427 Three Months' Net

Railroad Shares corporation reports for three months ending Feb. 28, 1931, net earnings of $125,427. Surplus as of Feb. 28 amounted to $223,279, which is largely in excess of requirements of $104,890 for the March 15 dividend.

PRESSURE ON PROVISIONS

Trade in lard was active yesterday with liquidation by longs coupled with hedging sales by packers, investment and short buying. Prices declined 17½@22½c at the extreme, with a late rally and a close 8@12½c lower. Liverpool lard was 9d@1s higher, spots being the weakest. Exports of lard for the week were 9,086,000 lbs, against 10,731,000 lbs last year. Of bacon they were 4,663,000 lbs, against 4,033,000 lbs last year. Cash trade was fair, with bellies unchanged to 2½c higher, with a light trade. Hog prices were up 25@30c at the last, with receipts materially lighter than a week ago. Prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL was moderately active today, with early firmness, due to encouraging action of other markets, followed by an easier tone because of the setback in lard, cotton, and grains. The closing was barely steady, with prices 5 points higher to 3 not lower. Sales were 3,900 bris. HIGH STEPPERS PROVIDE "FRONT" FOR DULL MARKET

000 shares or so, with price changes narrow and sluggish and—outside of the motors—no pronounced group movements developed in any directions. This is another way of saying that the professionals had business all to themselves once more with the public in a waiting mood.

Await Steel Action.

Whether tomorrow's tonnage figures of the United States Steel corporation, or the action of the following day on the New York Central dividend will turn the trick or not remains to be seen. The street is pretty generally resigned to a drop in the unfilled orders of the steel company as predicted by the steel trade journals last week, but there is a possibility that the influence of this otherwise important factor in the situation has been discounted. The report is due at noon and the action of the market after its appearance will be keenly watched for an earnest of the trend of the immediate future.

Motor stocks were about the most prominent of any group in today's dealings. Reports of increased output of some of the lower priced machines and talk of an upturn of sales on the strength of the soldier bonus payments were used by the bull faction to stage something of a demonstration in these issues in the early dealings. Chrysler was the favorite of the section and was bid up a point or so to a new high for the year. General Motors also came in for a mead of speculative attention. Nash and Studebaker were active and strong and Hupp moved ahead fractionally.

Utilities Have Fling.

The utilities had a little fling in the forenoon likewise, but failed to attract a following and turned dull. At the close found American and Foreign Power up 2¾ points, Electric Power and Light with a gain of more than a point, and Water Works, Brooklyn Union Gas, and Standard Gas up from a fraction to 2 points over Saturday's final figures.

Still another bright spot of the list was furnished by the mail order shares. Buying in these issues, Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward, came chiefly from Chicago sources, where sentiment has been helped by the heavy snows that have fallen over a good part of the agricultural regions, thus assuring ample moisture for crops for the early season and thus forecasting better business for the big mail order supply houses. Sears-Roebuck advanced 2 points and Montgomery Ward more than half as much on an improved turnover.

U. S. Steel Is Off.

Most of the pivotals finished on the upside. U. S. Steel was an exception. It could not overcome the effect of the outlook for a discouraging tonnage report and lagged behind the procession all day, finishing with a loss of nearly a half point. American Can on the other hand was up nearly a point, while Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, and Westinghouse Electric were up from a fraction to a point or more.

CORPORATION EARNINGS

GENERAL REALTY AND UTILITIES.

Reported for 1930 net income of $4,287,965, including equity in results of ten wholly owned companies, against $3,480,811 from inception of the business Jan. 31, 1929, to Dec. 31, 1929. Net for 1930 was equal to $1.64 a share on the common stock, against $1.19 a share in the previous year.

UNION TANK CAR.

Reports 1930 net earnings from operation of $2,793,096, and total net profit from all sources of $3,248,312. Total net for 1929 was $3,866,600.

OTIS STEEL.

Reported 1930 net of $868,720, or less than a fourth of the 1929 profit of $3,687,709. President Kulas said the drastic decline in steel prices had been the most troublesome development of the year, but added that some larger consumers now appreciate the large supply and there is less pressure for immediate delivery. He anticipates moderate price increases as the year progresses.

REVERE COPPER AND BRASS.

In the year ended Dec. 31 showed a net income of $7,701, after interest, depreciation, and federal taxes, etc., against $10,370,879 in 1929, after an appropriation of $820,000 for inventory reserve.

MESTA MACHINE.

In the year ended Dec. 31 showed a net profit of $2,509,175, after charges and federal taxes, equal, after allowing for 6 per cent preferred dividends, to $4.09 a share, par $5, on 600,000 shares of common, against $1,797,242, or $2.81 a common share, in 1929.

CROWN-ZELLERBACH.

Reports net earning of $564,522, after all charges and preferred dividends for the nine months ended Jan. 31, 1930. Gross for the same period was $8,078,341.

TOTO METER GAUGE.

Winnipeg Market Remains in Strong Position.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bearish domestic developments more than offset those of a strengthening character from abroad in the local wheat market yesterday and, while there was an advance of around 1c early on buying induced by the unexpected strength in Liverpool, the finish was at the bottom, with both old and new crop months ¼c lower for the day. March closed at 79¼c; May, 81⅝c; July, 64@64¼c, and September, 63¾@64c.

An increase of 1,262,000 bu in the domestic visible supply, with selling against offers, took the bull edge off the wheat market, and many of the locals who bought early went out of their lines on the way down. Total visible supply is now 197,878,000 bu, compared with 155,729,000 bu a year ago.

Winnipeg Wheat Strong.

The reaction in Chicago was in the face of continued strength in Winnipeg, where wheat closed ⅞@1¼c higher, with the July at 61⅞c. Messages from the Canadian market estimated export sales as in excess of 500,000 bu. Realizing sales and selling orders from Chicago checked the advance. The trade had reports that the farm board had sold some hard winter to Antwerp, but the quantity or price was not given, and domestic exports of late have been very small, both in the shape of grain or flour.

An advance of 1@1⅛d in Liverpool wheat futures was a surprise to the trade, and was due to a fair demand for Australian grain and less pressure to sell. July there finished at 65½c. Supplies on ocean passage decreased around 2,500,000 bu for the week and are 55,360,000, or 18,376,000 bu in excess of last year. Harvesting has started in early districts in India and the crop there is estimated at 336,000,000 bu, compared with the record yield of 389,000,000 bu last year. Buenos Aires wheat was ⅝@⅞c higher at the last, with May, 50c.

Wheat growers in Australia are securing around 27@28c per bu for cash wheat, according to official reports received from Sydney, New South Wales, although on Jan. 30 producers in New South Wales were receiving only 24¾c. The United States has refused the invitation of the International Institute of Agriculture to attend a wheat conference at Rome as the farm board feels that the United States has expressed its position in attempting to hold down production to domestic requirements.

Corn Closes at Bottom.

Scattered buying advanced corn futures ½@¾c in the early trading, strength in wheat and the unfavorable weather conditions over the corn belt for the movement, with prospects of heavier feeding, being the main influence. Selling against offers checked the advance and later there was local pressure on the increase of 1,324,000 bu in the visible supply, making the total 20,285,000 bu, against 24,220,000 bu last year. The close was at the bottom, with net losses of ¼@⅝c, March being 62¾@62½c; May, 64⅝@64¾c; July, 67c, and September, 66⅝@66¾c.

Country offerings were only fair and aggregated 62,000 bu, including 50,000 bu from other terminals late Saturday. Eastern demand for cash corn was slow, with sales of only 21,000 bu. Buenos Aires showed unexpected strength and closed ⅝@1½c higher, with March leading.

Oats in Easy Close.

Trade in oats was not large and the market closed ⅝@½c lower in sympathy with corn after showing strength with that grain early. March finished at 29⅜c; May, 31⅛c, and July, 32¼c. A decrease of 897,000 bu in the visible supply was ignored. Rye was dull and closed ¾c higher to ⅝c lower, with March, 37⅝c; May, 40⅝c, and July, 41⅝c.

FARM GRAIN RESERVES

Apparent disappearance of wheat in the United States during the first eight months of the current crop year, or 674,000,000 bu, an increase of 8,000,000 bu over the same period in 1929-30, as indicated by the government estimate on farm reserves on March 1, combined with the private estimate on country mill and elevator stocks, and the commercial visible.

A drastic downward estimate on the amount of wheat that has been fed to live stock is regarded by the trade as necessary as the suggested total is not over 75,000,000 bu, based on the apparent disappearance of the crop. Murray's recent report indicated about 40,000,000 bu was fed during the same period from the 1929 crop.

Farm reserves of 160,000,000 bu wheat were well above trade expectations, although within 2,000,000 bu of the E. W. Snow-Bartlett Frazier estimate, and showed 30,000,000 bu in excess of last year. Corn reserves of 708,000,000 bu were 30,000,000 bu below expectations, and 278,000,000 bu less than last year, while oats reserves of 464,000,000 bu were 86,000,000 bu more than in 1930.

Around 505,000,000 bu wheat, 310,000,000 bu corn and 220,000,000 bu oats will be shipped out of the country where grown during the current crop year, the figures being arrived at by applying the percentages indicated by the report to the total production of 1930. On the same basis shipments last year were 584,000,000 bu wheat, 441,000,000 bu corn, and 246,000,000 bu oats. Farm reserves, last six ciphers omitted, follow:

PLAN APARTMENT BUILDING FOR MARYLAND-81ST

BY AL CHASE.

Financing has been completed and work will start at once on a twenty-four apartment, three story building, at the southwest corner of 81st street and Maryland avenue, from plans by Architect Charles S. Archer. The owner, R. T. Johnson, cement contractor. The site fronts 125 feet on 81st, and eighty feet on Maryland avenue. It is stated that the building and land will represent a total investment of $125,000. The suites will have 3½ rooms. The street elevations will will be of face brick and cut stone. Completion is set for around Aug. 1st.

The University of Chicago has purchased the two six flat buildings at 5737-43 Drexel avenue from Roy E. Dahlstrom and William France Anderson and will remodel them for use as a nurses' home for the Lying-In hospital.

Miss Romola Remus, daughter of George Remus, has sold the eighteen flat building at the southeast corner of Washtenaw and Arthur avenues, lot 61x125, to Mrs. Anna Mesch for an undisclosed consideration, subject to $64,500. Mrs. Mesch gave in part payment the twelve apartments at the southeast corner of Artesian and Hollywood avenues. E. A. Eklund was attorney.

Real Estators to Meet.

The regular monthly members' meeting of the Cook County Real Estate board will be held today at 3:30 p. m. in the board rooms, 100 North La Salle street. This evening at 7:30 o'clock, Thomas J. Matousek, chief examiner of titles, and Eugene Stewart, examiner of titles, both in the county recorder's office, will speak on new amendments to the Torrens system. The public is invited, according to Robert Clark Duncan, president of the real estators.

The 120 car garage at 1413 Lunt avenue, lot 110x170, has been purchased by Abraham Sherman from Lester C. Anderson for an undisclosed price, subject to $92,000. Ruekberg & Burr were attorneys.

John W. Shaefle to Speak.

John W. Shaefle, advertising manager of Baird & Warner, will talk on "How to Prepare Effective Display Advertising for a Real Estate Organization" this evening before the realty class of the Central "Y". Frank Slosson, of Hooker & Slosson, will discuss "Commercial Leasing" on Thursday evening.

The Catholic Bishop of Chicago has purchased the church property at the northeast corner of May and Erie streets, 99x116, from the United Evangelical Lutheran Congregation of Chicago, for an undisclosed consideration. It will be used by the Sancta Maria Adolorata Roman Catholic parish, whose church at Grand avenue and Peoria recently burned.

Barney Hayden has purchased the vacant southeast corner of Eastlake terrace and Howard street, 241x149, extending to the lake shore, from the Sheridan Trust & Savings bank, trustee. He states he may improve later on with a large apartment building. E. P. Steinberg will be the architect.

POTATO FUTURES HIGHER

Egg futures moved sharply higher on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange at the opening, presumably a follow up of the severe weather encountered over the week-end, but the early bulge led to fairly constant offerings towards the last and under pressure the market reached and closed unchanged to ⅛c higher. Butter sold in fair volume, but price movement was indicated uncertainty. The close was ¼c higher. Spot market strength was generally ignored. Potatoes advanced 6c on short covering and there was new speculative buying near the finish. Prices follow:
